JAPANESE FIGHT WITH BACKS TO RIVER AS CHINA UNLEASHES SMASHING OFFENSIVE

F. D. R. Hits 'Tories' as Foes of Democracy

RIGHT OF MASSES HELD DOMINANT AS NATION'S GOAL

President Again Strikes at 'Privileged Minority' and 'Selected Classes' in Address Exalting Nation's Early Settlers.

HISTORIC LETTER OF MACAULAY READ

'Mouth Phrases' About the U. S. Constitution Scored as Executive Assails Liberty League.

Complete Text of President's Address in Page 9.

MANTEO, Roanoke Island, N. C., Aug. 18.— (AP) —President Roosevelt accused his foes today of "mouthing" praise of the constitution while secretly distrusting democracy.

The President's denunciation of what he called his "tory" opposition was his first since the United States senate buried his proposal to reorganize the supreme court.

It was delivered before a perspiring crowd of several thousand at ceremonies celebrating the 350th anniversary of the birth of Virginia Dare, first child of English parents born on this continent.

Macaulay Letter Read.

Mr. Roosevelt turned to Lord Macaulay, an English historian who predicted in 1857 that democracy would not succeed in this country, for the major theme of his address.

After reading from Macaulay's prediction, he declared:

"Almost, methinks, I am reading not from Macaulay but from a resolution of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Liberty League, the National Association of Manufacturers or the editorials written at the behest of some well-known newspaper proprietors."

"American Lord Macaulays of today," the President declared, distrust majority rule because "an enlightened majority will not tolerate the abuses which a privileged minority would seek to foist upon the people as a whole."

Reaffirming his faith in democratic institutions, the chief executive asserted:

No Change Sought.

"I seek no change in the form of American government. Majority rule must be preserved as the safeguard of both liberty and civilization."

Representative Warren, Democrat, North Carolina, preceding the President, read a cablegram from

Miner Buried Alive Is Rescued Uninjured

PLACERVILLE, Cal., Aug. 18. (UP)—Rescue workers tonight extricated Frank Libby, Fair Oaks miner, from beneath tons of rock, dirt and debris that fell on him and a fellow-miner in a cave-in at the Gopher-Boulder mine. They still sought the second miner, who was believed dead.

Libby was uninjured, but was stiff because the 50 tons of boulders and dirt cramped his limbs.

Libby hopped about on one leg and ran around stiffly. He then insisted upon aiding the rescue workers in an effort to locate his companion, Hardy Achzig, who also was trapped in the cave-in.

"She Can Fill Any Job—Even the Senate"

In high spirits Governor and Mrs. Bibb Graves, of Alabama, paused briefly at Candler field yesterday en route to Washington, where it is reported that Mrs. Graves will take the oath of office as Alabama's first woman senator—succeeding Hugo Black. Noncommittal, Governor Graves smiled and said, "She can fill any job as well as anybody."

HOUSING MEASURE OKAYED, 274 TO 86

$526,000,000 Federal Aid Measure Must Now Be Approved by Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The house shoved the low-cost housing bill through passage tonight with a 274-to-86 roll call vote.

Approval of the measure to set up a $526,000,000 program of federal aid to state and municipal low-cost housing projects cleared away a major barrier to adjournment of congress by Saturday.

The senate, however, must approve house amendments before the legislation goes to the White House.

Critics shot one amendment after another at the legislation. Almost without exception the house refused by lopsided votes to accept them.

Struggle Lies Ahead.

But because house provisions departed drastically from those that won senate approval a fortnight ago, a further struggle lies ahead in a conference in which senators and representatives will attempt to reach a compromise.

Tonight's house action left it up to the senate to wipe clean the session's legislative slate by passing a final appropriation bill and legislation to close tax law loopholes.

For more than nine tumultuous hours house members battled over the housing measure.

In the midst of the give-and-take wrangling, a 97-to-59 stand-

SOCIAL SECURITY AROUSES AUGUSTA

Financing Program for Allotments Stirs Officials of Richmond County

The State Welfare Department's announcement yesterday of sums it expects counties to contribute to the social security program for the current fiscal year was followed by a repercussion from the commissioners of one large county.

Chairman Ed Mertins, of the Richmond commission, said at Augusta he does not expect his county "to finance the state welfare program." He said:

"Richmond is contributing $1,2 to administrative costs anyhow, and the applications are at such a rate that no end is in sight."

$600,000 Total Seen.

The state department's tabulation of funds each county must raise sets Richmond's share at $15,600. Capitol observers estimated the total amount called for from counties at $600,000.

Mertins said further that "the state, approving one director for each county, has left the larger counties without adequate help except through aid from the county. He declared:

"We cannot be expected to raise our tax rate to relieve the state. The program called for just the reverse."

Mertins' statement came after the Richmond commissioners had voted to turn welfare administration back to the state unless the State Welfare Department carries out what the commission termed

Grady To Establish 'Blood Bank,' Avoiding Delays in Transfusions

By FRANK DRAKE.

A "blood bank" will be established immediately at Grady hospital, Superintendent J. B. Franklin announced yesterday.

To avoid delays in procuring proper type blood when needed for transfusions, the hospital will obtain a supply of blood of all types and keep it in cold storage, lending patients needing transfusions the necessary blood of the correct type at a moment's notice.

At his leisure, the patient can obtain a donor with any type blood to repay the loan from the "blood bank," Franklin said.

Though the "bank" idea has been in successful operation for some time in a number of large cities, it is the first to be established in Atlanta. The Grady hospital board of trustees, of which Samuel Candler Dobbs Sr., is chairman, yesterday gave wholehearted approval to the progressive step.

May Ask Free Blood.

"We may have to call on Atlantans to contribute free blood to our first reserve," said Franklin. "The hospital is going to buy the refrigeration equipment necessary to keep the blood in cold

GRAVES BELIEVES WIFE COULD HOLD SEAT IN SENATE

Alabama Governor and Mate Pause Here, Parry Questions on Report He Will Appoint Her To Hugo Black Vacancy.

FLYING TO CAPITAL 'JUST ON BUSINESS'

Can't Make Announcement Until Supreme Court Post Is Finally Taken, Says Executive.

By AL HAILEY.

Reported nomination of Mrs. Dixie Graves, wife of Alabama's Governor Bibb Graves, to fill the unexpired term of supreme court Appointee Senator Hugo Black, Tuesday was confirmed by the by the Governor that "she can fill the job as well as anybody."

Pausing briefly at Candler field late yesterday afternoon en route to Washington, the Governor and Mrs. Graves laughingly refused either to confirm or deny rumors that they were on the way to Washington where Mrs. Graves would take the oath as senator—succeeding Hugo Black, who only yesterday was confirmed by the senate as justice to fill the vacancy created by retirement of Willis Van Devanter.

"How do you think you are going to like being a senator, Mrs. Graves?"

"Well, I don't know—in fact, I don't know that I'm going to be a senator, for there is really no vacancy yet," she answered.

No Announcement.

Governor Graves — empowered to appoint a successor to Senator Black—asserted that "Black can be senator just as long as he wants to." Until he has officially resigned his office, there will be no announcements as to who will fill his place, the rotund Governor said.

"I think Mrs. Graves can fill any job as well as anybody," he said when asked if he thought his wife could fill the office. "But I haven't anything to say now. I'm just on my way to Indianapolis to see my personal secretary get elected president of the Young Democrats of America."

Governor Graves said that he

BUTCHERY VICTIM FOUND MURDERED

Man Decapitated, Body Slashed and Thrown in North Georgia Ditch.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Police began search for a "butcher murderer" tonight after Jim Revels, 21, was found dead in a ditch, decapitated and his body slashed to ribbons.

Captain of Police Roy Hyatt said circumstances surrounding the slaying indicated unbelievable savagery. The youth's head had been lopped off, his body hacked with a knife and gasoline poured over his car and ignited.

Sheriff J. M. Moreland, of Catoosa county, telephoned his office at Ringgold informing deputies there he had arrested a man and a woman for questioning in connection with the murder.

Declining to reveal the names of the couple, the sheriff said he was bringing them to the county jail for questioning immediately.

Found Near Army Post.

Chattanooga police discovered the body late today near Lytle, Ga., not far from the Fort Oglethorpe army reservation and across the Georgia line.

A wide search had been in progress for the youth since Sunday night when his father, O. B. Revels, reported him missing and told police he feared he had been murdered.

The youth's car was found on a lonely city drive near the Tennessee river swamps. It had been reduced to a charred mass of metal

COMMON SCHOOLS FUNDS DOUBLED

New Allotment Made to Counties; Pay Scale To Depend on Qualification

The new program of state support for seven months of the year will allow a possible increase of at least 1,702 in the ranks of Georgia public school teachers, education department officials announced yesterday.

The department announced allocation of teachers to the various counties, the smaller ones in general receiving more than were employed last year.

While some of the counties were apportioned fewer teachers than they employed in 1936, the department explained this would not mean a reduction in the number of teachers in these counties.

Pilot Disarms Youth Who 'Kidnaped' Plane

ROSENBERG, Texas, Aug. 18. (UP)—Robert Hunt, a Houston air school pilot, today overpowered an armed youth who had commandeered his plane and forced him to fly here en route to Mexico.

The pilot took advantage of the youth's carelessness and disarmed him as they waited for a farmer to bring gasoline for a resumption of the flight.

The youth identified himself as Jack D. Hamerly, 19, but refused to give information about his home. He said that his stepfather had "kicked me out" and that he had lost his job.

Hunt was partly angry and partly amused by the incident.

Keep Marines Out of China, Say Atlantans

Sympathy for "Underdog" Expressed by Scores; Japan Seen Victor.

"Underdog" China has the deep sympathy of Atlantans in the present war with Japan, but a majority is of the opinion the Nipponese will win another "bite off the Chinese pie" unless there is outside intervention, a cross-section of Atlanta thought revealed yesterday.

Displaying intense interest in the Chinese-Japanese situation which they believe may develop international complications, dozens of Atlantans from every walk of life talked freely of their opinions.

The consensus was that China is being imposed on by its island neighbor who needs more land for a rapidly growing population; that Japan's better equipment and technical training bodes ill for the

PORTUGAL SEVERS PRAGUE RELATIONS

Action Is Surprise; Cause Is Unknown as Censor Delays Further News.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The Portuguese government, said a dispatch from Lisbon today, has severed diplomatic relations with Czechoslovakia.

The dispatch did not mention cause or details of the reasons for severance.

The cable from the Associated Press correspondent in Lisbon said only "Portuguese government severed diplomatic relations Czechoslovakia," and it had been delayed some hours by the Portuguese censor.

The action came as a complete surprise. There has been no hint of dispute between the two countries so far as is known here.

Pending receipt of more definite news from Lisbon, foreign observers speculated whether the rupture might have been the out-

War Catches News Writer's Wife With a Market Basket on Her Arm

By ELISABETH L. HARRIS,
Wife of the Associated Press Chief of Bureau in Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 19.—(Thursday.)—(AP)—The war caught me with a market basket on my arm.

That was last Saturday, and since then we have had air bombs, artillery duels, machine gun battles and infantry assaults.

It's getting worse every day.

Last Saturday I started out, as usual, to do my week-end shopping at a Chinese market. I soon found that bargaining—a great national pastime in China—was useless. Because of the war, the utmost confusion prevailed.

Vegetables, meats and other foodstuffs were plentiful, but prices had doubled overnight. One paid the price asked, or the Chinese merchant offered the goods to the next housewife.

It was then I got the idea of laying in a supply of canned goods. That afternoon I went to the largest Chinese department store, accompanied by a nephew who was visiting me.

It became apparent immediately that the canned goods idea had occurred to others. The usually

SHANGHAI (Thursday), Aug. 19.—China's picked legions, in seemingly inexhaustible numbers, swept over the mud flats of the Yangtse delta today in the face of the heaviest shelling of the six-day old Shanghai war, pushing the Japanese back toward the Whangpoo river.

Japanese fliers took to the air and guns of the third battle fleet roared with increasing thunder, but nothing seemed able to stem the frenzied drive of veteran central army fighters, struggling to smash the Japanese reinforcements move up the river.

Land Targets Obscured.

Across the Whangpoo flames crackled from burning Pootung and dense black smoke billowed into the air, obscuring land targets from Japanese bombers.

China was making a desperate move to hurl the Japanese back before the mechanized Nipponese home army moves up the delta with vastly superior fighting equipment in its projected plan to "annihilate the Chinese."

The Japanese fleet began firing shortly after daybreak from downstream, where the Chinese yesterday sank five Japanese river boats to block off the upper part of the Whangpoo.

Two Japanese gunboats, anchored off the Bund, did not participate in the firing, apparently being moored there to prevent a repetition of the boat-sinking maneuver by which the Chinese have sought to pen up the Japanese warships.

Scout Planes in Air.

Japanese scouting planes shot off the decks of warships near the Japanese consulate wharf and flew down the river bank, apparently exploring new Chinese positions.

Chinese anti-aircraft batteries, set up out in the Pootung area, flamed into the dawn. There were no Chinese planes in the air, the offensive being confined to land movement and shelling from big trench mortars.

Japanese troops fought with their backs to the river and to the International Settlement, encircled by a Chinese army that apparently outnumbered them three and four to one. The Japanese military command has indicated that not until Friday will they be able to throw the full might of the trained Nipponese home army against the Chinese.

Meanwhile they are fighting against time, hoping to stop the desperate Chinese counter-offensive until the home troops, now landing down on the Yangtse, can wheel into action.

A Japanese transport apparently had run the Whangpoo's gauntlet of shellfire, and was moored alongside the wharf at the Japanese consulate.

Much of Shanghai was in flames and the roar of exploding artillery and naval shells and aerial bombs rocked the city as the Chinese drove forward on the International Settlement sector of the northern front.

Japanese Admit Defeats.

Japanese admitted they had been forced to retire in two areas.

They said the full effect of their offensive would not be felt until August 20 or 21, when their army divisions move into action on all sectors of the general Shanghai front.

The Japanese had achieved control of the air, however, and revealed that they had 150 planes in action during yesterday's roaring aerial bombardment of the Chinese positions.

British military intelligence reported that 16 of the Japanese army transports which arrived earlier in the week off the mouth of the Yangtse river, were unloaded yesterday.

In addition to infantry regiments the transports carried artillery, tanks and other equipment.

Two full Japanese army divisions, plus a mixed brigade, were reported to have arrived and it was believed all the men and equipment would be ashore and in fighting positions by Saturday at the latest.

Offensive Greatest Attempted.

The Chinese offensive was the greatest that the Nanking government's German-trained divisions have attempted.

In a single concerted rush last night the Chinese occupied the Yangtsepoo district of the International Settlement, cut the Japanese lines, and surrounded nearly all the land approaches to the Japanese positions in the Hongkew area of the International Settlement, adjoining the Chapei region of the Chinese city.

The position of 10,000 Japanese bluejackets in the whole northern sector was desperate.

The Japanese practically cleared noncombatants from the Yangtsepoo area and at midnight the big guns of their warships in the river began a bombardment.

Shells shrieked into the Chinese positions in a steady stream.

Chinese civilians were taken out in Japanese military trucks and unloaded at the Garden Bridge—entrance to the Anglo-American area of the settlement.

130,000 Chinese Attack.

Chinese said they had put 130,000 men into the attack.

Earlier Mayor Yui had announced that Chinese had driven the Japanese from the vicinity of the American-owned Shanghai Power Company's plant in Yangtsepoo and expected to capture the entire Japanese position in Hongkew. The plant is guarded by United States bluejackets.

Casualties Reach 27,500.

He promised to protect foreign-owned property south of Soochow creek, in the Anglo-American area if the Settlement council would keep all Japanese out of these districts.

Casualties on both sides were heavy and it was estimated the total for the week of heavy fighting, including civilians, was more than 7,500 dead and 20,000 wounded.

On the northern front Japanese hammered away at the entrenched Chinese positions in the mountains flanking the Hankow pass on the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway, northwest of Peiping, but were making no progress.

South of Peiping, along the Peiping-Hankow Railway, and south of Tientsin on the Tientsin-Pukow-Nanking Railway, the Chinese lines also held fast.

It was emphasized, however, that the Japanese controlled the air. Chinese planes which earlier had bombed the Japanese regiments landing at Liuho, on the Yangtse, 17 miles northwest of Shanghai, had been driven away and the Japanese flatboats, plying between the transports anchored in deep water, were not bothered today.

Japanese Have 300 Planes.

The Japanese were said to have more than 300 planes in the Shanghai area. They have built a well equipped air field on Tsungming Island off Woosung and have 150 planes there.

As dawn approached the fighting in the International Settlement and adjacent areas was intensified.

Crux of the struggle, it appeared, was the line of Japanese warships in the Woosung.

General Motors, of China, Inc., began evacuating its head office by shipping material to Manila.

Major Developments in War Are Told in Brief Paragraphs

SHANGHAI—Japanese forces, paced by first night raid, launch heavy attack on Chinese in Shanghai area on both sides of Whangpoo river; Chinese scuttle six Japanese vessels to block upper stream; Japanese land forces reported yielding to superior numbers of Chinese; 294 Americans under fire leave for Manila; Chinese mass for giant offensive in effort to cut off Japanese before reinforcements reach Shanghai.

TIENTSIN—North China separatist campaign opens in Tientsin and Peiping, seeking separate peace with Japan and formation of regime divorced from Nanking government; Japanese troops ring Tientsin, preparing to resist Chinese offensive; Japanese nationals fleeing from interior towns toward Tsingtao and Tientsin; armies deadlocked at Nankow pass.

NANKING—Executive Yuan of Chinese central government approves measures for evacuation of Chinese nationals from Japan; Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek awards Chinese air force extra month's pay for showing against foe.

WASHINGTON—Secretary Roper says Sino-Japanese situation "is so unequal" that application of United States neutrality act might "put us in the position of favoring one nation;" Representative Fish, Republican, New York, attacks ordering of 1,200 additional marines to conflict zone; State Department reports show between 1,600 and 1,700 Americans will have been evacuated from Shanghai by end of week.

TOKYO—War office announces Japanese now "control air" over Shanghai; major Japanese offensive to drive out Chinese planned for August 20-21.

LONDON—British government warns Sio-Japanese armies that Britain will not surrender any commercial or economic interests in China; prepares to send more British troops to Shanghai.

Tokyo Planes Make 1st Night Air Raid.

By MORRIS J. HARRIS.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Japan's fighters blasted tonight under the Shanghai moon against overwhelming numbers of China's strongest troops on both sides of the Whangpoo river.

A Japanese bombing squadron, making the first night air raid in the six days that Shanghai has been a battleground, opened the heaviest aerial-artillery duel so far.

Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river joined the fire below where daring Chinese soldiers earlier had scuttled six Japanese ships to barricade the upper stream.

Guns from the Japanese men-of-war shelled Pootung, on the east bank, opposite the Bund in the heart of the city.

Chinese Silence Warships.

Chinese artillery roared back across the river to silence the warships and Chinese anti-aircraft batteries swept the sky to beat off the air bombers.

Pootung, drenched with explosives during the 40-minute cannonade, was sprinkled with new fires when the firing suddenly ceased. Billows of dense smoke showed where the Japanese massed bombardment had struck.

Despite an almost full moon and a starry sky, the pall was so heavy that it engulfed the brilliantly spotlighted flags flying from the stem and stern of the United States cruiser Augusta, at the head of an international protective fleet.

The Japanese aircraft wheeled west high above the foreign quarters to attack unknown objectives across the city. Thousands of foreign residents crowded to rooftops to watch the spectacle.

Flames Shoot Skyward.

The planes dived steeply, loosing their explosives from low altitudes. Each time a bomb struck, flashes of flame shot skyward and the west side of Shanghai rocked with the detonation.

In the darkness it was impossible to tell just where the attack was centered. It was believed, however, that the Japanese were aiming at a railroad junction and, possibly, at China's Hungjao airdrome.

This correspondent, luckily on the west side at the time, observed the half-hour raid from an apartment house near the bombarded section. When the swiftly finished job was done he saw a squadron of eight bombers disappear eastward over the French settlement.

They passed back over Pootung, apparently toward bases aboard aircraft carriers in Chinese waters or ashore in Formosa or Japan.

The bombardment broke a brief respite after day-long firing from Japanese warships and Japanese aerial bombings that had caused terrific damage, especially along the waterfront, and had rained explosives on crowded Chinese native quarters in Yangtzepoo, Chapei and Kiangwang.

Japanese Yield Ground.

Japanese land forces, largely marines and blue jackets, were reported yielding ground steadily to a Chinese army that outnumbered them about four to one.

Chinese commanders asserted that their main line had been pushed forward to within a mile of the Whangpoo riverfront and that the Japanese were losing ground in the Hongkew and Yangtzepoo areas in northeastern Shanghai as well as in Chapei to the north.

The Chinese lines stretched from the northwestern edge of the International Settlement along the railroad, through the north station and then curved around the Japanese Hongkew positions toward Whangpoo.

The Japanese fought with their backs to the river and the International areas.

The Japanese headquarters, Shanghai's Mayor Yui declared, are completely encircled. He admitted that a small Japanese force succeeded in landing on the Pootung side of the Whangpoo but declared it would be of little value.

An undetermined number of Japanese marines landed at the Japanese-owned wayside wharves about two miles below the Japanese consulate. Unconfirmed reports said the reinforcements numbered several thousand men, brought from Japan on commercial transports under naval convoy.

A shell fragment, falling from a Chinese or Japanese gun in the International Settlement, struck Pharmacist Mate Floyd Arnold, United States Marines, fourth regiment, in the hip. He was on patrol duty in the American sector of the settlement's north border.

Officials of Pan-American Airways, a heavy stockholder in the Chinese National Aviation Corporation, denied Japanese charges that Lunghwa field commercial hangars, destroyed in an air raid, were used for military purposes.

Chinese troops ventured almost under the muzzles of Japan's war fleet to seize six abandoned Japanese steamers off the French concession and scuttle them above the elbow of the Whangpoo river where it and the Soochow creek converge.

Vessels Are Seized.

Picked companies rushed the vessels and sailed them into position despite broadside salvos. Protective Chinese artillery shells screeched over their heads.

The barricade was submerged south of where American refugees were being evacuated northward to the President McKinley by tender down the Whangpoo.

Consular officials said 294 more American refugees, mostly women and children, were transported safely to the liner which left for Manila. This brought the total of Americans evacuated to 831.

(The State Department reports to Washington said about 1,600 or 1,700 American citizens will be evacuated in all, leaving approximately 2,000 in Shanghai.)

Hunger and fear among homeless natives created an increasing menace apart from the danger of shells and bombs.

Armored cars drove back desperate Chinese civilians attacking trucks bringing in precious loads of rice and thousands of other hungry natives stormed the International Settlement clamoring for food.

Other hundreds of thousands roamed the streets, living in vacant lots and alleys. Looting and killing broke out. Police said at least 15 innocent Chinese were killed and more than 40 wounded.

Authorities began rounding up the city's roving Chinese inhabitants to give them food and shelter in an isolation camp in the French concession.

EUROPEAN POWERS TO KEEP 'HANDS OFF'

Nations To Soft-Pedal Crisis When League Meets in September.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—(UP)—European powers agreed tonight, after consultations and exchanges of information, to maintain a "hands off" policy in the Sino-Japanese conflict and to soft-pedal the crisis at the League of Nations council meeting in September.

French diplomats said the decision not to interfere in the crisis, either directly or indirectly, obviated any possibility of a protest to the League council against the invasion of Chinese national territory by Japan's armed forces.

The attitude of the various European nations, as brought into focus by the chancellory consultations, is:

Britain—reinforcing troops for defense of its nationals in Shanghai and other war zones, but the cabinet has decided against intervention on an international scale.

France—Has informed Washington and London of her readiness to support in advance any action which the United States or Britain may decide upon, but otherwise will propose no mediation either directly or through the League.

Russia—The only power which really could effectively intervene on a military basis has her eyes turned to Spain and remains enigmatically silent with regard to China.

Germany—Is pledged to a political troth to support Japan morally at least, but is playing a cautious middle-of-the-road policy.

Italy—With no direct interests involved in China is concentrating all her attention on facilitating a nationalist victory in Spain and will devote her attention at the League council as to whether Britain recognizes her Ethiopian conquest.

Europe's attitude regarding China has been dictated largely by Washington's prudence and chancellories are watching the workings of the new United States neutrality law, convinced that the United States never will apply the law in instances where a proclamation of neutrality would deprive either warring faction of its only source of supplies, thus putting the United States in the light of favoritism.

Developments of War Reported Over World

Roper Is Desirous Of Preserving Trade

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Secretary Roper served notice today the United States does not want "to sacrifice any proper trade relationships" with Japan and China through application of embargo provisions of the neutrality law.

Ernest G. Draper, asisstant secretary of commerce, asserted sales of cotton, gasoline and oils accounted for the bulk of the United States' $165,519,000 exports to Japan during the first half of this year.

China has ben an important buyer of American airplanes and also has purchased some heavy guns in this country. Its purchases from the United States aggregated $31,355,000 during the first six months of this year.

Chinese Separatists Seek Nanking Split.

TIENTSIN, China, Aug. 18.—(AP) An underground North China separatist movement, encouraged by Japanese, came into the open here and in Peiping today. It sought separate peace with Japan.

It urged the establishment of an anti-war and anti-Communist administration divorced from the Nanking central government in a "North China for North China" campaign.

Concurrent with China's stand against Japanese forces in Shanghai and stubborn resistance at Nankow pass in North China, Japanese army and civil authorities grasped informally at this opportunity.

Japanese circles here, however, showed no intention of organizing immediately any permanent regime.

86 U. S. Refugees Reach Japanese Port.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The State Department announced today 86 Americans, evacuated from Shanghai, arrived at Kobe, Japan, on the President Taft, which left Shanghai Monday.

Usual formalities were waived by local officials and no landing difficulties were experienced. There was little evidence of financial distress among the refugees and they appeared in good spirits.

Chinese Urge Against Invoking Arms Act.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The Chinese Patriotic Association of Greater New York telegraphed President Roosevelt today urging him not to invoke the neutrality act in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

The telegram asked the President "to exercise your influence as head of a peaceful nation and signatory-power of the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg pact to effect withdrawal of Japanese troops from Chinese territory."

It also urged him "to refrain from declaring the existence of a state of war thereby invoking the neutrality act which will have the effect of morally condoning and actually aiding the aggressor."

Manila Makes Plea For Aid of Refugees.

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 18.—(AP)—An appeal for public contributions for American and Filipino refugees fleeing from Shanghai to Manila was issued today by Paul V. McNutt, United States high commissioner, and President Manuel Quezon, of the Philippine commonwealth.

Plans were made for housing and feeding 3,700 refugees, driven from Shanghai by Chinese-Japanese hostilities. First arrivals were expected Thursday or Friday on the liner President Jefferson.

"The general public is invited to make contributions to defray the necessary immediate expenses which must be met in connection with the removal of American and Filipino citizens from Shanghai to Manila and vicinity," the joint statement said.

"Contrbutions are for immediate and other needs for funds which may not be covered by public allotments and which individuals affected may not be able to meet."

The public was instructed to send contributions to the Red Cross.

Chinese Nationals Will Leave Japan.

NANKING, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The executive Yuan of the Chinese Central government approved measures today for the evecuation of all Chinese nationals from Japan.

Life Goes on as Usual For Pigs in Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Life gooes on as usual in war-stricken Shanghai:

While shells from Japanese warships crashed into Pootung, across the Whangpoo river, this morning, 200 pigs rebelled against being driven down Avenue Edward VII.

They spread over the street in all directions, disappearing up alleyways and under motor cars, disrupting traffic while coolies futilely wielded their bamboo poles and pulled at the tails of the squealing porkers.

U. S. Red Cross Allots $20,000 More for Relief.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The American Red Cross allotted an additional $20,000 tonight for use among American refugees from war-torn China.

The funds went to the Philippines Red Cross for relief of penniless Americans. Paul McNutt, governor general of the Philippines, had declared that local funds would be inadequate to care for thousands arriving in Manila from Shanghai.

Two weeks ago, the Red Cross sent $10,000 to the American ambassador in China for expenditure among refugees at his discretion.

U. S. Ambassador Taxed During Crisis.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Delicate American diplomacy in the Sino-Japanese crisis is demanding "round-the-clock" vigilance by the 50-year-old ambassador, Nelson T. Johnson, who for three decades has watched China's painful evolution toward modern nationalism.

Ceaselessly, he sends a stream of interpretative messages to the State Department on conditions in the fuming far east, and behind each cablegram is an oriental background he has developed ever since he was a bright-eyed student interpreter in China 30 years ago.

NEW LIFE IN G. O. P. IS PLEA OF HOOVER

Plan Putting All New Deal Foes Into Single Unit Is Opposed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(UP) Former President Herbert Hoover today rejected three much-discussed proposals to unite all foes of the New Deal into a strong political organization for the 1940 elections battle and called instead for a revitalized Republican party pledged to a "new and flaming declaration of the rights and responsibilities of free men."

Writing in the current issue of the Atlantic Monthly, Mr. Hoover analyzed the hopes that lie behind the three proposals—to create a new party, to change the name of the Republican party and to bring about a coalition of Republicans and Jeffersonian Democrats—and then warned of their futility.

He said that Republican leaders in more than a score of states feel that the party should hold a convention next year and bring forth a program of "constructive national principles."

WHEN CUSTOMERS CALL FOR "BALLANTINE'S"—they get America's finest Ale and Beer. Discover them yourself! Then make the 3 rings, as Peter Ballantine first made them back in 1840. The founder tested his brews 3 ways—one drink to judge PURITY . . . a second for BODY . . . a third for FLAVOR—and pronounced them "per-r-r-fect!" On the table, left by his glass as he made the test, were 3 moisture rings—they became his famous trademark. Look for the 3 rings of quality, then ask for "BALLANTINE'S!"

G-MEN SCRUTINIZE NAZI CAMPS IN U. S. FOR LAW VIOLATION

Letters to Congressman Assert Germany Is Sponsoring Army Training.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—G-men began to scrutinize certain German-American camps today to discover whether any are being operated in violation of federal law.

"It is really more of a checkup than a formal investigation," Attorney General Cummings told reporters, "but I have asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make a cursory examination to ascertain if there are any facts warranting further investigation."

The government's attention was brought to the camps several weeks ago by Representative Citron, Democrat, Connecticut. He asked the State Department to ascertain whether "Nazi military camps" are being sponsored in this country by German consulates.

Because letters which Citron submitted contained other charges, State Department officials referred the matter to the criminal division of the Justice Department, headed by Assistant Attorney General Brien McMahon.

Some of the letters to Citron alleged that 17 camps had been opened throughout the country in addition to a large one at Andover, New Jersey.

YOUTH, 20, IS HUNTED IN SLAYING OF CO-ED

BEREA, Ky., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Police, college students and residents of Berea searched fruitlessly through fields near here today for George E. Wells, 20, charged in a warrant with slaying Opal Sturgell, 18-year-old Berea co-ed.

They combed a section of farming land just northwest of Berea after Allen Williams and other farmers had reported seeing in the vicinity a youth who corresponded to Wells' description.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Reporter on U. S. Liner Pictures Raging Fire Rising From Shanghai

Correspondent, Arriving in Midst of Fighting, Sees Death and Destruction on Every Side; All Japanese Warships Cleared for Action; Bombardments Terrific.

By JAMES A. MILLS.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18.—(AP)—I arrived in Shanghai today under fire from Chinese snipers.

Some 300 other Americans beside myself, twice targets ourselves, witnessed scenes of rampant destruction and slaughter a few hundred yards from our ship, the liner President McKinley.

We watched great sheets of fire rising from ruined areas of the city and bombings by squadrons of Japanese planes.

Coming up the 50 miles to Shanghai by liner and tender along the Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers from the China sea I counted 38 Japanese destroyers, six cruisers, four dreadnaughts, an airplane carrier and numerous gunboats.

The gunboats all were cleared for action. Decks, pilot houses and turrets were barricaded with sandbags.

Terrific Bombardment.

We arrived amid a terrific bombardment, by far the worst, I was told, in the six days of incessant fire.

The Woosung forts were silent, in strange contrast with 1932 when they held the Japanese forces at bay for weeks.

A short distance below Woosung, the passengers saw a harrowing spectacle. They watched the China Merchants' Corporation wharves suddenly engulfed in flame after a terrific Japanese air bombing.

It seemed like a field day for the Japanese aviators. They raided scattered objectives without letup and without hindrance. Their relentless bombings brought to mind the Italian air raids in Ethiopia.

Passengers Under Fire.

Passengers of the McKinley came under fire four times. Twice, Chinese snipers deliberately fired on them, apparently mistaking the line's tender for a Japanese craft despite huge American flags flying from her masts and spread over her decks like awnings.

Twice, it appeared, the President McKinley itself was the innocent bystander in a crossfire from Chinese and Japanese guns.

A rain of bombs from Japanese planes fell dangerously close and Chinese bullets whistled through her rigging from shore batteries peppering the riverful of Japanese destroyers.

The devastation and loss of life that we watched must have been enormous.

Thousands of Chinese were trapped in Yangtzepoo, Chapei, Kaingwang and Pootung under an inferno of high explosives and incendiary bombs dropped by whole squadrons of Curtis Falcon-type Japanese bombers.

The magnificent Shanghai civic center, a special target of the Japanese bombers, was perforated by air bombs. A new group of classic Chinese-style buildings, it had cost $5,000,000 in gold to build.

things became quieter. I returned to my shopping. Having read a lot about air raids in Spain, I had wondered how I would react to one.

Well, now I know. I didn't faint. I didn't become hysterical. Nor did I—as I had hoped to do—become heroic.

I just went on and bought flea soap for our dog.

That was Saturday, the 14th.

During the last five days it has been a succession of listening to the almost continuous bombing and shelling, rushing from window to window or to the roof to get a view of air raids which occur several times daily, tuning in on hourly radio broadcasts of latest news from the front, and, in between, trying to adjust my household to a new routine of living.

Not receiving our daily bottle of milk was the first break in routine; but as long as the supply of canned milk holds out, that is not much of a problem.

Gas Supply Cut Off.

The city gas supply was cut off yesterday as a precaution against fire. Now our entire cooking is done on a funny little clay stove which I borrowed from my Chinese cook.

We use charcoal in this stove and have laid in a reserve supply, which we keep on the front veranda of our apartment—just in case . . .

Oh! I just ran to the window to watch six bombing planes pass in formation over our building. A welter of heads, foreign and Chinese, suddenly came out from all windows, expecting a heavy bombardment.

The planes passed beyond. We breathed easier.

To go on with what I was saying . . .

The water supply and electric lights are still all right, but I've put in a supply of bottled water for emergencies, together with plenty of candles, two lanterns and a can of kerosene.

Theaters and movies have closed. Trolley lines and motor busses have stopped running. Gasoline for private cars is being conserved jealously.

The danger of being struck by stray pieces of shrapnel from anti-aircraft while walking or riding in the streets keeps us all close to home.

It may be "undeclared" war, but it's a war to destroy one's nerves and try one's soul.

ing vote killed a proposal by Representative Hancock, Democrat, North Carolina, to impose a limit of $4,000 per dwelling unit or $1,000 per room on all housing projects.

$5,000 Per Unit.

Similar restrictions were incorporated by the senate. The house, however, accepted the decision of its banking committee that cost should be held down to the average for similar private construction and in no event exceed $5,000 per unit.

It refused to alter the housing bill's provisions for local contributions toward the cost of dwellings for families of small means.

The senate, meantime, began consideration of the house-approved bill to close loopholes in the tax laws. It delayed a vote until tomorrow after Senator Schwellenbach, Democrat, Washington, protested against the measure's being rushed through "without even a pretense of adequate consideration."

Amendments Gaveled Through.

Vice President Garner previously had gaveled through a series of committee amendments so fast that even senate leaders did not know which had been approved.

Drafted after an investigation by a joint congressional committee, the tax bill is designed to increase federal revenues about $75,000,000 annually by checking the use of personal holding companies, foreign corporations, and multiple trusts to avoid tax liability.

The senate approved without debate four amendments drafted by the finance committee. The are designed to:

1—Exempt oil and gas royalty companies from levies applicable to holding companies.

2—Permit deduction of "reasonable" sums for debt retirement from the taxable income of personal holding companies.

3—Avoid unnecessary expense and inconvenience in the filing of reports by multiple trusts.

4—Bring federal regulations on trusts in line with state laws governing capital increments.

Leaders predicted the bill would be adopted tomorrow with virtually no debate.

It reached the floor after Chairman McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, of the postoffice committee, had succeeded in sidetracking the McCarran air transport bill indefinitely.

WOMAN WRITES OF WAR REACTION

well-stocked shelves of the store were all but empty.

Along with scores of other women, I threw away my prepared list and took what I could get.

As I was leaving the market, I stopped to buy some flea soap for our dog, Scottie. Suddenly, there was a terrific commotion. Somebody called out dramatically, "Air raid!"

Heavy iron shutters were pulled quickly over windows and doorways. This was not to protect the store from bombing but to prevent hysterical inrush of frightened, helpless Chinese humanity, mostly refugees, who were scurrying to safety.

Looking up, we saw the heavens dotted with airplanes, making great puffs of black smoke as each bomb dropped.

Fascinated by Raid.

Anti-aircraft began a stuttering staccato fire which made the sky an inferno. But I was more fascinated than frightened, because it was my baptism of fire.

Strangely, there was no panic among the Chinese clerks and salesmen. One of them continued calmly sweeping the floor.

After an intensive airbombing

come of two recent events—a series of bomb explosions in Lisbon last January and the recent attempt on Premier Oliviera Salazar's life—since the government claimed foreigners were implicated in both events.

LISBON'S RECENT CONFLICTS HAVE DEALT WITH SPAIN

Portugal's diplomatic conflicts within the past year have dealt chiefly with the Spanish situation, Portuguese sympathies having been with the Spanish Insurgent cause.

Portugal was among the last nations to adhere to the 27-nation non-intervention committee, designed to prevent spread of the Spanish conflict to other European nations.

Portugal this summer precipitated collapse of the non-intervention committee's patrol of Spain to keep out foreign volunteers and armaments by abandoning the land patrol of her frontier which borders Spain.

Pact Collapsed.

Italy and Germany previously had withdrawn their warships from the naval patrol of Spain, France lifted the Franco-Spanish patrol by the non-intervention committee representatives, and the plan collapsed.

Britain, in recent weeks has been seeking by compromise with the nations involved to re-establish some form of effective patrol. Czechoslovakia, however, has taken no markedly active part in these deliberations although she is a member of the Spanish non-intervention committee.

London dispatch on March 5 recounted persistent reports that the German minority within Czechoslovakia, possibly aided by German Nazis, was planning an insurrection. There was no confirmation of these reports and no indication of what part Portugal might play in the event of such an outbreak.

Likely Battleground.

Czechoslovakia would, foreign observers and diplomats in London have reasoned, however, be a likely first battleground if Germany and the Soviet Union ever should be involved in combat.

The Portuguese government is modeled after the Italian Fascist plan of a corporate state, headed by Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar. The President is General Antonio Oscar de Fragoso Carmona.

THREE'S A CROWD, BUT FOUR IS O. K. ON A HONEYMOON

Two Atlanta Youths and Brides Stage Double Wedding Trip in Tennessee.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

When Dan Cupid bids hearts, doubled and redoubled, the score is a double honeymoon, and when this happened two Atlanta couples went on their wedding trip together.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bone and Mr. and Mrs. James Spaulding are just back from their bridal tour to Chattanooga, where they stayed at the same hotel, went to dances and shows, had their meals together and returned to Atlanta in the same car.

The unusual matrimonial venture was planned to follow a double wedding which the young couples had planned for next month, but as Mr. Spaulding says:

"Viola and I just decided Thursday to get married and went on up to Marietta. When Lorna and Judson heard we had married they went to Cartersville for their wedding on Sunday and we all met and went to Chattanooga together. Yes, we had hotel rooms next to each other—but not connecting."

Mrs. Bone was, before her marriage, Miss Lorna Doone Marsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Marsh, and Mrs. Spaulding is the former Miss Viola Feldman.

Get Party Apartment.

Last night the two young couples were at the Oak street apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Bone. Said the latter:

"I just love my apartment. We moved in last week. It had to be on Sunday because my husband didn't have to work that day. I would rather have this apartment than any one in Atlanta because I met my husband in this very room two years ago when we were both guests here at a party. When we came back from our wedding trip we saw it advertised and took it right away."

Mr. Bone gazed at his slim blond wife with admiring eyes and said:

"Yes, as soon as Lorna and I found out it was this place we decided that it would be our home. Funny how fate worked around and brought us back here, wasn't it? She is a fine cook, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding are not living together—they can't find an apartment—but true love still runs smooth and they have a date together every night. Both are remaining in their boarding houses, and last night their wedding companions were giving them some tips on housekeeping such as washing dishes, setting the table for two and putting the "leftovers" in the ice box.

First Meal Casualty.

Mrs. Bone was nursing an injured hand, cut while preparing her first meal in her new home. She loves to cook but does not sew. She attended Commercial High school and later went to work and there met her close friend Viola Feldman, and the two began to plan their double weddings. She is a petite blonde with very fair complexion. Her husband is a tall blond, a former student at Tech High and now with the Southern Bell Telephone Company.

Mrs. Spaulding is a former resident of Del Rio, Texas, and after moving to Georgia, attended the Tallulah Falls Industrial school for two years before coming to Atlanta. She went to work and her friendship with Mrs. Bone began.

She is a medium blonde and like her chum likes to cook but frowns at sewing. Her husband is a brunet and is formerly of Waycross and Miami. He has his own business establishment and last night he created quite a disturbance in the little group when he calmly announced he could sew. He and his wife met three years ago.

Last night when they arrived at the Bone apartment they brought the first addition to the family—a six weeks' old puppy.

Plans are now under way for another double honeymoon. This time they plan to go to Florida at the time when they first planned a wedding.

"It will be a real wedding trip this time," they said.

Cupid Bids Hearts --- Doubled --- And Redoubled

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," say two Atlanta brides as they put their husbands to work after the foursome returned from a double wedding trip to Chattanooga. Left to right are James Spaulding, Mrs. Spaulding, Mrs. J. C. Bone and Mr. Bone in the Bone kitchen last night.

KEEP MARINES OUT, ATLANTANS SAY

"poor Chinee;" and that Americans in the war areas in China should evacuate promptly or remain solely on their own responsibility.

"Don't send the marines," seems also to be the predominant warning of Atlantans, anxious to keep the United States from becoming involved in a possible war of serious proportions.

But as for China's ultimate fate at the hands of the Japanese, few had real fear. "China is so big that even if the country is conquered, the Chinese race will absorb the Japanese and China will still be China," was the way several expressed it.

"Americans should leave Shanghai before it is too late," said many. "The United States should evacuate them, but this country should not risk war to protect foreign property in China now."

Symathy for China.

Men and women alike expressed sympathy for China, huge, unwieldly, "poorly equipped for war and with inferior militarists."

Department store executives, clerks, stenographers, laborers, politicans, governmental employes and housewives all joined in condemning Japan for "taking a bite off China" every now and then. Only one man said Japanese domination would better China.

They feel, they said, as they did when powerful Mussolini with modern war methods engulfed struggling Ethiopia and bounced Haile Selassie off his throne.

Express Their Sentiments.

Following are direct quotations from a "cross section" of Atlanta:

Fred L. Beers, chief United States deputy clerk: "I think most wars are fights for material or land gain, the outcome usually depending on financial or material resources. From the historical standpoint the Chinese have ultimately absorbed other countries who have temporarily conquered them or conquered them in part. The Chinese have been conquered for the time being but it is only a question of time until they are Chinese again."

Mrs. Alice Winters, federal clerk: "I am not in favor of either Japan or China, but it seems to me that Japan is going to do away with China. In reality, they are trying to stir up a world war."

H. T. Nichols, assistant United States district attorney: "I don't sympathize with either one, but I would admire China more if she would fight for her rights. I am not sorry for the Chinese."

"No Excuse for War."

"Boisfeuillet Jones, assistant state director of NYA: "There seems to be no excuse for the war in China. Japan as a nation may desire expansion, but to expand at the expense of China seems inconsistent with our ideas of moral right. I certainly hope the United States will withdraw its nationals and stay clear of the fight."

Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby: "I wish that someone would go in there and make Japan behave, because I think that this thing is getting serious, and Japan is doing to China just what Italy did to Ethiopia not so long ago. I don't like the idea of our marines going over there because some of them are bound to get killed and that will start trouble."

Assistant Chief of Police A. J. Holcombe: "I don't think that the United States should become involved, but if some of our people get killed we may have to get into it."

"Need Atlanta Police."

Detective I. P. Jones: "What they need is the Atlanta police force to go over there and straighten things out for them."

Detective Leo Nahlik: "I don't care one way or the other."

Detective J. T. Mitchell: "I wish one of them would lick the other so bad that they'd have to stop fighting."

Captain G. N. Ellis: "I think Japan is in the wrong and that China is justified in defending her country. I wouldn't be surprised a bit if we got into it before it's over. I think that Japan is going to try to get our possessions in the Philippines when they get through with China."

"Should Pay for Land."

Captain G. T. Butler: "I am in favor of China and if Japan wants some of the Chinese land they should pay for it."

Captain B. E. Seabrooks and Joe Bray: "We think the United States should take all her citizens out of the country and let the two nations fight it out by themselves."

Radio Patrolman W. D. Nash: "The Japs have always been harder fighters than the Chinese and should win, but I hope they don't. The Japs, if they come over here, will get something they aren't looking for."

Radio Patrolman E. S. McCray and Bob Holland, of the Traffic office: "We hope that the other nations will have the sense to stay out of all the trouble. We feel confident that America will never get mixed up in anything that doesn't have anything to do with us."

Would Leave in Hurry.

Mrs. Lora E. Davis, who is just completing 19 years of service as a policewoman: "If I was over there I'd be leaving in a hurry, but I'm here in Atlanta and mighty glad of it."

J. H. Vining, clerk of the chief's office: "You can't tell me that those Japs didn't know where they were dropping those bombs."

Charlie Murphy, clerk of the recorder's court: "It looks like a dangerous situation. We should remove our citizens and maintain neutrality at all costs."

She Doesn't Care.

Miss Margaret Barineau, salesgirl for baby clothes: "I'm not very interested in the situation, but if it were nearer home there would be more concern shown by all of us."

Mrs. Alice Watkins, millinery saleswoman: "I am in sympathy with China for I do not think Japan should rule it. As for the Americans there, if they want to come home they should."

Mrs. M. Milsaps, dress saleswoman: "The only interest I have in the situation are the Americans involved. I think they should in all fairness to us here come home."

Should Protect Americans.

Mrs. Florence Turner, hosiery saleswoman: Japan should leave China alone, and America would be safer. The Americans who are now in China should be protected by the government.

Mrs. H. W. Barnett, linen salesgirl: "I haven't been reading much about the war, but I do feel that the Americans should be protected to the extent that they be brought home."

Mrs. Minnie Carmichael, saleswoman for bags and purses: "Bring the American's home."

W. B. Alexander, salesman, men's merchandise: "The Americans should get out and let the Chinese and Japs alone and let the whole matter drop."

Mrs. Nellie Graddick, gloves saleswoman: "The Americans should get out of China and get out in a hurry. I think they deserve the protection of the American government."

"America Should Stay Aloof."

Oscar Strauss Jr., advertising executive: "The most important thing is for America to stay out of this conflict. To send American marines over there would be tragic."

Bill Barthlow, soda fountain clerk: "The Americans should come out and let those Japs and Chinese do what they want to.

Miss Nancy Hill Hopkins, book department saleswoman: "It would take the whole paper to tell what I think of the situation!"

Lamar Burnside, floorwalker: "All the Americans have been warned and those who have not taken heed to the warning should not expect any protection from the government. Japan has no right to tell China what to do."

"China Needs U. S. Friendship."

Harry Brambir, store manager: "China would deem it very unwise to loose America's friendship by disturbing the American people now in China. We have been hearing war rumblings from that section for some time and have heard about war between those two countries for a long time. I would hate to see a war over there as the conflict would bring Russia, Germany and Italy into it. China today is much stronger than five years ago in fighting military strength."

Miss Paul Camp, salesgirl: "I don't think Japan should interfere in China's business. I think the Americans over there should leave and leave in a hurry."

Walter Randolph, shoe store manager: The Americans should get away and let the two Far East nations fight it out between themselves. They are going to fight anyway so why should we become mixed up in it?"

A. M. Dunn, 315 W. Benson St.: I am in sympathy with China. I feel that the Japanese are not justified in seeking Chinese territory. Of course they will get a good deal of it before the war is over. As for America's angle in the war, it would have been an excellent idea if the American people had stayed at home where they belong instead of going to China."

W. L. McConnell, College Park: "I am wondering what will be the effect on the sale in America of Chinese and Japanese commodities as well as American export articles which have found a market in the two countries."

Miss Elizabeth Milner, 820 Yorkshire Road, N. E.: "I am not in favor of war under any conditions and I think the whole thing is disgusting. War only rids a country of its best men, for the ones who do not go are the ones who are not physically able or those who are too old."

"Fighting for Markets."

B. H. Cole, 1546 Richland road, S. W.: "The whole circumstance of the war is unfortunate but the Chinese are gentlemen and it is doubtful if the Japanese are. The whole trouble, of course, is economics, fighting over world markets. The conflict will last possibly a year, but Japan will finally get what it wants since it has superior war facilities and since the Japanese are naturally better fighters. Americans in that country should get out and stay out."

R. E. Barnes, 1669 Westwood Avenue, N. E.: "Japan, due to China's limited war equipment, will win, unless some other country intervenes. I do feel that Americans have a perfect right to be in that country. We Americans are more interested in the Chinese winning the war than the Japanese, because China is a better market for our exports."

"Yanks Take Chances."

B. E. Geeslin, Stenographer— "I believe that Japan will win. But whatever happens America should stay out of it. It was too bad that American citizens were killed in Shanghai, but America as a whole should not suffer in any way for a few lives. They take their own chances when they go into another country."

M. A. Crawford, 844 Beecher street, S. W.: "Personally, I wish the Chinese would go over and kill off all the Japanese and end the whole thing. It has been going on too long, anyway. Uncle Sam ought to keep American citizens out of those two countries."

Miss Rhema Aderhold, 1104 East Confederate Avenue, S. E.: "I am not in sympathy with Japan for I think its purposes are entirely selfish, but I do not believe there should be any interference from other countries. I think they should mind their own business."

Judge John D. Humphries, Fulton superior court judge: "My sympathies are decidedly with the Chinese and always have been since the Japs first invaded China and took Manchuria. Japan's militaristic and aggressive policies furnish a threat to the peace of the world."

Sees War With Japan.

Mrs. J. D. Frazier, deputy clerk in the county tax receiver's office: "Americans ought to stay at home and see America first. I believe that we are going to get in a war with Japan inside another year if something isn't done, but I can't say that I have much sympathy for Japanese or Chinese."

Lewis Jones, chief clerk in the solicitor general's office: "The sooner Japan is suppressed the better it is going to be for the peace of the world. Japanese now consider it a passport to heaven if they die for their country. My sympathies are with China, but those Americans over there are just too far away from 'Five Points'—they ought to stay at home."

Miss Lucille Miles, calendar clerk in Fulton municipal court: "I've only had time to read the headlines and glance at the pictures, and it all looks like a pretty horrible mess to me. I really have no sympathy one way or the other yet."

"Protect Americans."

Jesse Draper, Atlanta realtor: "My sympathies are with the Chinese, of course. They are becoming accustomed to progress. Americans have $100,000,000 invested in China and our country ought to protect this as far as possible by diplomatic means."

Mayor Hartsfield: "I don't want to be quoted."

Riley Elder, municipal revenue collector: "The Japanese are invading China just like Mussolini did to Ethiopia. I am sorry for the Chinese. The United States should stay out of it."

Alderman Ed Gilliam: "Nothing should be done to risk war. I hope the United States will avoid becoming involved in any international complications. My sympathies are with China."

Mrs. Alline Huber, secretary to City Clerk Joe L. Richardson: "I am for China. And I think if Americans remain in Shanghai they should do so at their own risk."

Miss Grace West, clerk in the city purchasing agent's office: "China has my sympathy."

"Strong for China."

C. E. Hartsfield, brother of the mayor: "I'm strong for China. The Chinese are an honest race. But if China was dominated by Japan, think what a menace it would be to the rest of the world."

H. J. Cates, head of the city sanitary department: "Americans should be brought out of China or remain on their own responsibility. If they've made investments over there they have to protect, the United States should not be drawn into war because of it. I sympathize with the Chinese."

MAYOR EXHAUSTED, TO TAKE VACATION

Exhausted from overwork, Mayor Hartsfield this morning will begin a short vacation from his official duties, he announced yesterday.

Where he is going and how long he will be gone was not revealed. "I'm going to rest," he said. "Alderman I. Gloer Hailey will act in my place as mayor pro tem., and the affairs of the office will be turned over to my executive secretary, Joe Gregg."

The mayor signed all papers passed by council Monday. It was said he will be back in his office within a week.

CLOUDY BUT HOT DAY FORECAST FOR ATLANTA

Partly cloudy today with temperature extremes ranging between 72 and 92 degrees was the prediction of Weatherman Mindling for Atlanta and vicinity today.

Although fair weather still prevails over most of the South Atlantic states, possibly scattered showers in the extreme south portion of the state near the coast may be expected today, the Weather Bureau announced.

The forecaster said that fairly high temperatures are general over the country so that no change can be anticipated immediately.

HARVARD EX-PREXY RULED OFF ROADS

President-Emeritus, 80, Loses License.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—(UP)—President-emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell, 80, of Harvard University, was ruled off the road today following investigation of two automobile accidents, in one of which he suffered nose and wrist fractures.

Lowell's license was suspended by Motor Vehicle Registrar Goodwin, who said the veteran educator had accepted responsibility in both accidents.

Asked when the license would be restored, Goodwin said:

"I don't think it ever will be, and I don't think Professor Lowell wants to drive again."

STIFF OPPOSITION FORMS AGAINST NEW REPEAL MOVE

Hope of Wets Rests on Measure To Tax Liquor for State Revenue.

By the Associated Press.

Talk of prohibition repeal persisted in some legislative circles yesterday, but several senators and representatives predicted stiff opposition in the special fall assembly session if a move was made in that direction.

On June 8 Georgians decided by more than 8,000 votes to retain the state's 22-year-old prohibition law.

Governor Rivers remained silent on the liquor question. Repeal might be considered, however, as a tax measure.

The specific purpose of the special session will be to revise the state's tax system.

Outright legislative repeal was beaten in the house at the last regular session. Repeal was also beaten in a state-wide referendum two years ago.

Principal hope of the wets was a proposal of David S. Atkinson, Rivers' administration floor leader in the senate, for the operation of state liquor stores in wet counties.

'Bone Dry' Bloc.

A poll of legislators showed some in favor of this proposal, others advocating outright repeal. Opposed to them was a bloc of "bone drys."

Those advocating outright repeal included: Representative U. T. Houze, Lowndes county; Senator J. P. Horne, Leesburg; Representative J. M. Defoor, McIntosh county; Senator Jeff A. Pope, Cairo; Representative M. L. Dunn Jr., Pike county; and Representative Frank C. Gross, Stephens county.

Representative J. K. Whaley, opposed to outright repeal, said he would favor legalization of liquor in wet counties.

"The wet counties desiring liquor have it anyway," he said.

Opposed to Repeal.

Those opposed to repeal included: Senator C. A. Holmes, Culloden; Representative W. R. Blease, Brooks county; Representative John C. Parker, Colquitt county; Representative F. S. Batchelor, Putnam county; Representative W. G. Milam, Spalding; Senator Leon L. Peebles, Gibson; Representative J. Scott Davis, Floyd; Representative E. L. Jones, Dodge; Representative J. P. Etheridge, Houston; Representative H. T. Walton, Stewart; Representative W. M. Rawlins, Ben Hill.

Representative C. A. Manry, Calhoun; Representative W. B. Cochran, Thomas; Senator L. J. Brock, Carrollton; Senator W. D. Aultman, Byron; Representative Cleveland Rees, Webster; Representative J. Verlyn Booth, Barrow; Representative J. B. Jackson, Habersham; Senator Paul L. Lindsay, Decatur; Representative W. G. Todd, Glascock; Representative A. A. Marshall, Macon; Senator George Allen, Toccoa; Senator J. B. Hardman, Commerce; Representative W. W. Larsen Jr., Laurens; and Representative Wallace E. Harrell, Brooks.

Mail Fraud Trial Goes to Jury Today

Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood announced yesterday that the Kopald-Quinn mail fraud and securities case will go to the jury this morning.

The case was scheduled to reach the jury yesterday but arguments of defense counsel on motions for directed verdicts consumed the day. The jury was dismissed until 10 o'clock this morning.

"I've listened to about 14 days of argument, and I've heard very little new this morning," Judge Underwood said as he warned counsel that he would not listen to another word of argument or receive another line of written memoranda after 2 o'clock yesterday.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR JOSEPH BULLARD

Funeral services for Joseph H. Bullard, 80-year-old retired railroad conductor, were held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the chapel of Brandon-Bond-Condon. The Rev. J. C. Boyd officiated, with burial in West View cemetery.

Mr. Bullard died Tuesday at his residence, 633 Delmar avenue, S. E. He had lived in Atlanta for more than 45 years, being a railroad conductor for many years until his retirement 18 years ago.

RICHMOND MAY HALT WELFARE ACTIVITIES

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP) The Richmond county commission has voted to turn welfare administration back to the state unless the state welfare department carries out what the commission termed its obligations under Georgia's social security laws.

The action was taken yesterday after reading of a letter from Lamar Murdaugh, state welfare director, asking the county to continue to pay total administrative costs until the end of the present year.

GEORGIA COTTON HURT BY TOO MUCH RAIN

The Weather Bureau reported yesterday Georgia's cotton crop fared poorly last week with too much rain and too little sunshine. Boll weevil activity increased and farmers reported shedding and rotting bolls.

Nevertheless the rain aided the growth of corn, vegetables and all minor crops and pastures.

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 19, 1937.

THE NEW ASSOCIATE JUSTICE

Confirmation by the senate of Hugo Black, of Alabama, as associate justice of the United States supreme court adds to that high tribunal a member of marked liberalism. He has been an unwavering supporter of the New Deal since that policy dawned upon the national scene and his entire career has been one of modernism.

Unquestionably, the spirited opposition which Senator Black's nomination received in the senate reflected the feeling of a large portion of the American people. His unimpressive legal background, his flair for prosecution rather than judicial calm, and his often revealed willingness to resort to ruthlessness and brutal attack to gain his point, naturally brought widespread concern as to his fitness for a place on a tribunal, the members of which should be, and almost without exception since the court's existence have been, chosen on the basis of profound legal knowledge and a far-sighted and fundamentally fair sense of justice.

Senator Black has enjoyed the confidence of a large portion of Alabama's electorate. His career, spent chiefly in the role of prosecutor, has been marked by brilliant aggressiveness and, while he has but rarely displayed mercy toward his opponents, his alertness of mind has never been questioned.

The heated opposition to the Alabaman in the senate set no precedent. Other nominations to that tribunal have been followed by bitter fights against confirmation. Chief Justice Hughes' appointment was received with trepidation by many, while the fight on confirmation of Justice Brandeis lasted two months. Yet both the chief justice and Justice Brandeis have made outstanding members of the court.

Much of the opposition to Black has come from his own state. Editorials in Alabama papers have cited his record in his own state as evidence that he is not suited to the supreme judicial toga. Yet none deny that Senator Black has an ability that, if properly developed and applied, will cause him to become a valuable member of the court. He is youthful for a supreme court justice, being only 51. He will be, on the high tribunal, associated with eight great exponents of constitutional law, of more seasoned age and experience, and it is inevitable that their influence will have much to do with moulding his future course.

When Senator Black becomes Mr. Justice Black he will enter upon a new environment. A patriotic sense of duty and pride in the record he inscribes will impel him to give of his best intelligence and his best judgment to the problems that come before him.

While there is a natural and widespread regret that the President did not select for this appointment one of the many judges and lawyers in the south better equipped by temperament and training for a supreme court seat, it will be in keeping with the history of other liberal court appointees that Senator Black will adapt himself to his new environment and conduct himself in ways fully in accord with the dignity of the court and the spirit of its deliberations.

FORBIDDEN FRUITS OF ART

Adolf Hitler some weeks ago elevated himself to a new pinnacle of infallibility when he appointed himself a committee of one to differentiate between what is worthy in modern art and what is unfit for good German eyes to observe.

Der Fuehrer, announcing that in the future "degenerate" modern art would not be permitted in Germany, said he would choose what was "easy to comprehend" and fit to hang in the New House of German Art in Munich. "Understanding of so great affairs is not given to everyone," he modestly explained.

Now the Hitler-approved paintings have been hung. But he made one vital error. He permitted the rejected canvases to be hung in another building. This was to serve as a sort of chamber of horrors, demonstrating to good German art lovers the type of thing they must not approve.

Now comes the sad moral of Herr Hitler's adventure in the realms of art.

Reports declare that the crowds which have thronged the exhibit of forbidden art far outnumber those which have dutifully gazed upon the main show. Germans and visitors alike display many times the interest in those paintings Hitler brands unfit as they do in the approved collection.

Even so all-knowing a seer as Der Fuehrer should understand that curiosity and the lure of forbidden fruit is far more powerful than submissive submission to regimentation, in art or anything else.

Where he made his error was in permitting the art on which the Hitler thumb had turned down to be shown at all. Now it will doubtless go into the wider channels of picture distribution enhanced by the fictitious publicity value unwittingly bestowed by the self-appointed critic of German art.

LINDSEY HOPKINS

The death of Lindsey Hopkins removes one of Atlanta's best known citizens.

Possibly no other resident of this city has been as widely known in financial circles throughout the country. From a modest beginning in the business world, he built, as a result of wise and constructive policies in trade and finance, one of the south's largest fortunes. His investments and various activities made him a figure in business and finance from New York to Miami. His sound advice and helpful cooperation in public as well as business affairs will be especially missed in Atlanta and in Miami, in which city he had spent much of his time during recent years.

Although largely avoiding the limelight of public attention, Mr. Hopkins' gifts and efforts in the public welfare were widespread and generous. During this year alone in Atlanta he gave property in excess of $100,000 to Emory University, the Good Samaritan Clinic and the Peachtree Christian church.

He played an important part in the development of Atlanta as the air hub of the southeast and one of the great aviation centers of the country. For more than 25 years he was an aviation industrialist, his interest in flying dating back to 1911 when he was the first Atlantan to post an air mail letter.

Mr. Hopkins was in many ways a helpful citizen and his death is a distinct loss to the community.

THE NEED FOR DRIVERS' TESTS

Georgia, soon to inaugurate a system of driver licensing for all motorists of the state, may catch a foreglimpse of the need for the plan by examining the experience of Kansas, just now in the first year of operation of a similar law.

In the midwestern state the law provided that drivers with records clear of accident or arrest for serious traffic offenses, should automatically receive their licenses. Examinations were required only for admittedly poor drivers, persons over 70 years of age, those with bad records and beginners.

During the first month only, 607 applicants from this comparatively small group were refused licenses. This means that, without the new law, these 607 individual sources of danger would have been free to ride the highways, carrying the menace of injury and death to everyone who came within their range.

Reasons for rejection of the 607 applications are set forth as follows:

For failure to understand the rules of the road, 194. This group can learn and try again. For simple inability to drive, 128. These, too, can learn. For such complete illiteracy they couldn't read the road signs, 60. For defective vision, 145.

With 607 potential drivers of death discovered in one month among Kansas' 553,106 automobile registrations, how many will Georgia find when this state starts driver-examinations among the manipulators of the 394,096 autos registered, according to 1935 figures.

WITH SKEPTICAL EYE

Federal taxpayers have received with mixed emotion the report that the Treasury Department plans a new "simplification" of federal income tax forms. There is hope that the announcement may presage a day when the average man of average education will be able to understand the blanks on which he lays his financial soul bare for the edification of the income tax officials.

Yet, remembering the outcome of earlier efforts to "simplify" these forms, there is fear lest the present attempt results, as have the past, in further complication of a thing already involved beyond ordinary understanding.

It is rumored by a few among the older taxpayers, the "I remember when" boys, that, once upon a time, income tax forms were so free of complexity almost any intelligent man could fill his out alone, without fear of future reprisal from the examiners, re-examiners, reviewers and post-reviewers. That period, if it ever existed, was not long drawn.

For then started the era of "simplification" with the result, after a series of such reforms, that today none save mathematical presdigitateurs dare tackle the returns without the aid either of a tax expert or assistant in the tax return office. Such aid at least furnishes an alibi when the future investigator takes the taxpayer to task for some real or fancied error in his returns of five or eight years before.

There is, as said, hope in the collective taxpaying breast. But there is a far greater fear. For, if new "simplifications" follow the trail blazed by the old, the day is not far distant when no two treasury officials themselves will be able to interpret any return and arrive at the same conclusion.

Ostensibly to get the average reaction, a Hollywood ace director reads all his new scripts to a barber. It sounds like revenge.

The wonders of modern transportation never cease. You can go to bed these nights in North China and wake up in west Japan.

A MONUMENT TO THE MULE

(From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

The Italians, and the Romans before them, have been putting up monuments all over their peninsula for more than 20 centuries, but they have just got around to honoring one hero and friend of man. It's quite all right, however, for this particular hero—the mule—thrives on neglect and abuse. And he has all the heroic qualities to which monuments are customarily dedicated: determination, ferocity, ruggedness, incorruptible character.

It was probably the Ethiopian campaign that made Italians appreciate the mule, and Missouri hybrids had an important part in the enlightening process. Mussolini's soldiers found Ethiopia a country of steaming swamps, poisonous insects and dizzy heights. Just to illustrate what a superlatively deadly place it was, 20 per cent of the American mules died after arrival there. But the remainder speedily became acclimated and their hostlers were convinced, it was reported, that they would "live forever."

Missourians already know all about the mule's indestructibility, so no monument is necessary here. But it's news to the Italians, and so they have put the new-found hero on a pedestal in Rome.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

INSIDE STORY WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Senators with X-ray eyes who have been looking through the President's appointment of their colleague to the supreme bench, assert they have discovered the original black man in the political woodpile.

It is none other than Senator La Follette, who is credited with presenting some very effective arguments for the Alabama senator when young Bob took his first presidential yacht ride after the defeat of the supreme court bill.

The story is that the supreme court bill, for which Senator Black battled so valiantly, wasn't the reason for his choice. It was, indirectly, his fight for the wages and hours legislation, or rather the effect that fight might have had on his constituency.

Senator La Follette is supposed to have expounded on that subject thoroughly in the presidental presence, pointing out that, while Mr. Black and his attractive wife were popular in Birmingham, just about 90 per cent of the prominent people thereabouts were quite ready to wipe him off the slate if they could.

When the wages and hours measure was fully aired, it proved to be the last straw and it confirmed the direction in which the cyclone was about to blow.

La Follette, the story proceeds, felt that Black was too valuable a factor in the fight for liberalism to be dropped just when the conservative forces were beating down measures like the labor standards bill. On the bench, he would be a permanent fixture, not subject to the fickle fancies of the voter.

THAT SERENE SILENCE It was remarked by some that, when the battle raged heaviest over the confirmation of Senator Black, certain senators who might well have cast a few stones remained serenely silent.

Explanation: In the course of the various investigations which the Alabaman has conducted, he has turned up considerable material involving some of his colleagues which wouldn't have looked too good to the dear public and which he neither mentioned nor forgot. Had these colleagues launched their shafts at him, he had quite as much to give in return.

RETORT IMPROPER Some congressmen have grown a little sensitive about adjournment. There has been a lot of talk about the "long vacations" of members of congress, as compared with those usually enjoyed by mere mortals.

In response to these digs, there have been threats to read into the record the vacation schedules of some of the big industrial concerns.

Three large corporations, supposed to be "typical," allow two weeks' vacation to employes who have been in their service five years. Others vary from the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Company's policy of granting two weeks after a year's employment, to Weirton Steel, at the other end of the rainbow, which grants two days for those who have been employed a year, six days for those with five to ten years' service, and ten days for those who have stuck more than 15 years.

FARMERS ARE IRKED Irate farmers took a long look at an elaborate Treasury document, printed expressly for the President and congress, and grew hotter under the collar. It is a 379-page book, minutely indexed, and it shows just where every dollar of relief expenditures goes. This tale-telling tome is the work of the highly efficient division of accounts and deposits of the Treasury.

What irked the farmers and their friends was the figure $1,734,614,048, the total allocation of relief expenditures to date in three industrial states, New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, making up about 25 per cent of the grand total for all states, which amounted to over six billions.

New York state alone received, during the last two years, $900,000,000, out of which WPA in New York city spent over $400,000,000 under the sponsorship of various agencies of the city, state and federal governments.

The Treasury document came out about the time the papers carried side by side two steps taken by the house appropriations committee. One turned down a $20,000,000 expenditure to aid tenant farmers (already authorized by congress), and the other voted over $10,000,000 for the Grand Central postoffice in New York (for which the federal government was already obligated) and a $3,000,000 contribution to the New York World's Fair.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

In youth we dream so many things,
So lovely, so divine;
Though life stern disillusion brings,
Dream memories are mine.

America's First Kidnaping Victim.

The first baby born of English parents in North America was, as most everyone knows, Virginia Dare. There is, however, a popular misconception about the young lady.

Various modern products have adopted the name "Virginia Dare" as their brand and, in practically every case, have adorned their labels with pictures of a most attractive young lady, apparently in her teens or early twenties. And the general reaction has been to picture this young lady as the original Virginia Dare.

Now, this is not true. For Virginia Dare was, probably, the first baby victim of kidnapers in America. She disappeared before her third birthday and, from that day to this, has never been traced. The mystery of her later life, if any, is just as much a mystery as it was in 1590, when her disappearance was discovered.

Of course, Indians must have been the kidnapers. They took with them, not only Virginia, but her parents and the entire group which formed the English colony on Roanoke Island, Virginia. The baby's grandfather, Governor White, had been to England seeking reinforcements for the colony and when he returned, in 1590, found only the weed-covered, abandoned homes and log fort. Not a living being was there and the only clue was the word "Croatoan," cut into a post beside the gate.

Unlucky Location.

Roanoke Island seems to have been an unlucky location for those early colonies. In 1586 fifteen men were left there to hold the fort.

One year later the more famous colony, sent by Sir Walter Raleigh to establish a little spot of England in the west, came to pick up the original 15 and go on to the Chesapeake Bay region. But there was no trace of the 15 and the new colonists made what turned out to be a fatal mistake by staying there.

Had they followed original plans they might have started the first permanent English settlement at Jamestown, which actually came 20 years later.

But they stayed at Roanoke Island. The baby Virginia was born on August 18, 1587. Her grandfather, Governor White, sailed for England seeking more colonists. He returned in 1590 and the colony had gone. It was as though they had faded into the air. No definite clue to their fate was ever found, though some scientists claim that they may have been ancestors of a tribe of exceptionally light-skinned Indians later found to the south.

Celebrating The Anniversary.

They have been staging elaborate programs to celebrate the 350th anniversary of Baby Virginia's birth at Roanoke Island this year. They have restored and reproduced the old log fort and the little homes of that tragic colony.

The National Geographic Society, in a recent bulletin, describes those primitive buildings:

"'High palisades of great trees, very fort-like,' surround the settlement site with the futile protection of stout brown juniper logs, with crude blockhouses guarding the wall's corners and flanking the heavy gate. Within the enclosure stand small, thatched-roof cabins, built of juniper logs much as children build flimsy little cubes of match stems.

"Of the same match-stem style of architecture, is the little log church. Corners of the walls and of the steeple, primitive but proud, are marked by lines of crisscrossed log ends. Rafters and windows are pure backwoods Gothic: no arches, but simple peaks formed where two logs meet at an angle. Pews are backless wooden benches, and all the churchly furniture about the altar is hewn from wood."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, August 19, 1912:

"Quick appreciation greeted the work of Herbert Dittler, violinist, in the Sunday afternoon organ recital, when he assisted Dr. Percy J. Starnes, city organist, in a program of unusual beauty."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, August 19, 1887:

"John Murphy, who drives Maud S, is confident that he can put her over a mile in 2:06 if Mr. Bonner will allow him to do so. The mare trotted a mile in 2:10 1-2 last Saturday, and didn't half try."

Charles VII of France.

Charles VII, the prince whom Jeanne d'Arc had made king of France 32 years before, starved to death at 58 on July 22, 1461. He so feared being poisoned by his son and heir that abstinence from food became an obsession, and he died of malnutrition.

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

'Snap' Job For Jimmy NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—It is a fine thing that the New York Transit Commission has done in appointing Jimmy Walker assistant counsel at $12,000 a year, with the probability that, in a short time, he will receive from a grateful public a pension of from $12,000 to $16,000 a year exempt from the federal income tax.

Mr. Walker served his people faithfully day and night, but mostly at night, for many years, and it may be remembered that his resignation, under fire, was prompted not by any sense of guilt nor fear of any revelation that might have developed in a complete investigation, but by honest indignation over the denial of a defendant's rights in a hearing. By coincidence, it was Mr. Walker's own rights which seemed to him to be denied, but only an enemy of uncommonly sordid mind would think that a man of Mr. Walker's high character would put his own rights above those of any other defendant.

It was his defense of the rights of all defendants, for which he had contended tirelessly for many years, particularly in the Central Park Casino after midnight, that Mr. Walker gave up his $40,000 a year job as mayor of New York and went to spend five years grieving over injustices as an abstract proposition.

His return to the public service after seven years' absence will be a matter of great joy to all who remember the fine zeal for official duty, the scrupulous conscience and the alertness to detect and rebuke dishonesty in office which characterized his service as mayor.

It will revive memories of the fine Tammany jurists who sat upon the bench in his time, particularly of the judge who also resigned in some disgust over the denial of a defendant's rights, to-wit, his own, and who later was quietly restored to duty in another department so that he, too, might qualify for a pension.

Those Good Old Days It will bring back memories of Tammany sheriffs and clerks so frugal that they were able to save out of their comparatively modest pay, or to borrow without notes or other evidence of indebtedness, enormous sums of money which they sometimes kept in marvelous tin boxes.

Mr. Walker's return to office at $12,000, and his eventual receipt of a tax-exempt pension of from $12,000 to $16,000 a year, will, in short, inspire all citizens of any decency with a new faith in the public service, and particularly in Tammany Hall, whose standards of honesty in office he always personified, especially after hours.

It seems almost enough to guarantee the election of old Doc Royal S. Copeland, the Tammany senator who has so often and so worthily been called the yardstick of mediocrity, to succed Fiorello La Guardia as mayor of the city which Jimmy Walker loved so well that he made himself a scourge to thieves in office and a model of citizenship for all.

Everybody remembers what a scourge to thieves and model of citizenship Jimmy was in his time, and yet, such is the public ingratitude, there are many now who do not think he went quite far enough in harassing grafters or that he set the best example in his own conduct.

Public Service Thankless Task Well, it is a thankless task, the public service, and all a man gets out of it after many years of service and a cumulative cash contribution of $10,000 to the pension fund, is a paltry $12,000 to $16,000 a year, exempt from the income tax, as long as he lives.

Mr. Walker should get at least double the pension, considering that he did so much of his work at night around the Central Park Casino and in Florida and California and in suburban mansions where a man could really concentrate on public affairs.

It is a lucky thing that Mr. Walker is available now for the $12,000 a year legal job with the transit commission, because, as everyone knows, there are practically no good lawyers to be had these days to perform the duties of his new position. If he hadn't just happened to be available it might have been necessary to leave the task undone for lack of a lawyer with sufficient ability and proven character to get it done right.

You have to get just the right combination of qualities in these positions, and the greatest of these is character, preferably of the kind which Jimmy Walker demonstrated as mayor of New York, and which Samuel Seabury, to his eternal credit, made famous to a public which otherwise might never have known what sort of a man he was.

Voyage of Pilgrims.

The Pilgrims started for America July 22, 1620—from the Netherlands, in the Speedwell. Leakiness of the 60-ton ship caused them to turn back to England and change to the Mayflower. The migration had been arranged by Rev. John Robinson, 45. But this founder of Plymouth colony never saw America.

Candles Made a Satisfactory Light For Those Who Knew Nothing Better

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

At this season of the year, in homes that have no interest in books, an age-old argument is resumed by the head of the house and Junior.

Junior is told, with more hope than authority, that he must go on and finish high school—at least. He is shrewdly urged not to give up—not to let it lick him.

And he answers as countless other boys of his age have answered: "Aw, I'm not letting anything lick me. I just don't see any sense in going on to school when I don't like it."

He is telling the truth. He doesn't see any sense in it. And the fault is not his, but Nature's. It is the rule, perhaps a kindly one, that lack of knowledge makes us incapable of realizing its worth. Ignorance is always complacent, for it unwittingly encloses itself with a wall and thinks there is nothing beyond it.

An illiterate hill-billy, having fetched a carved-up neighbor to a low-country doctor for sewing and general repairs, looks on with growing impatience as the doctor and his nurse prepare antiseptics and sterilize the tools of their trade. This hocus pocus seems a waste of time, and at last he growls: "Go on and sew him up. I don't see any sense in that monkey business."

Why does he see no sense it it, Junior?

Because he never has heard of the deadly streptococcus and his kin. His ignorance makes wisdom seem folly.

Whenever you see sane and successful people doing something that doesn't make sense, you have found another evidence of your ignorance. Scarcely anything done in the laboratory of a great scientist would seem sensible to a Hottentot.

You can't see any sense in getting more education because you haven't had experience enough to know what it means. It means the difference between possible success and common labor. You hear that certain men won success without education, but it isn't true. The successful ones got an education in school or they dug it out by themselves—and getting it in school is much easier. If you haven't enough of what it takes to get it the easier way, you certainly haven't enough to get it the hard way.

And you are wrong, Junior, when you say you aren't letting it lick you but merely quitting because you see no sense in it.

That argument would excuse the game rooster that turns and runs. He isn't licked. He just doesn't see any sense in facing a fellow who treats him so rough.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

" 'The time has come,' the walrus said,
'To talk of many things,
Of ships and shoes and sealing wax,
And cabbages and kings.' "

The price of eggs was not on the walrus' list of many things, but for the last few years talk has run to little else. Some of us, as a result of the economic talk which the depression made so necessary, may never again be able to speak with heartfelt interest of ships and cabbages and the happy like. But all of us should try, it seems to this column. All of us should make a point of ignoring the price of eggs and other dull economic questions now, whenever it is reasonably safe to do so. We should consider the walrus and be wise.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Harvey, of Troy, Ala., wants to start another "Return-a-Borrowed-Book-Week" and offers us lines from Carolyn Wells for a starter:

Editor Ball, of the Charleston News and Courier, proposes for his state a political organization of voters "who are not holders of office or candidates for office." Existing political parties and organizations are controlled or directed almost exclusively, he points out, "by persons who are or want to be in government's pay. . . . They want the status quo preserved. Their livings and their ambitions are wrapped up in it." He seeks an association of men and women who care enough about the government of their state and nation to do something about it without thought of personal reward.

This is a fine idea and worth trying everywhere, it seems to us. In a smaller way than Editor Ball proposes, such organizations are already in existence in many cities and states—groups of intelligent, public-spirited citizens devoting themselves to the problem and betterment of their government with no thought for any personal return. To enlarge these groups and advertise their efforts would be a step towards the improvement of political process which the famous South Carolina editor has in mind.

But the sum total of citizens willing to give time and energy systematically to the cause of good government can probably never be very large. The more fundamental solution of the problem would seem to be not the making of politics less professional, but the making of it more professional. In other words, the development of a real civil service such as has been created in England—and a sufficient increase in the salaries of office holders to bring more of tradition to the holding of office.

You can count on patriotism and civic-mindedness to do much in occasional public crises, but for the day to day routine of government you can count only on enlightenment in self interest, it seems to us. If public servants can be made to feel that their success will depend upon their public serving, the public may hope some day really to be served.

Anent the pronunciation of St. Augustine, the college of that name at Raleigh, N. C., is pronounced with the accent on the second rather than the first syllable, we are reminded by J. B. Saunders, of Tuscaloosa, Ala. "Many who pronounce it as the Florida city is pronounced do not know that the Florida one is wrong," he writes. "The Bishop of Hippo from whom the name comes was pronounced 'St. Augoostine.'" Well, we have been advised that St. Augustine, Fla., is about to do a lot of restoring but we have not heard that the bishop is going to be restored to his proper pronunciation there.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Dr. Charles W. Daniel, for many years pastor of the First Baptist church of Atlanta, and now happily situated in his native state as pastor of the First Baptist church of Eldorado, Ark., is in Atlanta with Mrs. Daniel for the month of August, visiting their daughter and their many friends in the Georgia capital.

"Have you heard the one," Dr. Daniel was saying the other morning, "about the old mountain preacher who was lecturing his young ministerial brother? It seems that the young preacher was inclined to verbosity at the expense of the congregation's patience, and the old preacher was trying to save him from a possible loss of some of his hearers.

" 'Here's my idea about it,' said the old preacher. 'When you get through with what you've got to say, quit. If the congregation get's through before you do, quit anyway. And, by the way, while I'm giving you all this free advice for nothing, let me suggest to you as a general principle that when it rains, let it rain.' "

And then Dr. Daniel laughed as only he can laugh—all the way down, you know. Which was his way of replying to a comment I had made that he was one of the few men I had ever known who never did seem to get in a hurry nor to worry about things unnecessarily. He is an exceptional illustration of that rare and excellent quality of character so much to be desired in all people. I am sure that is one reason why he is the picture of health at 63 and after 41 years of unbroken ministry in several of the largest churches of the south.

He knows how to work hard and loves it, and he knows how to play and loves it, and he knows what it is to 'seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness" and is an inspiring example of having "all these other things added unto you." Atlanta and Georgia and the southeast rejoice to have Dr. and Mrs. Daniel back in our midst for these days of their vacation, and we heartily congratulate Eldorado and all Arkansas in having them in these ripe and maturing years of their illustrious ministry.

GENERAL BARTOW MEMORIAL READY

Hundreds To Participate in Exercises at Old Stephens Home.

Gathering at historic Liberty Hall, home of Alexander H. Stephens, Confederate vice president at Crawfordville, several hundred Georgians will witness the dedication of the General Francis S. Bartow room next Friday afternoon by the Georgia division of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Privilege of naming the room was given the organization in recognition of the money it contributed to restoring the home as a memorial. The work of restoration is under the control of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, which plans to refurnish it as it was in Stephen's lifetime.

General Bartow, after whom the room is to be named, was reputedly the first Confederate officer to be killed in the War Between the States, falling at the first Battle of Manassas.

Exercises are under the direction of Judge Oswell Eve, of Augusta, state commander of the S. C. V., and McWhorter Milner, of Atlanta, commander of the Department of Tennessee. Dedicatory address will be delivered by Dr. William R. Dancy, of Savannah, past commander of the organization.

Other speakers will be Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta; Judge Hawes Cloud, of Crawfordville; Mrs. Clyde Hunt, of Thomson; Judge Eve and Mrs. Horace M. Holden.

Several years ago the state took over the home and 12-acre grounds. The residence has been completely restored and the property enlarged to 200 acres.

LEGAL TEST OPENS TO BLOCK BLACK

Court Fight Imminent as Jews and Catholics Praise Alabama Senator.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A former federal judge sought today to have the supreme court itself keep Senator Black off its bench.

Albert Levitt, who served as judge in the Virgin Islands, asked the high court for permission to file a petition against Black. The petition asks the court to require Black to show cause why he should be permitted to serve as an associate justice.

Levitt, after leaving the Virgin Islands, was made a special assistant to Attorney General Cummings but resigned last month. He had incurred the displeasure of Cummings by appearing before a senate committee to oppose the appointment of Lawrence W. Cramer as governor of the Virgin Islands.

Echoes of yesterday's debate over the confirmation of Black were heard in the senate today. Black's colleague, Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, read to the senate expressions from Jewish, Catholic and negro residents of Alabama and interpreted the messages as answers to charges that Black was a sympathizer of the Ku Klux Klan.

Governor Sees No Trouble.

Lamar Murdaugh, Georgia welfare director, said he had heard nothing from Augusta regarding the commission's action and Governor Rivers said he did not construe it "as an evidence of lack of co-operation." The Governor added:

"I regret a misunderstanding has come up, but I am sure that Richmond county, the welfare department and the federal government will be able to adjust this matter."

Murdaugh expressed the belief that a county levy of one and one-fourth mills would cover the cost of each county's contribution for social security disbursements.

The state provides 40 per cent of the total benefit pay roll of $6,000,000 while counties provide 10 per cent matching federal allotment.

The state department's tabulation of funds each county must raise include:

Baldwin $4,740; Bibb $15,900; Chatham $21,720; Clarke $5,250; Cobb $7,319.92; Colquitt $6,300; Crisp $3,600.08; DeKalb $14,520; Dougherty $4,619.92; Fulton $69,178.72; Glynn $4,020; Laurens $6,720; Mitchell $4,860; Muscogee $11,880.08; Richmond $15,060; Sumter $5,520.08; Thomas $6,720; Tift $3,300; Troup $7,560.08; Ware $5,460.

Funds for public assistance are allocated to each county on a basis of the relation of the county's population to the state's population.

GOV. GRAVES, WIFE SILENT ON SENATE

was just going to Indianapolis by way of Washigton "to attend to a little business."

On the other hand, Eastern Air Line officials said that their orders were to make a special stop in Montgomery to "pick up Governor Graves and Black appointee." Montgomery is an unscheduled stop for the New Orleans-Atlant aEastern Air liner.

Both the Governor and Mrs. Graves were in high spirits as they walked down the runway at Candler field yesterday. And they were equally as noncommital regarding Mrs. Graves' senatorial appointment—forecast by authoritative administration sources in Montgomery as "sure, just as soon as Black formally resigns."

One source close to the administration predicted "action by 3 o'clock tomorrow."

Meanwhile Governor Graves asserted that there was no special significance to his wife's accompanying him on the trip.

"She goes with me everywhere," he said.

But Mrs. Graves told Downing Musgrove—on hand to greet the Governor and first lady for Governor Rivers—that the trip had been planned after the Governor had called Washington.

Parries Questions.

"Boys, I don't know that there is so much to this," she laughed as she agreeably posed for photographers. Like the Governor, Mrs. Graves parried questions with the statement that "there is no vacancy yet."

"I've always been interested in politics," she admitted and added that she believed women were just as essential in conducting public life as men. Wearing a cool lavender crepe dress, Mrs. Graves appeared in good spirits and was glad to talk about anything other than her rumored appointment as senator. She even readily admitted her age.

"I was 54 on my birthday about two months ago," she laughed.

Friends of Lawrence Lee, the Governor's legal adviser; Donald Comer, textile manufacturer, and Representative Lister Hill, in Montgomery, virtually "conceded" Mrs. Graves would become Alabama's first woman member of the United States congress.

But, as a parting shot, Governor Graves shouted from the doorway of the big 21-passenger plane, "I have nothing to say. Black is still senator and until he resigns that's all there is to it."

Arriving safely in Washington late last night, according to press dispatches, Governor and Mrs. Graves again refused to comment on Mrs. Graves' reported appointment.

"We'll cross that bridge when we get to it," Graves told Washington reporters.

3 OTHER WOMEN HAVE SERVED IN U. S. SENATE

Should "Miss Dixie" (as Mrs. Graves is affectionately called in Alabama) receive the appointment, she would become the fourth woman to be given a seat in the United States senate.

Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, of Georgia, was the first woman to go to the senate. She was appointed October 3, 1922, by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick to fill the vacancy at the death of Senator Thomas E. Watson. She served only two days before a permanent successor was named.

Senator Hattie W. Caraway, of Arkansas, was appointed November 13, 1931, and elected January 12, 1932, filling the vacancy caused by the death of her husband, Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway. Re-elected in 1932, her term will not expire until 1939.

Mrs. Rose McConnell Long was named January 31, 1936, by Governor James A. Noe, of Louisiana, to fill the unexpired term of her husband, Huey Long.

WILLIAM HALL DIES; FORMER ATLANTAN

William C. Hall, 56, former Atlantan, died Sunday in East Hampton, N. Y.

Moving to Atlanta in 1909, Mr. Hall lived here until about 15 years ago, when he went to Louisville to live. He was president of the Atlantic Terra Cotta Company during his residence here.

Surviving are his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Frederick Merrill, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Joseph S. Clarke Jr., of Philadelphia.

French Government Orders Mayor To Hush in John Roosevelt Incident

President's Son in Paris Seclusion Following Cannes Champagne Hurling; Victim Declares His Willingness To "Forgive and Forget."

PARIS, Thursday, Aug. 19.—(UP)—The French government acted today to suppress further publicity of the incident in which John A. Roosevelt, youngest son of President Roosevelt, threw champagne at Pierre Nouveau, mayor of Cannes.

The Quai D'Orsay (foreign office) telephoned the mayor and told him to refuse any further statement. The mayor yesterday said that the incident was "an extremely unfortunate occurrence" and that "many foreigners who saw it were most angry."

Roosevelt in Retirement.

Roosevelt also was doing everything possible to hush up the affair. He disappeared into his hotel here and refused to receive anyone or answer the telephone. A servant with an English accent informed all callers that his master was out.

The mayor, when ordered to drop the entire business, said plaintively:

"I am the victim of this affair."

Prefects of all departments were ordered to keep the news out of the papers, but the Paris Soir nevertheless ran a short story. The American embassy was so nervous that it was seriously considering a denial that any incident occurred, but French diplomats decided the best course was to ignore the entire matter publicly, while suppressing the news.

Willing to Forgive.

The mayor meanwhile added that he was willing to "forgive and forget" the Roosevelt incident.

"I am willing to write it off as youthful exuberance," the mayor explained, even though young Roosevelt hurriedly left this Riviera resort with no mention of an apology.

The champagne tossing occurred Sunday night outside the Carlton hotel, according to the mayor's version, when he presented the 20-year-old youth with a bouquet of flowers in connection with the annual "battle of the flowers" fete and was rewarded with the champagne splashing.

WIFE, SHOT BY MATE OVER HER JOB, DIES

Woman's Employer, Also Victim in Tragedy, Reported Improved.

Mrs. Earl Whitworth, 27-year-old Winder shooting victim, died yesterday at the Georgia Baptist hospital, where she was taken after she was shot Tuesday by her husband.

The 35-year-old husband, a filling station operator, had already ended his own life with three bullets fired into his temple. Meanwhile, W. H. Jennings, president of the Barrow Manufacturing Company, wounded by Whitworth just before he took his own life, was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday.

The shootings occurred after Mrs. Whitworth, Jennings' secretary in the Barrow Manufacturing Company, had refused to carry out her husband's requests that she quit her job, according to Winder police.

Jennings was only slightly injured, receiving bullet wounds in the ear, shoulder and back, it was said.

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Whitworth had not been completed yesterday, but services for Whitworth were held yesterday afternoon at Lawrenceville.

Footrace in Woods Lost by Thief Suspect

A brief foot race in a forsaken patch of woods near Marietta highway yesterday resulted in the capture of D. T. Hayes, 18, by two fleet-footed county policemen, Willard Jackson and J. B. Jackson.

The arrest occurred less than an hour after thieves had broken into Peacock Alley and made off with two cigaret vending machines. Hayes, county police said, was found along with another man in the act of opening the machines. Both men fled but the officers overtook Hayes and carried him to Fulton tower, where he was placed under $5,000 bond.

Policemen were called to the spot after a pedestrian reported that he had been fired upon by two men as he walked through the woods. Police confiscated a truck said to belong to Hayes, who told them that he was a peddler of pies and confections.

HELP KIDNEYS! PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MARITIME STRIKE CANCELED PENDING PARLEY WITH LINE

Employers, Employes To Seek Accord on Hours, Boarding Passes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Joseph Ryan, president of International Longshoremen's Association, tonight announced discontinuance of a 24-hour old strike against steamship companies operating up and down the coast.

He said cancellation of the strike was contingent on the outcome of a meeting called for tomorrow in the offices of the Clyde Mallory line.

At the meeting, representatives of the employers and employes will attempt to settle the eight-hour day issue and the question of issuing boarding passes to union organizers.

FERRY STRIKERS HALT NORFOLK-VIRGINIA TRAFFIC

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 18.—(UP) Passenger transportation between Norfolk and the Virginia mainland was halted suddenly during the rush hour tonight by a strike of employes of the Norfolk and Portsmouth ferries.

Pedestrian traffic was at a standstill as the strike tied up ferries which ply the two-mile-wide Elizabeth river between Norfolk and Portsmouth. Automobiles were forced to make a detour of several miles and cross a toll bridge.

The ferry employes decided to strike after several days of unsuccessful negotiations for shorter work hours and higher wages with owners of the Norfolk County ferry line and the Portsmouth city line.

RAIL CHIEFS CITE LOSSES TO ANSWER PAY REQUEST

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A committee of railroad executives cited 1936 deficits of 40 railroads today in answer to the request of the five operating brotherhoods for a 20 per cent wage increase.

The committee, headed by H. A. Enochs, of the Pennsylvania road, informed representatives of the 300,000 brotherhood members that the 40 roads had a combined loss of $112,000,000 last year.

EX-ATLANTA WOMAN DIES IN CANADA

Miss Emma Hardcastle, formerly of Atlanta as executive secretary of the Georgia Children's Home Society, died recently in Windsor, Ontario, Canada.

At the time of her death she was a member of the Canadian Association of Social Workers and the Windsor Business and Professional Women's Club. In Atlanta, where she resided for about five years, she had been a member of the Social Workers' Club.

Surviving is a sister, Mrs. George H. Ropes, of Detroit. Funeral services and burial were held in Cottam, Ontario.

ACCOUNTANTS TO HEAR WATKINS TALK TONIGHT

Judge Edgar Watkins, president of the board of trustees of Oglethorpe University, will address the Atlanta chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at a dinner at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

He will speak on the subject, "The Labor Situation—Where Are We Headed?" A technical session will follow the dinner at 7:30 o'clock.

GIRL, 4, HIT BY AUTO, NEAR DEATH AT GRADY

Probably fatally injured when she darted suddenly into the path of an automobile late yesterday, Patricia Ann Sumner, 4, of 51 Whitefoord avenue, N. E., was in Grady hospital this morning.

The car, driven by Annie Adcox, 26, of 30 Montgomery avenue, S. E., cut sharply to the left in efforts to avoid the child, it was said. Miss Adcox picked the little girl up and carried her to Grady hospital, where attendants said that injuries were probably fatal. Patricia Ann's right arm and collarbone were broken as well as both jawbones.

Want To Know How To Influence People?

It will take a week of study, but the Atlanta Baptist Training Union will know "How to Win Friends and Influence People" after the classes at the First Baptist church get under way next Monday at 7:15 o'clock.

Choosing Dale Carnegie's best seller as the text of the annual week of study, Dr. George Sparks, director of the University Evening School, will hold classes every night during the coming week, it was announced yesterday.

Troy Woodbury, president of the B. T. U., and Parks Warnock, chairman of the training school committee, announced yesterday that the magic of the title would not only apply to members of the B. T. U. but to many others whose interest has made the book a best seller since its publication last October.

2 ARMY AIRMEN KILLED IN CRASH

Colonel, Sergeant Were En Route to Atlanta on Cross-Country Flight.

MAIDENS, Va., Aug. 18.—(AP)—A failing motor forced a high ranking army air corps officer and a staff sergeant down to their deaths in flames in a cow pasture today.

Army air corps investigators flew to Richmond and came here by automobile tonight to study the charred wreckage and receive eyewitness accounts of the crash, which Powhatan County Coroner J. E. Tilman attributed to "engine trouble."

The two fliers, Colonel William C. McChord, of Lebanon, Ky., officer in charge of operations in the office of the chief of the corps, and Staff Sergeant Michael J. O'Connell, of Alexandria, Va., on their way from Washington to Atlanta, encountered a deep ditch as they glided to an emergency landing in a dairy pasture at the Virginia Industrial School for Boys.

The left wing tip caught the ditch and the two-place attack plane swung around and "literally exploded in flames." Both wings were ripped off and the motor tossed 30 feet.

The two officers died in the fire, which held back boys and men who raced from the dairy barn 100 yards away.

ILL-FATED ARMY FLIERS WELL KNOWN IN ATLANTA

Colonel William C. McCord and Sergeant Michael J. O'Connell, who were killed when their attack plane crashed and burned in Virginia on a cross-country flight from Washington to Atlanta, should have reached Atlanta about 2 o'clock yesterday, officers at the army air corps at Candler field said last night.

The two air corps officers left Washington at 10:10 o'clock yesterday morning. Information was received at the Atlanta airport to the effect that the fliers were taking off, but the purpose of the flight was not revealed. Colonel McCord had been in Atlanta several times previously, air corps officers said.

MELTON PENSION UP AGAIN ON SATURDAY

Board To Review His New Plea at Hearing.

The police pension board is expected to act Saturday on a new application for pension filed yesterday by Patrolman J. S. Melton, who was reinstated last week after having been discharged early this year.

Melton yesterday was put on active patrol duty in order to conform with the legal provision policemen must be on active duty when applying for pension. He was on a 3-day leave of absence when he made his first application, which was refused by the pension board because he was not on the pay roll. Melton was convicted last year of possession of a stolen car.

JEWISH GIRL SCOUTS LEAVE FOR CIVITANIA

62 in Party Leaving Here for Two Weeks' Outing, Training Activities.

Sixty-two Jewish Girl Scouts from Atlanta and 10 Georgia towns waved good-bye to their families and friends yesterday as they boarded a bus for Camp Civitania for a two-weeks' camping trip.

Sponsored by the Jewish Educational Alliance, this will mark the tenth annual camping trip of the Jewish Girl Scouts at Civitania, located a mile off the Bankhead highway. Use of the camp is granted through courtesy of the Atlanta Girl Scouts.

Ages of the girls range from 10 to 17 years. Camp scholarships were granted by the Alliance to girls applying for the camping trip but lacking adequate funds.

Miss Helen Feldman, girls' worker of the Alliance, is the camp director, and the assisting staff is comprised of Mrs. Edward M. Kahn, business manager, also in charge of dietetics, and 11 counselors and assistant directors.

Scouting activities will consist of arts and crafts, nature study, swimming, Bible dramatizations and special Bible programs, general athletics, astronomy, campfire programs, and dancing classes.

"We have the largest registration this year that we have ever had," said Edward M. Kahn, executive secretary of the Alliance, "which points toward the actual end of the depression."

PICNIC CRASH VICTIM FUNERAL TOMORROW

Last rites for Miss Carolyn Bellingrath, 26, of 217 Atlanta avenue, Decatur, who died Tuesday of pneumonia following an automobile accident Saturday in which her legs were broken, will be performed at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Rev. Robert Ivey will conduct the services from the First Presbyterian church of Decatur, with burial in Hollywood cemetery.

Miss Bellingrath was going to a church picnic when a car ran into the rear of the truck in which she was riding with about 10 others. She was hanging her legs over the back of the truck when the accident occurred in Indian Springs.

Taken to a local hospital, it was thought she was recovering until the pneumonia set in.

GOVERNMENT ACTS TO KEEP BAKER

Chain Gang Fugitive Likely To Serve U. S. Prison Term Before Return Here.

Nashville authorities are holding Vincent Baker, Georgia chain gang escape artist, pending settlement of differences between the state and federal government.

Following his capture Monday night in a Nashville hotel room, Baker was served with a warrant by federal officers charging him with robbery of a Cedar Bluff, Ala., bank. Meanwhile, Georgia prison officials indicated that Baker must finish out his 20-year term in the state prison.

Judge G. A. Johns, Georgia Prison Commission chairman, yesterday said the state will grant, as usual, right to the federal government to try the prisoner first, but he added that the state will retain its prior claim to Baker.

Baker only recently made his way to freedom with Forest Turner from the Troup county chain gang. Nashville police are charging Baker with holding up two grocery stores and a bakery truck driver.

MRS. CANDLER AND SON RETURN FROM ABROAD

After a tour of several months abroad, Mrs. William Candler and William Candler Jr., of the Biltmore hotel, were back in Atlanta yesterday.

Mrs. Candler and her son came direct to Atlanta after docking Tuesday in New York city aboard the liner Aquitania. The tour included Norway, Sweden and Russia.

DEATH SEPARATES FAMED MINSTRELS

James McIntyre, 80, Dies After Success With Thomas Heath.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP)—McIntyre and Heath, indivisible to generations of theatergoers, were separated in death today.

James McIntyre, 80, the younger of the famous vaudeville team which tickled the nation's risibilities for more than a half century, died of uremic poisoning at his home in near-by Noyack. He had been in a coma since last Friday and members of his family had been with him almost constantly.

The other member of the blackface team, Thomas K. Heath, 84, lay dangerously ill of bronchitis and paralysis at his home in Setauket, another Long Island town a few miles from here. He was not informed of his partner's death.

CONTACT IS MADE IN DANCER MYSTERY

PARIS (Thursday), Aug. 19.—(UP)—An advertisement in the Paris Herald-Tribune today revealed that Miss Ida Sackheim had established contact with her niece, Jean De Koven, 22-year-old American dancer, who disappeared more than three weeks ago.

The advertisement said: "Letter received. Strictly confidential. Telephone me."

DIPHTHERIA CLINIC.

YATESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 18.—One hundred thirty negro and 19 white children were given toxoid at a diphtheria clinic held here yesterday under the direction of Dr. J. M. McKensie, county physician.

POLICEMAN FACES DRUNK CHARGES

Motorcycle Officer White Suspended Until Trial by Committee.

Another city policeman is under suspension today—this time a motorcycle policeman, Mercer White, on charges of drunkenness.

White was suspended yesterday by Chief of Police Hornsby after filing of a report by Policeman G. Neal Ellis. White's suspension will remain in effect until the next meeting of the police committee of city council, when the case will be heard.

Ellis' report stated that he answered a call from 1043 Highland avenue about 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon that there was a drunk policeman in the neighborhood.

"Lieutenant Hardy and myself went to this address," the report read, "and talked with Sam Levy, who runs a shoe shop. He stated that an officer came in his place and asked him where he (the officer) was.

After Levy told them that the officer was drunk, Ellis and Hardy checked the numbers of the badge and motorcycle given by Levy and found they had been issued to Mercer White. They then went to White's home on Gresham avenue, where they found him and took him to the police station.

"Officer White was under the influence of intoxicants," the report said.

Police Chief Hornsby then instructed the men to return White to his home. Another witness, R. L. Hart, of 1043 Highland avenue, told the officers he saw White staggering across the street but was not near enough to detect any odor of whisky upon him.

SUGAR BILL DELAYED.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Senate and house conferees failed today to agree on the controverted sugar bill. Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, said the group would meet again tomorrow.

Man To Hear His 4th Death Sentence

With three previous death sentences against him in less than a year, Clinton Pinson, convicted negro slayer of Roscoe Harbin, a Peters street merchant, will appear before Judge John D. Humphries to be resentenced tomorrow.

Brought back from Dayton, Ohio—where he fled after the slaying March 17, 1934, Pinson this year was convicted and sentenced to death. Three respites from the Governor saved him from each of the scheduled executions on the eve of the fateful days. A respite granted July 9 for 30 days, has expired and Pinson is to hear the fourth death penalty pronounced upon him tomorrow.

R. C. BURNETTE, 35, DIES AT HOME HERE

Furniture Firm Executive Is Food Poisoning Victim; Son of Capitalist.

Richard C. Burnette, vice president of a local furniture company, died unexpectedly of food poisoning last night at his residence, 241 East Wesley road. He was 35 years old.

FRANCO CAPTURES 1,700 RED SOLDIERS IN SANTANDER PUSH

Loyalists Claim Surprise Victory in Area West of Reinosa.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The Insurgent radio at Bilbao announced tonight that General Francisco Franco's troops have occupied the town of Arenas, 28 miles from Santander.

Arenas is 11 1-2 miles north of Reinosa, important northern Spanish town taken earlier in the week by the Insurgents in their campaign against government-held Santander.

The radio communique said 1,700 government militiamen surrendered.

In taking the town of Arenas, the Insurgents captured their first glassworks. The factory was in good condition and furnaces will be lighted Friday to start production of glass badly needed in a dozen towns and cities where bombs and shells have left scarcely a window intact.

A government communique claimed that a surprise sortie of crack Asturian and Santander troops from the mountains west of Reinosa had crumpled the left flank of the Insurgents there.

The United States destroyer Kane left St. Jean-de-Luz, France, for Gijon to evacuate about 350 Cubans and Central and South American citizens.

REDS CHARGE ITALIANS SINK 3 MERCHANTMEN

VALENCIA, Spain, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Italian warships, the Spanish government defense ministry charged in a communique tonight, have attacked Republican Spanish shipping in the Mediterranean.

The communique said that three merchantment were sunk the last three days and that a fourth ship was pursued but escaped. In each instance, the statement added, the attack was by warships flying the Fascist flag.

ROOSEVELT SCORES 'TORY' OPPOSITION

Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, saying:

"It is on occasions such as this that we appreciate more keenly than ever the ties of friendship that exist between the English-speaking countries of the world."

Governor Hoey introduced the President as the "colossal figure of this century" and the greatest humanitarian of his time.

Mr. Roosevelt declared he is just as strongly in favor of security of property and maintenance of order as Lord Macaulay "or as the American Lord Macaulays who thunder" today. The American people are with him on that, he added.

"But," he said, "we cannot go along with the Tory insistence that salvation lies in the vesting of power in the hands of a select class, and that if America does not come to that system America will perish.

"Tories" Condemned.

"Macaulay condemned the American scheme of government based on popular majority. In this country 80 years later his successors do not dare openly to condemn the American form of government by popular majority, for they profess adherence to the form, while, at the same time, their every act shows their opposition to the very fundamentals of democracy."

Quoting Macaulay as saying the American constitution was "all sail and no anchor," and that some Napoleon eventually would seize the government or the country would be destroyed by "barbarians," the President continued:

"That, my friends, with all due respect to Lord Macaulay, is an excellent representation of the cries of alarm which rise today from the throats of American Lord Macaulays."

Following the speech, the President motored to nearby Nagshead to rest and dine at the beach cottage of John Buchanan, of Durham, N. C. He arranged to witness after dinner a pageant in a seaside amphitheater, depicting the events leading to the landing of Raleigh's second expedition to these shores three and a half centuries ago.

He also arranged to motor the 75 miles to Elizabeth City, N. C., and reboard his train there late tonight for Washington, where he is due tomorrow morning.

President Roosevelt's Address at Celebration Of 350th Anniversary of Virginia Dare's Birth

MANTEO, ROANOKE ISLAND, N. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Following is the text of President Roosevelt's address today at the celebration of the 350th anniversary of Virginia Dare's birth:

Until recent years history was taught as a series of facts and dates. Today we are beginning to look more closely into the events which preceded those great social and economic and political changes which have deeply affected the known history of the world.

For example, most of us older people learned of Columbus' voyages, of how America came to be named—and we jumped from there in our North American history to the founding of Jamestown and of Plymouth—1492 to 1607, with mere passing reference to Roanoke and perhaps to the voyage of Verazzano.

It has always been a pet theory of mine that many other voyages of exploration and of trade took place in that century along our American shores. We know that during the same period the Spaniards established great colonies throughout the West Indies, at Panama and other points in Central America, and extended their cities, their religious institutions and even their universities to both the east and west coasts of South America. It is unbelievable that white men did not come scores of times to what is today the Atlantic seaboard of the United States.

Some day, perhaps, a closer search of the records of the seafaring towns of Britain and France and Flanders and Holland and Scandinavia will rediscover discoverers. Perhaps even it is not too much to hope that documents in the old country and excavations in the new may throw some further light, however dim, on the fate of the "lost colony" and Roanoke and Virginia Dare.

Cause of Immigration.

If we are to understand the full significance of the early explorations and the early settlements, if we are to understand the kind of world upon which Virginia Dare opened her eyes on that faraway August day in 1587, we must ask why western Europe came to the New World.

It was in part because the era was an era of restless action. Under the renaissance men experienced great awakenings—they were fired with restless energy to burst the narrow bounds of the medieval conception of the universe—to fare forth on voyages of exploration and conquest.

Many of those who sailed in immense discomfort, in tiny ships, across the Atlantic, were adventurers—some of them seeking riches, some seeking fame, some impelled by the mere spirit of unrest. But most of them—the men, the women and the children, came hither seeking something very different—seeking an opportunity which they could not find in their homes of the Old World.

We hear of the gentlemen of title, who, on occasion, came to the colonies, and we hear of the gentlemen of wealth who helped to fit out the expeditions. But it is a simple fact which cannot too often be stressed that an overwhelming majority of those who came to the colonies from England and Scotland and Ireland and Wales and France and Holland and Sweden belong to what our British cousins would, even today, call "the lower middle classes."

Freedom Sought in New World.

The opportunity they sought was something they did not have at home—opportunity freely to exercise their own chosen form of religion, opportunity to get into an environment where there were no classes, opportunity to escape from a system which still contained most of the elements of feudalism.

This is not in derogation of those pioneers. It is rather in praise of them. They had the courage, physically and mentally, by deed and word, to seek better things, to try to capture ideals and hopes forbidden to them by the laws and rules of their own homelands.

It is well, too, that we bear in mind that in all the pioneer settlements democracy and not feudalism was the rule. The men had to take their turn standing guard at the stockade raised against the Indians. The women had to take their turn husking corn stored for the winter supply of the community. Rules of conduct had to be established to keep private greed or personal misconduct in check. I fear very much that if certain modern Americans, who protest loudly their devotion to American ideals, were suddenly to be given a comprehensive view of the earliest American colonists and their methods of life and government, they would promptly label them Socialists. They would forget that in these pioneer settlements were all the germs of the later American constitution.

They would forget, too, that although in the days that intervened between Roanoke and Jamestown and Plymouth, and the time of the American Revolution itself practical democracy was carried on in the lives of the inhabitants of nearly every community in the 13 colonies. It is true that as commerce developed in the seaboard cities, and as a few great landed estates were set up here and there, a school of thought parallel with the same school of thought in England made great headway.

Contrast of Opinions.

It was this policy which came into the open in the constitutional convention of 1787; for in that convention there were some who wanted a king, there were some who wanted to create titles, and there were many, like Alexander Hamilton, who sincerely believed that suffrage and the right to hold office should be confined to persons of property and persons of education. We know, however, that although this school persisted, with the assistance of the newspapers of the day, during the first three national administrations, it was eliminated for many years at least under the leadership of President Thomas Jefferson and his successors. His was the first great battle for the preservation of democracy. His was the first great victory for democracy.

In the half-century that followed there was constant war between those who, like Andrew Jackson, believed in a democracy conducted by and for a complete cross-section of the population, and those who, like the directors of the Bank of the United States and their friends in the United States senate, believed in the conduct of government by a self-perpetuating group at the top of the ladder. That this was the clear line of demarcation—the fundamental difference of opinion in regard to American institutions is proved by an amazingly interesting letter which Lord Macaulay wrote in 1857 to an American friend.

Macaulay's Opionion of Democracy

This friend of his had written a book about Thomas Jefferson. Macaulay said "You are surprised to learn that I have not a high opinion of Mr. Jefferson and I am surprised at your surprise. I am certain that I never wrote a line and that I have never . . . uttered a word indicating an opinion that the supreme authority in a state ought to be entrusted to the majority of citizens tolled by the head; in other words, to the poorest and most ignorant part of society." Macaulay, in other words, was opposed to what we call "popular government."

He went on to say "I have long been convinced that institutions purely democratic must, sooner or later, destroy liberty, or civilization, or both."

Then, speaking of England, he says, "I have not the smallest doubt that, if we had a purely democratic government here, the effect would be the same . . . you may think that your country (speaking of America) enjoys an exception from these evils . . . I am of a very different opinion. Your fate I believe to be certain, though it is deferred by a physical cause. As long as you have a boundless extent of fertile and unoccupied land, your laboring population will be far more at ease than the laboring population of the Old World, and while that is the case, the Jeffersonian policy may continue to exist without causing any fatal calamity. But the time will come when New England will be as thickly peopled as old England. Wages will be as low and will fluctuate as much with you as with us. You will have your Manchesters and Birminghams, and in those Manchesters and Birminghams hundreds of thousands of artisans will be assuredly sometimes out of work. Then your institutions will be fairly brought to the test. Distress everywhere makes the laborer mutinous and discontented and inclines him to listen with eagerness to agitators who tell him that it is a monstrous iniquity that one man should have a million while another cannot get a full meal."

Methods Used in England.

And then Macaulay goes on to tell his American friend how they handled such situations in England. He says "In bad years there is plenty of grumbling here and sometimes a little rioting, but it matters little. For here the sufferers are not the rulers. The supreme power is in the hands of a class, numerous indeed, but select . . . an educated class . . . a class which is, and knows itself to be, deeply interested in the security of property and the maintenance of order. Accordingly the malcontents are firmly yet gently restrained. The bad time got over without robbing the wealthy to relieve the indigent. The springs of national prosperity soon begin to flow again . . . and all is tranquillity and cheerfulness."

Almost, methinks, I am reading not from Macaulay but from a resolution of the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Liberty League, the National Association of Manufacturers or the editorials written at the behest of some well-known newspaper proprietors.

Macaulay Paints Gloomy Picture.

Like these gentlemen of 1937, Macauley in 1857 painted this gloomy picture of the future of the United States—"I cannot help foreboding the worst. It is quite plain that your government will never be able to restrain a distressed and discontented majority . . . the day will come when . . . a multitude of people, none of whom has had more than half a breakfast, or expects to have more than half a dinner, will choose a legislature . . . on one side is a statesman preaching patience, respect for vested rights . . . on the other is a demagogue ranting about the tyranny of capitalists . . . and asking why anybody should be permitted to drink champagne and to ride in a carriage while thousands of honest folks are in want of necessaries . . . I seriously apprehend that you will, in some such season of adversity . . . do things which will prevent prosperity from returning; that you will act like people who should in a year of scarcity devour all the seed corn and thus make the next year a year, not of scarcity, but of absolute famine . . . there is nothing to stop you. Your constitution is all sail and no anchor . . . either some Caesar or Napoleon will seize the reins of government with a strong hand, or your republic will be . . . laid waste by barbarians in the 20th century as the Roman Empire was in the fifth."

Today's "Cries of Alarm."

That, my friends, with all due respect to Lord Macaulay, is an excellent representation of the cries of alarm which rise today from the throats of American Lord Macaulays. They tell you that America drifts toward the Scylla of dictatorship on the one hand, or the Charybdis of anarchy on the other. Their anchor for the salvation of the ship of state is Macaulay's anchor: "Supreme power . . . in the hands of a class, numerous indeed, but select; of an educated class, of a class which is, and knows itself to be, deeply interested in the security of property and the maintenance of order."

Mine is a different anchor. They do not believe in democracy—I do. My anchor is democracy—and more democracy. And, my friends, I am of the firm belief that the nation, by an overwhelming majority, supports my opposition to the vesting of supreme power in the hands of any class, numerous but select.

It is of interest to read Macaulay's letter with care—for I find in it no reference to the improving of the living conditions of the poor, to the encouragement of better homes or greater wages, or steadier work. I find no reference to the averting of panics, no words for the encouragement of the farmer—nothing at all, in fact, except the suggestion that "malcontents are firmly but gently restrained" . . . in the interest of the "security of property and the maintenance of order."

Security of Property.

I conceive it to be true that I am just as strongly in favor of the security of property and the maintenance of order as Lord Macaulay, or as the American Lord Macaulays who thunder today. And in this the American people are with me, too. But we cannot go along with the Tory insistence that salvation lies in the vesting of power in the hands of a select class, and that if America does not come to that system, America will perish.

Macaulay condemned the American scheme of government based on popuar majority. In this country 80 years later his successors do not yet dare openly to condemn the American form of government by popular majority, for they profess adherence to the form, while, at the same time, their ever act shows their opposition to the very foundamentals of democracy. They love to intone praise of liberty, to mouth phrases about the sanctity of our constitution—but in their hearts they distrust majority rule because an enlightened majority will not tolerate the abuses which a privileged minority would seek to foist upon the people as a whole.

Since the determination of this mojority is to substitute their will for that of the majority, would it not be more honest for them, instead of using the constitution as a cloak to hide their real designs, to come out frankly and say: "We agree with Macaulay that the American form of government will lead to disaster and therefore we seek a change in the American form of government as laid down by the founding fathers?"

Cornerstone of Democracy.

They seek to substitute their own will for that of the majority for they seek to substitute their own interest above the general welfare. They reject the principle of the greater good for the greater number, which is the cornerstone of democratic government.

Under democratic government the poorest are no longer necessarily the most ignorant part of society. I agree with the saying of one of our famous statesmen who devoted himself to the principle of majority rule: "I respect the aristocracy of learning; I deplore the plutocracy of wealth; but thank God for the democracy of the heart."

I seek no change in the form of America ngovernment. Majority rule must be preserved as the safeguard of both liberty and civilization.

Under it property can be secure; under it abuses can end; under it order can be maintained—and all of this for the simple, cogent reason that to the average of our citizenship can be brought a life of greater opportunity, of greater security, of greater happiness.

Those worthy hopes led the father and mother of Virginia Dare and the fathers and mothers from many nations through many centuries to seek new life in the New World. Pioneering it was called in the olden days; pioneering it still is—pineering for the preservation of our fundamental institutions against the ceaseless attack of those who have no faith in democracy. Fortitude and courage on our part succeed the fortitude and courage of those who planted a colony on this island in the days of good Queen Bess.

Dr. Boland Wins Upset; Barnes Brothers Share City Medal

UNRANKED STAR TOPS GILLESPIE IN STATE MEET

Other Seeded Players Win and Advance to Quarter-Finals.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Evidently aroused at not being seeded, Dr. Kels Boland turned in the first major upset of the Georgia state tennis tournament yesterday on the Tech courts, eliminating fifth-ranked Campbell Gillespie, 6-3, 6-3.

Boland, firing his usual steady game, was never pushed by the Miami University player.

Other ranked players in the men's singles advanced to the quarter-finals, which will be played Friday. The semi-finals come on Saturday and the finals on Sunday.

Kimbark Peterson, top-seeded player from Nashville, Tenn., was forced to play his best tennis in eliminating Reg Fleet, of Atlanta, 7-5, 6-3.

MOORE WINS.

Bill Moore, of Atlanta, seeded No. 2, defeated Don Floyd, also of Atlanta, 6-0, 6-2. Joe Davis, No. 3, of Nashville, beat Dr. Glen Dudley, of Atlanta, 6-0, 6-2.

Malon Courts, No. 4, beat Louis "Red" Enloe in two hard-fought sets, 7-5, 7-5. Enloe took a 3-1 lead in both sets but Courts rallied to win.

W. B. Marcum, of Lakeland, Fla., No. 6, eliminated Captain Dave Hedekin, of Atlanta, 6-1, 8-6, while Burtz Boulware, former Georgia Tech captain, whipped Gilbert Bell, 6-3, 6-3.

MANLEY HARD PRESSED.

Malcolm Manley, of Atlanta, No. 8, was hard pushed to beat John Hyden, of Nashville, in three bitterly fought "pat ball" sets. The scores were 6-4, 1-6, 6-4.

In the quarter-finals of the junior singles, Don Buffington, No. 2, Atlanta, beat Frank Robinson, of Augusta, 6-1, 6-1. Welden Selesky, Boys' High star, No. 3, beat Walter Larson, 0-6, 6-4, 6-3, while Cortez Suttles, No. 4, beat Ham Frost, 1-6, 8-6, 6-3.

In the women's singles, Kate Jackson upset the second-ranking player, Louise Fowler, 6-4, 8-6, while Fauntleroy Caldwell beat Mrs. Bill Lufler, 7-5, 6-4.

WOMEN'S FINALS.

The delayed women's finals of the city tournament will be held at 4:30 today as an added attraction to the state meet. Polly Taylor will meet Eugenia O'Bryan for the title.

Pairings in the mixed doubles were announced yesterday, with the team of Lewis-Peterson ranked first.

Following are Fowler-Marcum, No. 2; Washington-J. T. Chambers, No. 3, and O'Bryan-Manley, No. 4. Play will start today.

Men's doubles also got under way yesterday with only one seeded team seeing action. Bill Moore and Bud Lindsay, No. 2, beat Barnes and Barnett, 6-2, 6-4.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

MEN'S SINGLES.

Dr. William Armstrong beat Preston Chambers, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3. Kimbark Peterson beat Reg Fleet, 7-5, 6-3. Burtz Boulware beat Gilbert Bell, 6-3, 6-3. Malon Courts beat Red Enloe, 6-5, 7-5. Bill Moore beat Don Floyd, 6-0, 6-2. W. B. Marcum beat Dave Hedekin, 6-1, 8-6. Malcolm Manley beat John Hyden, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. Joe Davis beat Dr. Glen Dudley, 6-0, 6-2. Dr. Kels Boland beat Campbell Gillespie, 6-3, 6-3.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Selesky-Buffington beat Marcum Larson, 2-6, 8-6, 6-3. French-Corrigan beat Thompson, Moore-Bud Lindsay beat Barnes-Barnett, 6-2, 6-4. Hedekin-Manley beat Teagle-Howard, default. Fleet-Armstrong beat Kaiser-Whitenton, 6-1, 6-2. Hill-Carl Lindsay beat Williamson-Laird, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1. Crawford-Howard beat Kilpatrick-Noxon, 7-5, 6-4.

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

Kate Jackson beat Louise Fowler, 6-4, 8-6. Fauntleroy Caldwell beat Mrs. Bill Lufler, 7-5, 6-4.

JUNIOR SINGLES.

Welden Selesky beat Walter Larson, 6-6, 6-4, 6-3. Don Buffington beat Frank Robinson, 6-1, 6-1. Cortez Suttles beat Ham Frost, 1-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Friends, Romans, Countrymen—

Lend me the old listeners. You should have been there last night.

I mean down to Newnan—and the fish fry for those Crackers. It was marvelous. The fish were marvelous. The coffee was marvelous. The people were marvelous. It was a marvelous evening.

And the Big Apple—and the Susy Q——Q!

Shucks—you should have seen Mr. Earl Mann, president of those Crackers, coming to the middle and doing a mean job of trucking. He dances the finger-wave version.

And Lawrence Cornett. The kodak man. He is a wonder.

Mr. Jack Troy, the baseball writer, was a vision of terpsichorean loveliness. That means he was stumbling over his own feet.

As for your Old Partner—well. The least said the better. It was very significant that at 10 o'clock the young ladies present all left the dance.

It couldn't have been the dancing?

And yet—I wonder—

They WERE limping—!

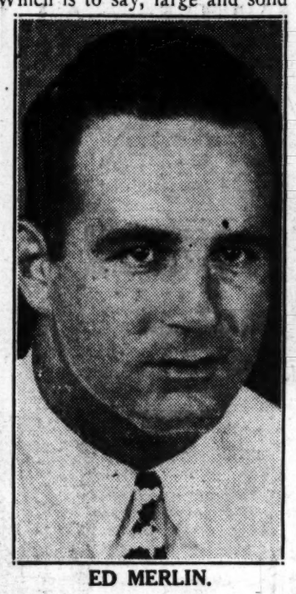
Still—when you have a Big Apple dance be sure to invite Mr. Mann, Mr. Cornett, Mr. Troy. And, of course, your Old Partner. He is so light on your feet.

Thanks to Carl Attaway, Dr. McDonald, "Stonewall" Dywer and Paul Keheley. And all the good people of Newnan.

ED MERLIN WALKS IN.

Ed Merlin walked in.

He looked like a walking concrete machine gun position. Which is to say, large and solid and somewhat round.



ED MERLIN.

Ed Merlin is a guard on Ray Morrison's football team at Vanderbilt. He is visiting in Atlanta for a few days.

"I'm getting restless," he said. "I wish September 1 would hurry up and arrive."

"How about that Vanderbilt football team? How will it compare with the one of last year?"

"It ought to be better," spoke up the chunk of concrete. "Last year we didn't have much pass attack and we didn't have much kicking. This year we've got both and we've got reserve strength there, too."

"Freddie Russell," I said, "the scrivener up in your town, was writing about four sophomores who would become another Four Horsemen. What about them?"

"He isn't far wrong," said Merlin, who is going back for his last year of football. "I never saw four better looking backs."

"Call them off for me."

"There's Burt Marshall, from Texas, and Doc Plunkett, from Oklahoma. They both kick awfully well and pass even better. Then there are Hardy Houseman and Raymond Andrus, two fine offensive and defensive backs. They can do anything."

"Well, you return some good backs in Joe Agee, Jimmy Huggins, Lunny Hollins and a few others whose names escape me."

"Yes, I don't mean those sophomores will play all the time. But you'll hear from them."

Ed Merlin sat back in repose for a moment. He is a very solid young man, this Miami product.

THE 1936 COMMODORES.

"Frank Thomas, from Alabama, was in town a little while ago and he said your Vanderbilt team of last year was rated by Alabama as the best team played all year. Coach Alexander at Tech said the Vanderbilt game wrecked his team for a month. Now, what happened to you fellows in the Southwestern and Rice games?"

"Say, that's one thing I came to see you about. I notice that Southwestern players said a radio talk by Coach Morrison got them stirred up. All I know is he told us they looked tough. I do know a lot of us were hurt in the Chicago game and we were overconfident and didn't take the game seriously. I wouldn't know about the Rice game. It was one of those things. We just didn't get going."

Merlin was one of the best guards Vanderbilt had last year. He was especially good against Georgia Tech in the skull-rattling tie played by the Commodores and the Techs.

"We ought to be better this year," he said, "because in Carl Hinkle, the captain, we've got a leader. He already has written us all letters asking us to report in shape.

"That will help. Then, this year we'll have, as I stated before, some passing and some kicking. And some pass defense. Alabama beat us with passes. So did Rice. I know we'll have the backs this fall. I don't know what the line will do."

The line, in all probability, will do well. It was the line that kept the Commodores from being routed last year. The team that looked like a championship outfit lost to Southwestern, Rice, Tennessee and Alabama. Without the line play it would not have won an important game. Most of the line is back. Including Baby Ray, the 260-pound young man who plays at tackle.

All of which is no comfort at all to the foes of the Commodores. The only comfort they have is that Ray Morrison's teams to date have been in-and-out teams impossible of prediction. But with a new set of horsemen in the backfield they may be very much in. And rarely out.

AN ARM OF STEEL.

Luman Harris, who is by way of becoming the rookie pitching sensation on the Cracker roster, is from the Birmingham steel mills.

He came to the Crackers from the steel mill nine. Already major league scouts are cursing themselves because they didn't see him before Atlanta did. They think he needs only a couple of years of seasoning—which he will get in Atlanta—to be ready for major league pitching.

Nap Rucker was looking at him as he relieved and won the Tuesday night baseball game from Birmingham.

"He looks like Christy Mathewson," said the veteran left-hander who was contemporary with Matty and other greats. "Don't misunderstand me, he doesn't pitch like Matty. But

CALLAWAY WINS OVER PAINTERS IN WICHITA PLAY

John Rucker Is Big Star for Winners With Homer, Triple.

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 18.—The LaGrange, Ga., Callaway nine demonstrated impressive baseball here today to advance a round in the national semi-pro baseball tourney, winning its second-round game, 9 to 1, from the Hollywood Painters. The defeat eliminated the California team.

The Painters showed just one brief flash, starting out with a run in the first off Dolenc on two passes and a single.

But Callaway wasted no time getting that run back and more to clinch the game in two innings. Rucker started the Georgia batting with a triple and Crawford duplicated. Caldwell's single scored another run. Rucker came up again in the second with two mates on after Harper and Laval had singled. This time Rucker smashed a long homer over the right-field fence, the fourth homer over the fence in the tournament. This blow alone was enough to win on, but Callaway came back for more tallies. They counted in the third on a hit by Caldwell, a passed ball and Wagnon's single.

Singles by Dolenc, Rucker and Crawford in the eighth made the final pair for Callaway.

LaGrange played snappy ball all the way in their first daylight appearance and made one neat double play to aid the defensive work.

LaGrange having drawn one bye now rates with two victories and one defeat.

Its fourth-round game is as yet unscheduled until the third-round contests have been completed, which will be Friday. It may be as late as Sunday before Callaway plays their next game. Both Buford and Callaway rate with the upper eight as tournament contenders.

HACKETT WINS ATHENS MEDAL

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—A stocky young golfer from Rome, Ga., Dick Hackett, took medal honors in today's qualifying round for the Athens Country Club invitation tournament with an even par 73.

Milton "Red" Leathers, the former football player at the University of Georgia, almost upset Hackett's medal score but faltered on the back side to miss by one stroke, after going out with a three under par 33. Leathers missed a 15-inch putt on No. 18 to tie Hackett.

Another Athens golfer, Robert Hodgson, after touring the first nine in 34, scored a 41 on the back side for a 75, to tie with Jimmy Dudley for third in medal score.

Match play starts tomorrow morning, with two 18-hole matches the first day and semi-finals and finals Friday morning and afternoon.

DOVE SEASON OPENS SEPT. 15

Just so there won't be any mistake, the dove season in Georgia does not open until September 15 and runs through October 15. The law will be strictly enforced.

The change has been made necessary to coincide with federal game law regulations. The dove season opened September 1 last year.

The order reads that doves may be shot from September 15 to October 15 and from December 20 to January 31 in the northern zone, and from November 20 to January 31 for the southern zone.

The northern zone is composed of Troup, Meriwether, Pike, Lamar, Monroe, Jones, Baldwin, Washington, Jefferson and Burke counties and all other counties north of them. The southern zone is composed of counties south of that line.

The waterfowl hunting season was fixed from November 27 through December 26. During the open season, waterfowl (except snow geese, brant, Ross' goose, wood duck, canvasback duck, redhead duck, ruddy duck, bufflehead duck and swans) and coot may be shot each day from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. and rails and gallinules (other than coot), Wilson's snipe or jacksnipe, woodcock, mourning doves, white-winged doves, and band-tailed pigeons from 7 a. m. to sunset each day.

The snipe season was fixed from November 27 to December 26, conforming to the federal law.

Bag limits were also announced by the State Wild Life Department. They are 25 in one day for doves—the federal limit was reduced from 20 to 15; wild geese was placed at five—it was formerly four, and woodcock was fixed at four; migratory ducks were placed at 10 as a total for all varieties.

It's an Off Day and a Fish Fry for Crackers

Atlanta's Crackers and sports writers were guests Wednesday night of Newnan's sportsmen at a fish fry at the Newnan Country Club. And The Constitution's cameraman caught up with some of the enjoyment and here it is. Kneeling, left to right, is Paul Keheley, Newnan; Hugh Luby, Paul Richards and Johnny Hill, Cracker players. Odds Against Atlanta Having 18 Game Winner

Cracker Hurlers Will Have To Step to Equal Bud Thomas' Last Season Record.

By JACK TROY.

The odds are against Atlanta having an 18-game winner on the pitching staff this season.

Three pitchers—Moon, Beckman and Durham—have won 13 games each.

There are 28 games left to play.

Theoretically, it is possible for each of these pitchers to start seven times before the season ends. But to win 18 games, they would have to win five of the seven starts or else pick up some victories in a relief role along the way.

Last season, the Crackers had an 18-game winner in Luther (Bud) Thomas, the Old Virginian, and two 17-game winners in Al Williams and Bobby Durham.

LEONARD LED.

In addition, the Crackers had the league-leading pitcher in Dutch Leonard, who won 13 and lost 3 in his less than half a season with the club.

Leo Moon, who won 17 and lost 9 for the tail-end Knoxville Smokies last year, will do well to win that many again. Three straight setbacks have sort of thrown a harpoon in Moon's chances of having a great season.

Cracker pitching never has approached the class or consistency of last year's, of course, but the club has some solace in the knowledge that two rookie prospects promise much for the future.

They are Lawrence Miller and Luman Harris. Miller has won eight games and lost five.

HARRIS GREAT.

An unsolved mystery is why Manager Eddie Moore does not see fit to use each of them in a starting role. Harris showed the stuff of which he was made when he turned in a great relief performance against Birmingham Tuesday night. Miller also did a great relief job in the same series.

If Miller had been used more in a starting role, chances are his record would rank with any of the Cracker hurlers.

At any rate, they're two very likely rookies and there are many who would like to see them get a chance to develop.

Crackers, Barons Are Again Square.

Last season Birmingham could win only one out of 11 games in Atlanta and the Crackers had the same kind of luck in Birmingham.

They did a little better in each other's park this season. Now that they're through playing each other, a check of the record shows that Atlanta won three and lost eight at Rickwood, while Birmingham won three and lost eight at Ponce de Leon.

The only other club the Crackers have finished with for the season is Nashville, and the Vols have an edge both at home and in Atlanta.

Lance Richbourg's nine won six and lost five here and won seven and lost four in Sulpher Dell.

WARREN MEETS STEEL TONIGHT

Warren and Atlantic Steel will clash tonight on the Warren athletic field in a game that is slated to get under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Lewis Carpenter, knuckle ball artist, and one of the best right-handers in the city, will hurl for Dixisteel, while Mac Vickery, former Oglethorpe pitcher, will be on the mound for Warren.

Friday night Warren plays the United States Royal nine from Hogansville at 8:30 o'clock. They meet the Dunson Mills from LaGrange Saturday afternoon and Covington Mills Sunday afternoon. All games to be played on the Warren athletic field with the afternoon games starting at 3:30 o'clock.

Saturday afternoon ladies and children under 16 years of age will be admitted free of charge.

WIGHTMAN CUP SQUAD CHOSEN

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Alice Marble, Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan were selected today as the United States team for the Wightman cup matches with Great Britain at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I., Friday and Saturday.

Miss Marble and Miss Jacobs will play the first and second singles against Great Britain's Kay Stammers and Ruth Hardwick, who were selected as Nos. 1 and 2 for the British. Mrs. Fabyan will meet Margot Lumb, of the British team, in the third singles.

After a brilliant match today Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Van Ryn were picked as the United States first doubles team. They beat the second duo, Mrs. Fabyan and Miss Marble, 6-4, 6-4. Miss Stammers and Freda James will play the first doubles for Great Britain with Joan Ingram and Evelyn Dearman in the second position.

HURLS NO-HITTER.

CARROLLTON, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Fred Chance put a no-hit game into the records here by hurling the Lawler softball team to a 1-0 victory over Villa Rica. He struck out one. Tillman singled to center, scoring Hubbard, for the winning run.

GRANT DEFEATS RANGY JOE HUNT

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 18.—(AP) The slump that Don Budge, the world's greatest amateur tennis player, slipped into after his brilliant Davis cup performances reached an alarming depth today when the lean red-haired Californian barely succeeded in reaching the quarter-finals of the hist c Newport casino tourney.

Budge, who resumed singles competition yesterday with unimpressive performances, managed to gain the round of eight by faltering along to a 1-6, 11-9, 6-4, 6-4 victory over stubby Frank Guernsey Jr., of Orlando, Fla., who is making his first tour of the eastern turf circuit.

The champion of champions was so discouraged with his scant success over the Florida youhr that he was tempted to default, although this competition gives him the last chance to polish up his singles game for next month's title quest at Forest Hills.

Frank Parker, Bryan (Bitsy) Grant and Gene Mako, Budge's doubles mate, were the other American Davis cuppers to enter the round of eight. Advancing with them were Jiro Yamagishi, the Japanese champion, his countryman, Fumituro Nakano; Bobby Riggs, of Los Angeles, 19-year-old California sensation of the current eastern season, and last year's Casino winner, and John McDiarmid, scholarly Princeton instructor.

McDiarmid won the right to meet Budge tomorrow by coming from behind to defeat Yvon Petra, of France, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

Grant, improving overnight, played the best tennis of the day while ousting rangy Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, from his path, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4. That triumph moved the mighty Atlanta mite into the bracket Yamagishi gained when he eliminated the sixth-seeded John Van Ryn, Austin, Texas, 7-5, 6-2, 6-1.

Stewart Suspended For Leaving Chicks

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 18.—(AP) Walter Stewart, veteran southpaw hurler for the Memphis baseball club, drew an indefinite suspension, Manager Billy Southworth announced today, "for leaving the team without permission."

Southworth, speaking from Nashville, said he imposed the punishment last night with the backing of Club Owner Thomas Watkins.

"Stewart came to me yesterday and requested permission to go home for three days while the Chicks were not scheduled," Southworth said. "For good reasons, I refused to grant the request. Stewart informed me he was going regardless. I told him he was indefinitely suspended."

Stewart, at his home at Crossville today, telephoned:

"I had been sick with what I suppose was influenza. I asked permission last night to stay at my home in Crossville for three days to rest up.

"About the future? I'm not going to do anything. Just stay at home for the rest of the season. I can't play ball for that man."

MATCHES OPEN THIS MORNING ON NO. 1 COURSE

Black Rock Wins Team Honor; Dr. Hughes Plays D. Yates.

By ROY WHITE.

Luke and Ralph Barnes, two former city junior champions and municipal players, shared medal honors with 72's, one stroke over par, Wednesday on the No. 1 East Lake course in qualifying for Atlanta's annual amateur championship golf tournament.

They are the youngest of Atlanta's well-known family of golfing Barneses. Tommy, the 1936 city champion, is in Portland, Ore., in the National Amateur, and Pete, the eldest, barely missed the championship division.

Dick Garlington, a runner-up several years ago in the city tourney, turned in a sensational 70, one stroke under par, but was disqualified along with two others for violation of golf rules.

Keith Conway, president of the Atlanta Golf Association, and his associates, ruled on the violations after they were brought to their attention by the players themselves. It was unfortunate, but in strict accordance with the rules.

Charlie Barnes, another municipal player, but no relation to the medalists, shared second place with Cliff Eley, with 74's, three strokes over par. Dr. Julius Hughes, Billy Street and Jack Cook finished in third place with 75's.

BLACK ROCK WINS.

Black Rock Country Club, with Luke and Charlie Barnes, Dan Gottesman and J. W. Simmons, members, won the team trophy. The aggregate score was 313, two strokes lower than Ansley park, which was represented by Jack Cook, Jiroud Jones, W. G. Bowen and Billy Jones. Capital City and Druid Hills trailed in order. The East Lake team was disqualified.

First round matches will start in four divisions today, with Dr. Julius Hughes and Dan Yates, leading the way in the championship flight at 9:30 o'clock.

The second division starts at 2:30 o'clock, the third at 8:10 and the fourth at 10:50 o'clock.

The winning and losing players in each division except the fourth, will form flights after today's play. The fourth will continue without being divided.

Wednesday's qualifying rounds were the most unusual ever played in Atlanta's golf history.

Two municipal players, given not much better than an even chance to qualify in the select division, came crashing through to win the medal, with many of the city's veterans well back of the leaders and some in the second division.

Dan and Alan Yates, two young East Lake stars, shot a pair of 77s, and were drawn in opposite brackets in the championship division. Oliver Healey beat his brother Bill by a single stroke and they, too, are in opposite groups in the select division.

William Johnson, another of the young group of East Lake players, made the select circle and meets Bud Bicknell, Capital City player, today.

EVENLY MATCHED.

Every private club in the city is well represented in the championship division and Sunday's winner will have waded through one of the toughest fields ever entered in a city golf tourney, for no player can be singled out above the field.

GIANTS DEFEAT BEES, CUT LEAD TO TWO GAMES

Win Is Fifth Straight for Both New York and Pittsburgh.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Pep Young's ninth-inning single drove Paul Waner home to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7 to 6 victory over the floundering Chicago Cubs yesterday and their fifth straight triumph. The blow came as a driving rainstorm hit the city and after the Cubs had scored twice in the same frame to forge one run ahead.

Carl Hubbell

Carl Hubbell and his New York Giant mates climbed to within two games of the National league lead by walloping the Bees 9 to 1 for their fifth straight victory.

The pitching of the great lefthander baffled the Bees with sever hits as his mates clubbed Lou Fette out of the park under a five-run barrage in the first inning and coasted in with a 12-hit attack. The win was Hubbell's 17th of the year.

Since the league-leading Chicago Cubs were whipped by Pittsburgh, the Giants picked up another full game in their chase after the top spot.

Fette, Boston's sensational lefthander, made his debut against the Giants in today's clash, and got only as far as two our before he took a walk to the showers. By that time, the Giants already had the game on ice, and their two other runs in the sixth and two more in the ninth were unnecessary.

Bobbitt Enters National Meets

Russell Bobbitt, Georgia Tech net star, left yesterday for the east, where he will enter the national singles at Forest Hills and will pair with Frank Guernsey to play in the national doubles at Chestnut Hill, Mass.

Bobbitt will arrive in Newport, R. I., where he will join Guernsey for two or three days of practice. Guernsey was eliminated from the Newport tournament yesterday by Donald Budge, 1-6, 11-9, 6-4, 6-4. The young Floridan made a great showing in extending the top ranking American net star.

After several workouts Bobbitt and Guernsey will go to Chesnut Hill, Mass., to enter the national doubles. The following week the two will enter the national singles at Forest Hills.

If there is any time left before Georgia Tech opens, Russell plans to enter the Allentown invitation at Allentown, Pa.

You can look for results from young Bobbitt and his partner, Frank Guernsey. These two boys this summer have already won the Tennessee valley invitation doubles, the mid-Dixie doubles, and were runnerups in the Kentucky state. In the Kentucky finals they were bested by Merrimon Cunningham and John McDiarmid, two of the top ranking net stars of the nation.

Bobbitt last Sunday captured the Alabama state singles and Tuesday paired with Campbell Gillespie to win the city doubles title.

Seeded Stars Win In Pittsburgh Play

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Seeded players continued their display of superiority, but a thunderstorm swept down from the hills surrounding South Park today to interrupt play in the National Public Parks tennis championship with only half the scheduled 28 matches completed.

The scores told the story of tighter tennis as the men's singles competition reached the third round and other divisions advanced.

Although defending champions, Lewis Wetherell and Elizabeth Deike, both from Los Angeles vicinity, never started their matches, other seeded stars found strong opposition.

Mike McLaney, of New Orleans, seeded No. 2, finally subdued Tatsuo Todo, the last of the barefoot Hawaiian singles contenders, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Donald Lubin, of Los Angeles, recent winner of the Grand National and seeded No. 3, conquered Al Doyle, of New York, in four sets of the fastest tennis exhibited during the day, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5.

DAVIS RELEASED IN SALLY LEAGUE

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Dr. E. M. Wilder, president of the South Atlantic Baseball Association, said today he released Umpire Allyn Davis "for the good of the South Atlantic league and for organized baseball."

"I do not care to discuss the matter further," said Wilder.

Umpire Harry Reeder, of Augusta, home on leave from the Southern association, has taken Davis' place.

Davis May Carry Case to Bramham.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—While Allyn Davis, banished South Atlantic league umpire, considered an appeal to Judge W. G. Bramham, "czar" of the minor leagues, prominent Macon citizens today rallied to his support in a protest against the unconditional release of the arbiter Tuesday.

Davis was ousted by President Eugene Wilder yesterday after the Sally League head conferred with Bobby Lamotte, executive of the Savannah baseball club, and Manager Chick Autry, on an incident after the Monday night Savannah-Macon games here in which Lamotte received a blow in the face before scores of spectators in front of the umpire's dressing room.

Local fans, prize umpire "baiters" of the circuit, were quick to protest against the unprecedented discharge of Davis for his part in the occurrence. Davis had banished Manager Autry and Shortstop Arky Biggs for what he called ungentlemanly language on the field in protest of his decisions.

Lamotte, according to the onlookers who included several police officers, approached Davis in front of the umpire's dressing room after the game, which Savannah lost, and upbraided him and charged him with partiality.

The tirade was culminated when Davis struck Lamotte.

President Wilder came to Macon unannounced yesterday, talked with Lamotte and Autry and told Davis he would be given his release.

Davis has not made a report on the incident and his version of the embroglio was not asked.

Lamotte refused to discuss the incident with newspapermen.

"There's nothing to it," he said last night.

Macon baseball officials were not apprised of President Wilder's visit, nor were they asked for information on the trouble.

Florida Stars Top Asheville Golf Meet

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—The Florida contingent led by Medalist Maynard Ramsey Jr. and Tom Perry, of Tampa, made a virtual clean sweep of first flight contests today as match play started in the Asheville Country Club golf tournament.

Ramsey eliminated Dr. Q. T. Bilbro, of Asheville, 3 and 1, and Perry clipped two strokes from par in drubbing Weaver Wilson, of Asheville, 4 and 3.

James T. Swann Sr., also of Tampa, triumphed over Garfield Miller Jr., of Miami, in the day's lone upset, one up. C. E. Hegler, of Orlando, matched par in putting out Raymond L. Pittman Jr., of Fayetteville, N. C., one up. Gene Simon, the fourth Tampa start to advance, won over Arthur Avent, of Jacksonville, one up, 19 holes.

Nazi Track Charge Brings British Reply

LONDON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Nazi charges that Britain beat Germany at a track meet last Saturday by "unfair methods" created a stir in the British Amateur Athletic Association today.

"It is unfortunate that the sportsmanship of the German team should not be reproduced in a section of the German press," commented D. G. A. Lowe, A. A. A. secretary.

VERNON KENNEDY YIELDS 4 BLOWS; DIMAG HITS 35TH

Indians Split Twin Bill With Browns; A's Win.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Chicago White Sox climbed back to within a half-game of the second-place Detroit Tigers yesterday when Vernon Kennedy held Detroit to four hits for a 6-to-0 triumph in the second game of the series.

Luke Appling

More than 6,000 fans saw Kennedy pitch his best game of the season while the Sox walloped Eldon Auker for four runs in the third inning and two more in the sixth. The Sox, however, made only seven hits of Auker and Jack Russell, three of them by Luke Appling.

The Yankees' chief game wrecker, Joe DiMaggio, broke up another ball game Wednesday.

DiMaggio, in addition to his homer, also collected a double and a single, to lead the attack. Cecil Travis, Washington's American league batting leader, managed only one hit in five trips to the plate.

The Athletics broke a season-long jinx held over them by the Boston Red Sox by taking a 4-to-2 decision at Shibe park, their first victory in 13 games with Boston Red Sox.

The St. Louis Browns dropped into the American league cellar and then promptly climbed out again, as they split a double-header with the Cleveland Indians, losing the first game, 5 to 2, and winning the second, 11 to 6. Philadelphia was shoved back into last place by the Browns' nightcap victory.

Luttrell Bows to Zaharias In 3 Falls

While engaged in a violent verbal exchange with Brother Chris Zaharias, who heckled him effectively from a ringside seat, Cowboy Luttrell was felled from behind and pinned by George Zaharias in the third and deciding fall of the main match on Frank Speer's wrestling card at the ball park Wednesday night.

A good crowd saw the bouts and showered the Cowboy with cushions as he protested his body was out of the ring when the fall was called against him by Referee Brown.

It was a wild match, Luttrell working his taped wrist furiously to take the first fall in four minutes. A wrangle ensued when Zaharias showed up with his wrist also taped for the second, but finally both agreed to discard the tape and it was used no more.

Big George took the second fall in nine minutes with four terrific flying tackles and a body block. The third fall required but five minutes, but was filled with action while it lasted.

Dan O'Connor polished off Dobie "Quit Pullin' My Hair" Osborne, another of the Texas bad men, winning two falls out of three in the semi-final. Osborne continued his feud with Referee Brown, but found time to get in enough kicks, hair-pulling and choking on O'Connor to win the first fall in 12 minutes with a reverse headlock.

The Irishman also got rough when they came back, and evened matters with a beautiful double-arm pull that made Osborne give up after 11 minutes. A double armlock won the match for O'Connor in eight minutes.

Chris Zaharias, after getting the worst of 15 minutes of clean wrestling with Gene Bowman, newcomer from Chattanooga, who used the Irish whip and a figure-four scissors effectively, fell back on the rough stuff and battered Bowman down in 20 minutes of the opener.

Charlotte Is Selected As Junior Ball Host

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Okemah, Okla., East Lynn, Mass., and Charlotte, N. C., were selected today by the American Legion as host cities for the three sectional meets of the annual Legion junior baseball tournament.

The tournaments at East Lynn and Charlotte will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday and the one at Okemah will be held Saturday and Sunday.

At Charlotte the teams will be New Orleans, Birmingham, Ala., Richmond, Va., and Charlotte.

BELL, JEFFRIES CLASH TONIGHT

Fast, rough action will be in order tonight when Wild Bill Jeffries, Pampas Bull, tackles Ted Bell, East Lynn grappler, who made a wonderful showing in his first match at the Avondale arena last week.

Avondale fans are promised the best card of the current season when six of the best light-heavyweight wrestlers in the country meet here tonight in three main matches.

Bell showed the fans last week what they do to an unruly matman in Massachusetts. He also demonstrated that he is above the average run of wrestlers when he applied several holds that were not in the book.

Jack Layden, Denver ace, meets Mike Cassidy, tough Omaha wrestler, in the semi-final one-hour bout. Baron Karl Von Hoffman, German wrestler, tackles a newcomer in Horace Coulter in the opening match at 8:30 p. m.

Obie To Meet Jack Rose Tuesday

Featuring a 10-round battle between Bearcat Obie, Atlanta contender for world heavyweight honors, and Jack Rose, 200-pound negro challenger from Pittsbugh, Promoter Cleve Roby will present 36 rounds of classy boxing Tuesday night at the West End arena.

Obie figures the Rose fight to be a real test as he prepares to meet Leroy Haynes here in the near future.

Roby's supporting match of 10 rounds will bring together Tiger Nelson, of Tampa, and T. Hubert, of Atlanta, two hard-hittin, light-heavyweights.

Little Rock Manager Admits Receiving Offers From Majors.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 18.—(AP) Manager James Thompson (Doc) Prothro, of the Little Rock, Southern association club, confirmed reports today he has been sought as manager of clubs "of higher classification," but added "I more than likely will remain at Little Rock" next season.

PILOT CHECKS CLUE THAT LOST FLIERS REACHED CONTINENT

Natives May Have Heard Motors; Wilkins Ready To Join Search.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 18. (AP)—Ace rescue fliers sought an opening in the cloudy, rain-laden northern Alaska skies today, to speed their planes on the air trail of a native clue to the whereabouts of six lost Soviet transpolar airmen.

Bob Randall, a Canadian, planned to take off from Point Barrow to check up on the story of natives in the Barter island area that they heard what might have been an airplane motor "four or five days ago."

The natives' story raised the possibility that the missing fliers, headed by the Soviet ace Sigismund Levanevsky, actually reached the North American continent instead of coming down in the ice-covered Arctic ocean, as Moscow officials believed.

The three-nation search gained momentum when the Soviet embassy in Washington arranged through the Explorers' Club for Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted Arctic explorer, to join the hunt with a large American flying boat stationed at North Beach airport, New York.

Jimmy Mattern, ace American flyer, who is "repaying a debt" to Levanevsky for his own rescue by the Russian flyer several years ago, chafed at the weather here which is keeping his big long-range cruising plane on the ground. He flew here from southern California to join the hunt.

3 SOVIET PLANES FLY NORTH IN ARCTIC HUNT

MOSCOW, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Three rescue planes flew northward today in search of Pilot Sigismund Levanevsky's lost transpolar plane while the icebreaker Krassin headed toward Cape Barrow with four more planes and dog teams.

Pilot Zadkoff flew to Cape Wellen, Pilot Grazlansky left Krasnoyarsk for Dudinka and Pilot Golovin flew from Kazan to Sverdlovsk.

Security Pay Urged For Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP) Senator Moore, Democrat, New Jersey, proposed social security today for aged representatives and senators.

He introduced a bill to give legislators half-pay retirement upon completing 20 years of service and attaining the age of sixty-five.

Moore explained that he would not be eligible because he does not plan to run again for the senate. He is a candidate for governor of New Jersey.

$292,558,037 DEFICIT SHOWN BY TREASURY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The treasury rounded out the first month and a half of this fiscal year with a $292,558,037 deficit.

A treasury report today showed this compared with a $220,975,273 excess of expenditures in the corresponding period a year ago.

example, a spokesman explained the system as follows:

"Last year, Richmond county had 439 teachers, under the seven-month program, the state will pay minimum salaries for 308 Richmond county teachers.

"The salaries of the remainder will be paid from the county's school fund, just as all teachers were paid in Richmond county last year.

"It may be possible that Richmond county, with the additional money from the state, will want to increase the number of its teachers."

In those counties apportioned more teachers than last year, the additional teachers will have to be employed before the county can draw their salaries.

Twice As Much Cash.

The department estimated every county will receive at least twice as much money under the new program as was donated to it by the state last year.

The regular appropriation to common schools was increased from approximately $4,000,000 to more than $9,000,000 to meet demands of the seven-month program.

In addition, the state will continue its "equalization fund" of approximately $3,000,000 distributed to schools on the basis of need.

The apportionment of teachers to counties was based on average daily attendance at schools last year, population density of the county, and size of the largest city in the county according to definite regulations promulgated in the school law.

Depends on Qualifications.

The amount of money to be received by each county will depend on the qualifications of teachers employed according to the following salary schedule:

Teachers holding county licenses, $40 per month.

Professional, $65 per month.
Life professional, $70 per month.

Certificates based on three years' college work:

Provisional, $65 per month.
Professional, $70 per month.
Life professional, $75 per month.

Certificates based on four or more years college:

Provisional, $70 per month.
Professional, $75 per month.
Life professional, $80 per month.

For White Teachers.

The above schedule is for white teachers. Negro teachers will receive approximately 60 per cent of the scale in each class.

The apportionment of teachers, including both white and negro for grammar and high schools, is made subject to distribution between the various types of schools by local authorities.

The scale of pay set by the state is the minimum which it will contribute, and does not preclude local boards from having higher salaries supplemented from local funds. Local institutions also may employ teachers beyond the limit set by the board, the additional ones to be paid solely by local authorities.

The apportionments for the various systems ("x" denotes city systems) with figures for 1936 employment are:

MORE U. S. AID SEEN FOR SCHOOLS

Prospects of more federal aid for Georgia schools loomed yesterday as Governor Rivers and the school board conferred with a representative of President Roosevelt's Commission on Education. The Governor said:

"The commission is looking to improvements in education and we hope for the placing of additional federal said."

Dr. Joseph A. Baer, of the Connecticut department of education, represented the Roosevelt commission in the conference with the Georgia board. The commission is studying curriculums, administrations and financial set-ups in various states. Governor Rivers also said:

"The commission has developed the fact that Georgia has a taxpaying ability of 20 per cent less than the average southern states and 50 per cent less than the average state in the nation. This ought to prove that we need more educational aid from the federal government."

A delegation from the Georgia railroad visited the board yesterday to express appreciation for the course in public safety inaugurated in the schools, Governor Rivers said.

Georgia Child Bride, 13, Wedded on 13th

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 18. Flaunting superstition and childhood's irresponsibilities, Montez Bennett, 13, eloped Friday, the 13th, with Linton Whitemire, 20, the families revealed today.

The child bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Toy Bennett, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bulos Whitmire, both of near Chestatee High school in Forsyth county.

It is reported the couple will live with the bride's parents.

BUTCHERY VICTIM FOUND MURDERED

by fire. Insurance company investigators said it must have been saturated with gasoline before it was fired.

Identified by Tattoo.

The body was identified positively by a small tattoo mark on the arm. The mark was virtually the only means by which identification could be established, since the body was mutilated so completely.

The father said young Revels, clerical employe of a coal company, visited a sister, Mrs. Ruby Weathers, at Lytle Sunday afternoon. After leaving her home in his car to return here Sunday night, he had not been seen.

The body was discovered in a drainage ditch running into Chickamauga creek by J. E. Fielding, Chattanooga, a fisherman. Fielding said it suddenly bobbed to the surface, as if it may have slipped free of weights which held it below the surface.

14 Wounds in Face.

Police physicians found 14 separate knife wounds on the face of the body, aside from the savage slash which severed the head. They said the wounds on the face and abdomen gave the impression they were inflicted in a blind frenzy of rage.

The youth's hands were bound in front of him with a towel. Police said he may have been robbed, since nothing of value was found in his pockets.

He apparently had been killed Sunday night. First stages of decomposition had set in.

Sheriff J. M. Moreland, of Catoosa county, Georgia, convened a coroner's jury for an inquest, at which L. E. Revels, brother of the victim, identified the body by the tattoo marks.

GRADY TO STORE SUPPLY OF BLOOD

storage but it will not have enough money to pay for the blood."

The superintendent said need for the "blood bank" resulted from the difficulty in finding donors with the proper type blood when an emergency transfusion is needed. By having a store of all types blood at all times, lives may be saved which would be lost by any delay, Franklin said.

"After we get a sufficient amount of blood to start operating, we will supply what blood is needed to any patient who needs transfusion," Franklin explained. "When the patient is well or recovered enough to find a friend or relative to contribute some blood, we will take as much as the patient used, replacing it in our 'blood reserve.'

Stores of All Types.

"It will not have to be the same type that was borrowed, for with the bank we will need stores of all types constantly," he said.

The Grady trustees yesterday also discussed treatment of out-of-town emergency patients. The hospital now accepts emergency patients from everywhere, although it was pointed out the law says Grady can treat only indigent patients of Atlanta and, by contract, from Fulton county. No action was taken by the board.

TOWNE SHIRT

"Willow Bark"

a smart-as-a-whip new weave in the new fall shades of blue, tan and grey—or plain white

1.65

Men—this, in our honest opinion is one of the most distinctive shirts we've ever seen—and leave it to TOWNE to create it! The close-grained bark of the willow tree inspired the good-looking new weave which lends such unusual intensity of color. Tests have proven that it'll resist wear and repeated washings to a remarkable degree and its new-laundered freshness lasts all day. The new patented collar is seamless, Hydro-shrunk and tailored in the impeccable TOWNE way.

Countess De Sieyes and Daughters Will Visit Relatives in October

By Sally Forth.

COUNTESS BERNARD DE SIEYES, lovely daughter of Mrs. Harry Stearns, who is the former Alice Stearns, will sail with her two children, Muffie and Valerie, on September 25 from their home in South America, and they will land in New York on October 12. Their hosts of Atlanta friends will be delighted to hear they will come here soon thereafter for quite a lengthy stay with Mrs. Stearns. Count de Sieyes will spend several weeks in France and England before joining his family here for a visit.

For the past year, Buenos Aires has been the pied a terre of Count and Countess de Sieyes, a city in which they have formed a delightful circle of friends among the socialites. They moved to South America from Paris, where they resided several years after their marriage. Count de Sieyes is a native of France and is descended from illustrious French ancestors. He met his charming wife when they crossed the Atlantic ocean on the same ship, and the romance culminated in their marriage. Their pretty little daughters speak French and English fluently and Countess de Sieyes is noted for her witty and brilliant conversation in several languages other than her native tongue.

HOWARD BUCKNELL JR. is being rapidly advanced in the diplomatic service, having recently been appointed American consul at Geneva, Switzerland. He spent his boyhood in Atlanta, and is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Bucknell, who call Atlanta and Easthampton their home. His brother is Harlan Bucknell, and his beautiful sister is Mrs. Dickson Potter, of New York and Easthampton, who is the former Sue Bucknell.

Mr. Bucknell has held many important offices in the American foreign service since entering the diplomatic field. He ranks among the most brilliant and popular young men in the service, and is deserving of the trust imposed in him by the government of the United States.

MRS. X. had just moved to Atlanta and, wishing to join a certain church here, she mailed in her letter. Several days later, the minister decided to call on the new member of his congregation. He arrived, rang the bell, and imagine his surprise when the lady in question peered out of an upstairs window and, seeing the attractive young man below, yelled out:

"Oh, mister, I'm having a meeting of my sewing circle here today, so if you have something to sell, do bring it back tomorrow."

INSTEAD of carrying the proverbial bridal bouquet, the former Dixie Woolford, who last evening became the bride of Dillon Kalkhurst, chose a lace-covered prayer book. The book is a cherished possession of Dillon's, for it was given him at his confirmation by a lifelong friend of the Kalkhurst family.

The exquisite handmade lace handkerchief covering the prayer book was made by Dillon's aunt and carried by his mother when she became the bride of Mr. Kalkhurst. The lovely lace kerchief also graced the prayer book carried by the former Betty Schroder when she was married to Dillon's brother Jack a few years ago.

The only ornament worn by last evening's bride was a crystal rosary blest by Pope Pius when Dillon's parents had an audience with the Holy Father when they visited the Vatican in Rome a few weeks ago.

Miss Bell Honored.

Miss La Verne Bell, of Tifton, was complimented with a steak supper by Miss Olivia Du Vall whom she is visiting. The affair was in the outdoor dining room of the Du Vall home, on Cascade avenue. After supper the guests enjoyed dancing. Chaperons were Mrs. W. C. Mason and Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Du Vall.

Invited were Misses Bell, Bernice Martin, Carolyn Worley, Louise Burton, Mary Reynolds, Le Margaret Cavaleri, Sarah Brewer, Eleanor Van Fleet, Eugenia Mason, Olivia Du Vall and Bob Clarke, Clifford Thompson, Tom Thompson, Carl Dacus, Carl Verlonder, Gene McNair, Alvin Nixon, Gary McGaw, William Clarke and Jack Sanders.

For Mrs. Rickard.

Miss Jane Clippinger entertained at luncheon yesterday honoring Mrs. Mark A. Rickard, who before her marriage in February, was Miss Sara Cheves. Mrs. Charles Clippinger and Miss Margaret Clippinger will assist in entertaining.

Guests were Misses Margaret Adkins, Eleanor Inez, Marion Oliver, Virginia Sauls, Alma Willby and Mesdames Frank Gaither, Mack Rickard and the hostess.

Goldstein—Rice.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Goldsteln announce the marriage of their daughter, Bess, to Ben William Rice no August 14, the ceremony taking place in Chattanooga, Tenn., with Rabbi Gerstein officiating. The couple left for a trip to Florida.

Society Events

THURSDAY, AUGUST 19.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Coates and Charles Alonzo Ewing takes place at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Coates, on Emory road, to be followed by a reception for the bridal party and families.

Mrs. Harvey Hamff gives a luncheon and miscellaneous shower at her home on Williams Mill road for Miss Sarah Dobbs, bride-elect.

Miss Ellender Johnson gives a bridge-tea for Miss Virginia McCurdy, bride-elect.

Mrs. Carl Sutherland gives a bridge-luncheon for Miss Betty Shaw, bride-elect.

Miss Ann Bumstead gives a dance at her home on Houston Mill road for her guest, Miss Becky Candler, of Jacksonville, Florida.

Dinner-dance takes place at the Capital City Country Club.

A lawn party will be given by Mrs. W. T. Hankins and Mrs. C. R. Midgett at the home of Mrs. Midgett at 650 Holderness street for the Young Matrons' Class of the Baptist Tabernacle.

Mrs. W. P. Smith entertains at a tea at the U. D. C. chapter house for her daughter, Mrs. W. P. Smith, recent bride.

Woolford-Kalkhurst Wedding Solemnized at Church Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. DILLON KALKHURST.

The marriage of Miss Dixie Woolford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Woolford, of Dallas, Texas, formerly of Atlanta, to Dillon Kalkhurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kalkhurst, of this city, was solemnized last evening at 6 o'clock at the Church of Christ the King before an assemblage of close friends. Rev. Father R. A. Moyland performed the ceremony which was preceded by a program of music rendered by the organist, Roland Tomlinson.

Palms and foliage plants banked the altar with tall floor baskets filled with white gladioli and white asters arranged at graceful intervals. The glow from myriads of gleaming white tapers reflected a soft glow over the beautiful wedding scene.

Mrs. Almon Raines, of this city, and Mrs. G. E. Manassa, of Fernandina, Fla., the bride's sisters, were her only attendants and the groom's brother, Jack Kalkhurst, was his best man. Mrs. Raines wore a stunning gown fashioned of blush pink starched chiffon over matching taffeta. The fitted waist line was achieved by a soft smocking effect introduced also on the short puffed sleeves. Narrow grosgrain ribbon of a Dubonnet shade outlined the square neckline and also formed the girdle, the ends of the ribbon reaching to the end of the floor length skirt. She wore a becoming headdress made of Rubrum lilies and she carried a bouquet of the lovely Rubrum lilies tied with Dubonnet ribbon.

Mrs. Manassa wore rose pink starched chiffon fashioned like that worn by Mrs. Raines. Dubonnet ribbon trimmed her dress and she wore a headdress of Rubrum lilies and carried a bouquet of the same flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a striking figure wearing her bridal gown of blush pink satin fashioned on regal Princess lines with long sleeves and train extending several yards in length. Her bridal veil of blush illusion tulle was held to her hair in halo effect by a bandeau of blush satin, the billowy folds reaching to the end of her train. She carried a lace covered prayer book showered with gardenias and valley lilies.

Ushers were W. E. Hawkins, A. R. Raines, William A. Horne Jr. and Ralph Black.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Woolford were hosts at a reception held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Proctor in Ansley Park. They were assisted in receiving by the bride and groom, members of the bridal party, Mr. and Mrs. Kalkhurst, the groom's parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Proctor.

Mrs. Woolford was attired in beige-colored lace fashioned over matching taffeta and worn with brown accessories. Her hat was of brown velour and she wore a shoulder bouquet of bronze shaded orchids.

Mrs. Kalkhurst was gowned in a late afternoon model fashioned of champagne-colored satin and worn with a hat of beret syle to match. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of delicately-tinted orchids.

A group of the bride's close friends assisted in entertaining, including Misses Elizabeth See, Eleanor Gray and Mesdames A. A. Orrender, W. E. Hawkins and Hallie Hulsey.

Mr. Kalkhurst and his bride left in the early evening by motor for Tampa, Fla., from where they will sail for Havana, Cuba, to spend their honeymoon. They will return to Raleigh, N. C., for residence.

For travelling the bride donned a wine wool crepe ensemble worn with suede hat of matching shade and other wine-colored accessories.

Included among out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McConnell, of Dallas, Texas; Ralph Black, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Jarman McCullough, of Fayetteville, Tenn.

For Miss Dukes.

Miss Alice Dukes, whose marriage to Lee Roy Jordan takes place in August, was honored at a luncheon given recently by Miss Constance Johnson. The bride-elect was the recipient of a wedding memory book presented by the hostess.

In addition to the honoree, covers were laid for Mesdames L. V. Ware, J. A. Martin, Ethel Hoffman, J. O. Burdette, R. L. Sims, E. J. Detwiler, Nell Gallant, C. H. Freeman, Misses Anne Stephens, Bessie Withers and the hostess.

FAT WOMEN SMOTHER IN TIGHT GIRDLES

Tight girdles and stiff foundation garments actually make many women look fatter. Instead of squeesing your fat, why don't you try to get rid of it? Why not have a slim, lovely, youthful figure that needs but little girdle control?

Thousands of overweight women have found that the Marmola way is the easy way to get rid of ugly fat. Just take 4 Marmola Prescription Tablets each day, and in place of starchy foods like potatoes and pastries, eat more salads, fruits, green vegetables, and go slow on fatty meats. That's simple, isn't it? Yet what a difference Marmola and this little change in your diet may make in your weight. Losses of 5 to 8 pounds a week have been reported in many cases from this simple, easy method of reducing. Marmola Prescription Tablets contain the same element prescribed by many doctors in treating their fat patients. Get a box at your druggist today and send that ugly fat on its way.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS DE WITTE ALEXANDER JR.

Miss Mary Blackwell became the bride of Thomas DeWitte Alexander Jr., of Columbus, at an impressive ceremony taking place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Church of Christ the King on Peachtree road. The impressive ceremony was read by Rev. Father Joseph Moylan in the presence of relatives and close friends. W. Ray Tomlinson, the organist, rendered the musical program prior to and during the service.

The bridal party entered the church through an improvised aisle formed of palms arranged on either side of the sanctuary and extending the length of the church. Vases filled with white asters and gladioli were used on either side of the altar and behind the altar was a background of palms. Ushers were Avary Austin, Chess Lagomarsino and Almon Raines.

Miss Alys Keiley, the maid of honor and only attendant, was gowned in buff-colored sheer crepe trimmed on the shoulders in brocaded effect. Her hat was of dark green velour and her accessories were dark green. Completing her costume was a corsage of orchids.

The bride entered with her brother, Earl Blackwell, of Hollywood, Cal., by whom she was given in marriage, and she was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, William Finch.

The lovely bride wore a becoming model of honey-beige crepe, fashioned along tailored lines, and the neckline was finished with two clips made of clusters of pearls. Over the stylish dress the bride wore a hip-length jacket of the same material trimmed with natural fox fur, which formed pockets on either side. Her hat was of heavy brown silk and her accessories were brown. A shoulder bouquet of lilies of the valley completed the costume.

Mrs. S. Earl Blackwell, mother of the bride, wore a model of dark blue chiffon with matching accessories and a picture hat of dark blue felt. Her flowers were gardenias.

Mrs. Marion Talley, of Chattanooga, Tenn., sister of the groom, wore a fall model of black crepe, the only trimming being a rhinestone clip at the neckline. She wore a black felt hat and her flowers were gardeniias.

Mr. Alexander and his bride left after the ceremony for a wedding trip to Black Mountain, N. C., after which they will reside in Columbus.

Wesleyan Alumnae.

Atlanta Wesleyan Alumnae Association met recently at the home of Mrs. C. C. Hogg Jr., on Adair avenue. Plans were made for the tea to be given in September by the alumnae association for new students entering Wesleyan this fall.

Present were Misses Margaret Eberhart, Lucy Christian, Virginia McJenkin, Margaret Richards, Mesdames D. W. Clanton, Milton H. Davis, Douglas Kersh, of Augusta; W. R. Bentley, J. D. Lewis, L. M. Roberts, James C. Davis, Augustus M. Roan, Lowry A. Sims and the hostess, Mrs. Hogg Jr.

For Miss Coates.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ewing entertained at a rehearsal party last evening at their home on Montclair drive honoring Miss Dorothy Coates and her fiance, Charles Ewing. The party immediately followed the rehearsal and guests included members of the wedding party and the families of the honor guests.

The artistic table decorations featured valley lilies which formed the center decoration and the cakes and mints were embossed with sprays of valley lilies.

Twenty-Five Club.

Twenty Five Club met recently at the waterworks knoll.

Present were Misses Grace McCleskey, Vivian Chastain, Mabel Light, Louise Lindsey, Nellie Biggers, Isla Mae Chaffin, Daisy Sills, Ethyl Monroe, Florence Smith, Doris Perry and Virginia Jenkins

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

SITTING SPREADS HIPLINE ONE AND ONE-HALF INCHES IN YEAR.

Standing all day long may be hard on your feet, but it is easier on your figure than eight hours at a desk. Tiresome as it may be, standing at least does something for your figure—it tonically contracts important muscles which are idle when you're sitting.

In continual sitting, the hip-controlling muscles, the inner and outer thigh muscles and the gluteals, which form the buttocks, are all affected to the disadvantage of the figure. It is not surprising that sitting upholsters the hips at the alarming rate of one and one-half inches per year.

The average woman today sits far more than she stands, and those who are figure-wise plan a definite program for putting those neglected muscles to work for half an hour a day. Anyone can walk for exercise, and walking is much more effective than standing. If you walk correctly, with every muscle in your body pulled upward, walking can be a valuable part of your program.

Walking, however, is fairly general in its effects, and what you need is specific exercise to single out the sedentary muscles. Tone and strengthen the muscles of the hip and thigh to counteract the long hours of enforced idleness which make the figure grow heavy and flabby. No program is so economical of energy as specific exercise. It concentrates on the muscles which get the least natural exercise, while asking little of the muscles used every day.

EXERCISE I.

Position: Stand on one leg and flex the knee of the other leg.

Movement: With the flexed knee, describe wide inward circles. Repeat 10 times, then flex the other knee and circle 10 times. Now, reverse the circles and perform the exercise with each knee-point. This exercise concentrates on the thigh muscles, which are used in flexing and rotating the leg.

EXERCISE II.

Movement: Start by placing the right toe at the outer side of the left foot from the front, then circle the foot around in back of body. Reverse direction of circucling, then bring the feet to rest in front of the body. Repeat the exercise 10 times with one foot, then with the other.

Here is a good exercise for the hipline and it is so easy that you can practice it several times a day.

Position: Lying face down on the floor, one knee flexed.

Movement: Without raising the hipbones off the floor, lift the flexed knee slightly off the floor. Tense the muscles, relax and lower to the floor. Ten times with one leg flexed, then with the other.

After eight hours' sitting, you will find that 30 minutes of corrective exercise can rest you, in addition to keeping your figure trim. Choose the exercises you like, but do them regularly.

JUST NUTS

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

POISON PLUS POISON.

According to a press report an Atlanta pathologist reported to the American Society of Clinical Pathologists, which certainly sounds a sober body, that his investigations warrant the conclusion that strychnine and corn whisky taken together are deadly poison, even in relatively small quantities.

Leaving to the paragraphers the humor, if any, in this observation, we comment on it here in response to numerous requests of readers.

In the first place, the poisoning described by the pathologist was poisoning of animals by alcohol and strychnine and instances of fatal poisoning of human beings by large doses of corn whisky and strychnine or by large doses of corn whisky taken by individuals who were in the habit of taking strychnine.

There is no reason to think that strychnine or alcohol is more poisonous when taken so combined than either drug is when taken alone, that is, in medicinal doses, under proper medical direction. Either strychnine or alcohol (in the form of corn whisky or otherwise) may be necessary as medicine in some circumstances, and old-time doctors believed, perhaps some old-timers still cherish the fancy, that fairly stiff doses of strychnine and whisky "stimulated" and kept alive patients who were desperately ill with septicemia, typhoid fever, pneumonia.

As house physician in a large hospital I prescribed my share of this deadly combination. Today some physicians may administer a "shot" of strychnine in an emergency, and a few still regard alcohol as a "stimulant" in spite of all scientific evidence, but probably no medical man of standing speeds the parting patient with rations of strychnine and whisky.

Fatal poisoning of old soaks who combine overdoses of strychnine or any dose of strychnine with their booze need not detain us long. Perhaps that is as good a way as any to dispose of such human waste.

Strychnine poisoning, however, should be the concern of every humane citizen, for in the great majority of cases this frightful death comes to some innocent child who happens to get hold of some nostrum or other, such as sugar or candy-coated or chocolate coated pills or tablets of some shotgun mixture purporting to be good for the stomach, liver, bowels, nerves, tired feeling, run down condition, bad blood, etc., and depending principally on the strychnine in the formula. It is a characteristically Yankee trait that we permit the indiscriminate sale and even the public distribution of samples of such deadly medicine; in Yankeeland when big business profits are concerned, who in hell cares whether a few scores of children are horribly murdered so long as the nostrum maker or vendor gets his?

Poisoning by strychnine is manifested by convulsions, spasms, out of a clear sky. The convulsions or spasms quickly bring death by cramp-asphyxia or locking of chest muscles so that breathing is impossible, or from exhaustion. There is good reason to believe that some alleged cases of "rabies" in human beings are in reality strychnine poisoning.

Be Smart This Fall With Your Own Year-Round Slip Covers

SIMPLE TO MAKE SLIP COVERS YOURSELF!

What a boon year-round slip covers are! If you've a chair in the dowdy stage, whip out a tape measure and figure how little it costs—and how easy it is—to make a beautiful cover for it.

For the average chair you need only about five to seven yards of 50-inch material. And why not try a plaid in a sturdy cotton or linen? Apricot and brown are striking and a brown looped fringe is a smart finish.

To measure, follow the dotted line in our picture. Begin with the back at A and continue to D, where the flounce begins. At C, leave a four-inch tuck-in to prevent pulling.

For each arm, measure from the seat to F. Allow two inches for a tuck-in between seat and arm. The box-pleated flounce should be two to three times the measurement around the chair. For all seams allow 1 1-2 inches.

Making the cover is almost as simple. To get a trim, professional fit, smooth your material snugly over the upholstery. If you use fringed trimming, spread the material wrong side up.

Then pin down every three inches and cut 1 1-2 inches outside the pins. Insert your trimming so that only the fringed part will show on the right side. Pin it in place carefully and baste. Next try on; then stitch.

Each step in the making of slip covers is clearly explained and diagramed in our 40-page booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully." It tells you how to fit, sew, trim and finish smart covers for all types of chairs and sofas—and how to make upholstered covers. With it you do a grand slip cover job.

Send 15c for our booklet, MAKING SLIP COVERS SUCCESSFULLY, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I have been married a year and have been happy until my husband's mother came to live with us. Her husband is dead and he left her well provided for. She is sweet as she can be, but a born boss and gives us the benefit of it in trying to run my home. When we were married she bought a house and gave it to us in fee simple and when my husband lost his job she helped us generously; so we can hardly put her out, yet I very much want to live alone. Any advice would be appreciated. X.

ANSWER:

Apparently you are one of the daughters-in-law who are quite willing to accept all and give nothing. No doubt you would have been happier if your husband had been able to provide his own home, keep his job and run his works independently of his mother. Yet he couldn't; and according to your own statement she very generously came to his rescue. Then she deserves your gratitude which you can express best in gracious hospitality. Are you coming across?

Certainly it would have been wiser if your mother-in-law had seen fit to have set up her own establishment; for doubling up is never quite satisfactory to the wife who wants to run her own playhouse without direction or suggestion from anybody. Yet if a woman had ever paid for the seat she sat in, your mother-in-law has paid. It is true that mothers, as well as ordinary individuals, expect to get their money's worth, even when they have given in the name of love and given gladly.

Only those who are entirely independent can have things exactly as they wish them in this life, and those people are few and far between; for even when we aren't under financial obligation to members of our families we are usually under obligations of affection which are quite as binding. A young pair who take the hand-out of a home and a cash subsidy from a parent aren't independent and they sell themselves short when they quibble over paying her in any acceptable coin.

My advice to you, Madame X, is to think less of your selfish pleasure and more of your obligation of loving, liberal mother-in-law who put a roof over your head, a firm foundation under your feet when your husband's foundation slipped and you and he were sinking.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I have been going with a boy for a year and during this time he has said he didn't date any other girl. After all he didn't tell me a lie but he fooled me just the same because I have discovered that a rich widow almost twice his age likes him and throws herself at him. He goes to see her quite often and has carefully avoided any mention of her to me. Don't you think this is plenty reason for giving him the air? R. A.

ANEWER:

There isn't much satisfaction to a girl in having a steady who deceives her, violates the lover's code, while he is declaring himself faithful. The two-timing boy friend is a delusion and a snare. Worse and more of it; a wealthy, willing, wise and wily widow slings a mean lariat. An inexperienced lass can hardly hold her boy friend close when such a widow has got her noose about his neck. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

My girl has played fast and loose, hide and seek, come and go with me for a year. I bet she has told me a thousand lies in that time. Yet in spite of it all, I love her and can't help it. Could you give a guy a little encouragement?

JACK.

ANSWER:

One of two things must account for the state of affairs: either your girl is a congenial liar or she doesn't give a rap about you, and in any event, you are out of luck. In spite of these facts you would be very foolish to permit yourself to be encouraged. Forget her, she isn't worth worrying about.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

NEWS FROM THE STUDIOS.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.—The era when one star could carry a picture alone has departed for good. Nowadays, every big name on the lot that happens to be available is crammed into each epic. Particularly at M.-G.-M., where the tops in supercasting and superwriting is under way for "The Three Comrades."

Joan Crawford is being considered for the leading feminine part. Robert Taylor and Spencer Tracy play two of the three comrades. The third will be either Jimmy Stewart or Robert Montgomery. The story, by Eric Remarque, adapted for the screen by R. C. Sherriff (of "Journey's End" fame), and currently the script child of Scott Fitzgerald, concerns the 1928 depression period in Germany, when courage and wealth were at a very low point. Miss Crawford's role is that of an impoverished half English-half German aristocrat. Production begins when Robert Taylor returns from his "A Yank At Oxford" jaunt in England.

The wigs are ready, the costumes prepared, the script complete, but "Marie Antoinette," in which Norma Shearer had hoped to make her first appearance on the screen since the death of Husband Irving Thalberg, is still waiting to get before the cameras. There are two reasons for the delay. One, Miss Shearer is very anxious to have Charles Laughton play Louis XVI, and, as Laughton refused to journey Hollywoodwards, had planned to bring the mountain to Mohammet by making the film in London. But now Metro has decided against making the film abroad. Charles Boyer, next in line for the role, has turned it down in favor of a vacation in his native France. And so Miss Shearer's next film is likely to be "Pride and Prejudice" or a modern comedy.

"The Four Marys," by Fanny Heaslip Lea starts production next week. The cast included Myrna Loy, Rosalind Russell, Franchot Tone and Melvyn Douglas. The two missing Marys will be chosen after the picture gets under way. The story begins with the first Mary, a great grandmother. Mary No. 2 is the mother of the third Mary, a divorcee who works as a book reviewer. The last Mary is a spoiled modern.

Potted notes of the week. . . . Ginger Rogers has finally been chosen to star in "Having Wonderful Time." But not until she completes "Vivacious Lady," which resumes in three weeks, when Ginger returns from her Canadian vacation. . . . Mitzi Green's first starring picture in Hollywood will be "Fiddlesticks," with music by Brown and Henderson. Mitzi reports October 1, after the closing of "Babes in Arms." . . . Gladys Swarthout back in Hollywood preparing for her next Paramount picture, "The Yellow Nightingale," in which John Boles is opposite number.

Jack Benny rides into bigger picture money with a new contract to make three pictures at $100,000 per picture. . . . John Barrymore is really getting down to work again, and draws a top spot in "City Hall Scandal," with Lynne Overman and Charles Bickford. . . . Alice Faye, Louise Hovick (which is another way of saying Gypsy Rose Lee), and Joan Davis, will be "Sally, Irene and Mary" in the film of that name.

If David Selznick clears the screen rights to "Rupert of Hentzau," top male spot will go to Ronald Colman. . . . The Ritz brothers will be starred in "Mr. Nickleby Sits Down," a farce musical by Newspaperman Alfred Prowitt, concerning a sit-down strike. . . . Irene Dunne and Herbert Marshall are co-starred in "The Mad Miss Manton." The picture presents Irene as a lady detective. . . . Conway Tearle, who has not been too lucky in Hollywood these past years, departs for Broadway next month to co-star with Tallulah Bankhead in "Anthony and Cleopatra." . . . Myrna Loy ceases being the ideal screen wife long enough to show you life on a farm for M.-G.-M.'s "Test Pilot." Clark Gable is the boy who cracks up in her father's wheat field, and falls even harder for Miss Loy.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Tuesday.—Yesterday afternoon we went to pay a farewell visit to Camp Jane Addams in Bear Mountain Park, New York. It has finally been decided that the cost per girl does not justify its continuance and it will be closed at the end of August. The girls who were there looked happy and healthy. On their work project many of them learned to sew, which should be a help. Some of them have sewed for a living in New York before they came to the camp, and many who have never had a job may sew for a living in the future. It is a useful art, though many of us seem to forget it these days.

As an avocation the girls have learned a number of skills which will perhaps provide entertainment for leisure time. I sat in and listened to an English class which seemed to me to be conducted in a very stimulating way. It was held in the open and the girls sat under the trees and on the grass or rocks.

The teacher read some poetry and at the end of each poem would let the girls express their opinions or ask for a comparison between the poems they had read. They would discuss the thoughts and philosophy involved, as well. I noticed one girl struggling with some knitting and longed to go over to offer my assistance, but I discovered afterwards it was not really needed.

Whatever else these girls have learned, they have learned to live out of doors. We went down to the dock and many of them told me how happy they were in their life there and how much it had meant to them to have had the experience. One girl even told me that she thought camps were just as important as public schools, and she thought they should be included in the school system.

I told her that at present the people of the state of New York had not agreed that they were a vital part of education, and they were not included under the law. Perhaps it will be possible to find a way to run camps cheaply enough so that the head of a family making a living wage may be able to give his children that experience during the summer, or a boy or girl at work making a living wage may be able to save for that kind of a holiday.

One vivid and attractive face will stay with me for a long while. It shone with health and spirit, but the girl used crutches to get about. She had had infantile parlysis as a child, but proudly told me she was one of the best swimmers there. When I asked her how much she could do, she said: "You'd be surprised. I can do almost everything."

I arrived home at 7 and had a swim before dinner. An old friend, who went abroad with my mother-in-law and my son, John, but who had come home ahead of them, spent the night and gave me an amusing account of many of their experiences. He left this morning to go back to his work and Mrs. Scheider and I to doing as much work at our desks as we can.

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN.

A HOUSEFUL OF GROWING BOYS.

A house that must make room for everything from table tennis to taxidermy.

"I never know what to expect next," sighed Melinda. "Here am I, loving nothing so much as French chairs and trailing lace bedspreads . . . wouldn't I be the mother of a houseful of boys and a husband who would demolish a French room at a single glance.

"Through these growing up years, my problem is to fix a house that can take care of everything from table tennis to a correspondence course in taxidermy. I have in mind making a drastic change in our dining room to get all their stuff out of the living room (Oh, I know I should have an attic or a basement playroom, but I don't and our bedrooms are too small and crowded already). Now don't laugh at this idea—our dining table is on its last legs and should be turned over to the junk man. On the other hand there is a very good table for tennis right in the living room at present—quite a strong one. Why couldn't I use this for a dining table at meal time, then let the boys play here between meals? I thought I might buy a small folding or drop leaf table for each boy (there are four of them). These would serve for their individual activities, and yet they could be gotten out of the way in a pushancy.

Since we need new dining chairs also, I thought two long benches for each side of the table would do, then a papa and mama chair for us at each end. The benches could go under the table between meals and would have the added advantage of taking care of extra company. We almost always have one or more neighbor boys to eat with us. Hope this doesn't sound absolutely crazy.

Colors Should Be Gay.

What I want you to help me with is the colors and curtains. I realize that the usual formal background wouldn't do for such furnishings, but the question is, what would? The living room across the hall is conventional in blues and rose tones mostly against cream wall paper. The hall has cream walls and hooked rugs. What would you do with this dining room, keeping in mind the fact that it will be changed and dignified when the boys are older?"

No—we don't think your idea sounds crazy at all. We just think that you have imagination. Why not have these walls papered in one of the rather dizzy sporting wall papers now on the market. The masculine branch of the family will approve and you'll find it more appropriate than the usual sedate designs. Then leave the floors bare, paint the benches red and get plain red sailcloth for curtains—made on rings to swish back and forth. Use informal peasant lines—or else bright blue or green dress linen fringed all around for the tablecloth and napkins.

Miss O'Callaghan Hostess at Party.

Miss Elsa O'Callaghan entertained at a watermelon cutting last evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leland O'Callaghan, on North avenue. Misses Sarah Polk and Martha Jones assisted in entertaining.

Present were Misses O'Callaghan, Polk, Jones, Ruth Jones, Jean Daum, Jean Markel, Katherine O'Callaghan, Ruth Spruance, Dorothy Wallis, Elizabeth Crawford, Lillian Gordon, Aileen Crawford, Nancy Wallis and Perry St. John, Echols Speer, Leland O'Callaghan, Paul Clarke, Billy Speer, Ted O'Callaghan, David Gordon, Tom and Don Pittard and Sam Howard.

For Miss Dobbs.

Complimenting Miss Sarah Dobbs, bride-elect of September 4, was the informal party at which Miss Muriel Pierce entertained yesterday afternoon.

Miss Dobbs was central figure at the luncheon at which Mrs. Hugh Harris was hostess Wednesday at 1 o'clock at her home on Houston Mill road. Guests included a group of friends of the honoree's mother, Mrs. Willis Dobbs, who have known the bride-to-be since childhood.

Present were Miss Dobbs, Miss Lillian Brower, Mesdames Arthur Burdette, James Connor Oliver, R. J. Taylor, Victor Hugo Montgomery, Mae Wynne, John T. Dennis, Willis Dobbs, W. P. Felker, J. J. Bookout, E. R. Partridge, Hugh H. Harris and Rev. Hugh H. Harris.

Leave for Convention.

Mr. and Mrs. William Preston Irvine, of Arkwright place, will leave on Saturday to attend the national convention of United Spanish War Veterans, in Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. Irvine was elected delegates to national convention at the department of Georgia meeting held in Rome.

Their trip will include a visit of two days in Cleveland, Ohio, then they will attend the national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in Buffalo, N Y., on August 29 to September 3, Mr. Irvine was elected delegates by V. F. W. Post No. 390, and Mrs. Irvine was elected delegate from Auxiliary to V. F. W. No. 390.

They will visit New York city and Philadelphia, the former home of Mrs. Irvine, Woodbury, N. J., and Washington, D. C. Mr. Irvine served in the Philippines, Porto Rico, Cuba and China during the Spanish-American War.

For Miss Dennard.

Miss Kathryn Dennard, bride-elect, whose marriage to Melvin Frank Moody takes place in October at the Capitol View Baptist church, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower Monday evening by Mrs. Franklin Rodgers and Mrs. Bruce Rodgers, at the latter's home at 1286 Stewart avenue, S. W.

Present were, in addition to the bride-elect, Mesdames J. E. Dodger, J. W. Sheppard, E. W. Rodgers, L. I. Dennard, J. B. Upshaw, B. F. Jester, Sam Vess, M. G. Gilreath, C. Newman Meadows, W. W. Morris, S. H. Barrett, L. S. Lane, R. L. Dennard, S. A. Brown, Beryl Cox, Harry Kreider, D. L. Franklin, Bruce Rodgers, Franklin Rodgers and Miss Millie Loughry.

ADVENTURE IN LOVE

By KATHRN BEEMIS WILSON

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

It would be incredibly bad taste to carry on a conversation now with someone in the audience. Velma, making no reply, fixed her eyes straight ahead, and moved away. She struggled to compose her features as she went back through the aisle, up the ramp, slowly drifted across the stage. The dressing room was blessed haven.

Mae Forland came rushing in, her gray eyes glassy. "Velma," she said tartly, "what do you mean by being rude to one of my best customers?"

Velma's eyebrows lifted. She began unhooking the bridal gown. "If that girl is one of your best customers, Miss Forland, it's—it's just too bad," she retorted fiercely.

"Well! I must say!" ejaculated Mae Forland, wondering what to do with such an independent model. "No—keep the dress on. I want you to go back out there and mingle with the crowd for a few minutes. Several of the young ladies are interested in wedding gowns. And, Velma—I'd like you to be agreeable.

For a brief instant, Velma's hands clenched. It would almost be preferable to resign her position than go out to face Louise again. But she drew up stoutly, and replied, "I'll—try, Miss Forland."

Soon she was parading among the admiring women again. They raved over the long tight lace sleeves and bodice, the high neckline, the ingenious curve of hipline, the billowing fullness about her white satin slippers. Her golden hair, nearly platinum under the soft lights, lay in intriguing soft waves above her tortured brown eyes; her piquant nose and quivering lips were adorable. It seemed almost a pity to waste the allure of her upon mere women.

"Could one of your other models wear the bridal gown, Miss Forland?" asked Louise Clark, loud enough for everyone in the room to hear. "Someone who really looks like a bride—has the figure— you know."

Surprised protest came from other women present.

"Why! She's beautiful! Perfect!" piped up one, courageously.

Miss Forland beckoned to Velma. She whispered savagely, "That's what comes of being impolite to the Clark girl! Go take off that gown and tell Jane to get into it at once!"

Velma, her disposition curdling, nearly ran in her haste to reach the dressing room. Now, she thoroughly understood when men knocked one another down upon occasion. What didn't she feel like doing to Louise!

Velma's part in the afternoon's show having abruptly ended, she was free to leave as soon as she could put on her black and white striped wool suit. Its short little coat made her look childishly naive. The woolly white hat over her blond curls made her look even more so.

It was growing dark as her laggard feet carried her through the downtown section. Her head felt heavy, dizzily uncertain. If she were obliged to parade clothes before Louise Clark, hear her discuss her trousseau at length, she could not endure it. The—the despicable little hussy!

She was passing a dark alley when she heard a peculiar noise. She hesitated. It came again, louder.

The shadows in that alley looked terrifying. Yet—if some one were in trouble—in peril—

A man came running out of the alley. She whirled and caught his sleeve as he darted past her. She gasped out, "Tom! Tom!"

Tom stopped short, his hazel eyes squinting at her from beneath a dirty old cap pulled low on his head.

"Whatda you want?" he asked roughly.

She stared at him in amazement. She never had seen Tom so disheveled before. Under the street lamp, his soiled suit showed its lack of contact with a pressing iron. All his air of meticulous grooming had disappeared. She could scarcely believe her eyes.

"Tom," she implored, "what—what is it? What's the—"

He began to move away, but she kept close to his side. They were walking now unhurriedly along the sidewalk. He said, out of the corner of his mouth, "Don't look back—there's a cop behind us. Act natural, and come 'long like nothing was up. There's a dead man back in that alley."

"A—a dead man! Tom—how—"

He grasped her arm. "Shut up, you little fool!" he rasped out. Then hurried her across the street to a mud-spattered sedan.

With her heart in her throat, she got in the front seat beside him.

"Where do you live?" he asked bluntly.

She lifted questioning eyes to his. But of course—Tom had no way of knowing where she was staying since she left the Clarks.

"At the Y. W. C. A.," she said unsteadily.

"Okay. I know the place. I knew a girl there once."

This was a new Tom, a coarse fellow strange to her. Had he been drinking?

"Tom—tell me—I must know about—about that dead man. Was it an accident—did you—"

"Can it, sister," he said, jumping the car into gear. "On second thought, I'll turn you loose. Too bad for a pretty little thing like you to get mixed up in a —"

He left the sentence unfinished as he drove the car wildly around the corner and stopped by the curb.

"Scram!" he ordered. "Happy landing!"

She jumped out, now thoroughly frightened. Something hit her heels as it fell to the pavement behind her. The car leaped away, while she stood rooted to the spot wondering what ailed Tom. Had he gone completely out of his mind?

She stooped down and picked up the object which had dropped from the car. It was a leather wallet. She stepped nearer the street light to examine its contents. This might furnish a clew to Tom's insane actions.

In the wallet were bills. Many bills. They looked like hundred-dollar bills. There was a card, too. She read, "Mr. John Scollar, Jewelry Agent."

John Scollar? She'd never heard of him. How had his wallet happened to be in Tom's car? And who was—John Scollar?

By morning, it was simple enough for Velma to know a great deal about John Scollar. The whole city was teeming with the excitement and horror of the man's murder in the alley between the postoffice and the Bargain Variety store. The newspapers printed long columns describing him, his frequent visits in Carryville as a jewelry salesman, pictured his body and a diagram of the alley. No money having been found on him, it was apparent that robbery had been the motive for the killing. The police were hot on the trail of the murderer.

Velma grew hot and cold by turns as she read detailed accounts of the gruesome tragedy. Perhaps she held the clew to the rapid solution of the case. She was certainly brimful of guilty knowledge. Must she give Tom over to the police? Should she take the wallet to police and tell her story?

She pondered over this while drinking hot coffee. She was trying to eat breakfast in the Y. W. C. A.'s dining room, but food choked her. She discarded wild plans of getting rid of the wallet and the ten thousand dollars it contained. She might drop it into the Carryville river, but it seemed unsafe. Some one might see her and connect her with the crime.

She had the wallet in her handbag. She dared not leave this incriminating evidence in her room. She wanted to avoid drawing Tom into the police net. But why? How could she love a—a murderer? Because Tom had come running out of the alley at the time of the murder was no sign he was guilty.

He had said there was a dead man there, hadn't he? That was no proof of his guilt. But the police might think it was ample proof. She must shield Tom. She must shield him—no matter what happened. She loved him. She would always love him—in spite of everything, she loved him.

Perhaps if she waited, did nothing, the real murderer would be apprehended, and Tom never would be involved in the case. But to carry around in her consciousness the uncertainty as to Tom's guilt or innocence was unbearable!

If she only dared to confide in some one. That would be too dangerous. A secret once told is no longer a secret.

In a state of nerves bordering upon hysteria, she went to the Forland shop. Miss Forland handed her her weekly pay check as she entered, which was customary on Saturday mornings.

PIRATES OF DAYS GONE BY.
IV—Captain Kidd.

Where is the treasure of Captain Kidd?

That question has been asked by great numbers of people, and hundreds have gone digging to find it. All along the Atlantic coast, as far as Nova Scotia, there are legends of gold and jewels buried by the sea captain named William Kidd.

Kidd burying treasure on Gardiner's island.

Captain Kidd lived at about the same time as Blackbeard, but obtained his booty from different seas. After serving in the British navy, he was put in command of a vessel called the "Adventure." With a commission from the king to seize pirates, he voyaged to the Indian ocean. He also was given the "right" to attack French vessels, since warfare was going on between France and Great Britain at that time.

Reaching Madagascar, the largest island off Africa's eastern coast, Kidd looked about for pirates but couldn't find any. For several months, he cruised about the Indian ocean, at length heading for the coast of Arabia. Near the searport of Aden, he captured a small Moorish vessel. Later he seized several other vessels, mostly Moorish, and took from them what valuables he could. His largest prize was called the "Queda Merchant," and it provided booty worth about $150,000. This was divided among the "Adventure's" sailors.

The sailors of the "Queda Merchant" were placed safely on shore, and the vessel itself was manned by some of the sailors in Kidd's crew. Sailing to Madagascar, the "Adventure" and the other boat fell in with a vessel under command of a pirate named Culliford. Kidd treated Culliford like an old friend and gave him supplies. Some of Kidd's men deserted him, and went to work for Culliford.

Captain Kidd returned across the Atlantic and entered Long Island sound. Touching at Gardiner's island, he buried a great deal of his treasure there. He knew he was "wanted" as a pirate, but went to Boston, and gave himself up. Later he was taken to England for trial, and was hanged.

Those are the main facts I have found in Captain Kidd's life. To this day, there is a good deal of mystery about him. Some believe he was not really a pirate, but others say he was.

At his trial, Kidd defended himself by saying that the Moorish vessels he had captured had been flying the French flag. He said that he had treated the pirate Culliford like a friend only because he feared the guns of Culliford's ship. The full truth may never be known.

The treasure Captain Kidd buried on Gardiner's island was dug up soon afterward. With what was found on his ship, it had a value of $70,000. The Gardiner's island treasure is the only burial by Kidd which is certainly known to have taken place.

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Possibility that railroads must pay an additional $65,000,000 in wages this year was a disturbing influence to stock market bullishness today.

Rails were prominent in late selling and brought a lower close to the market. Union Pacific broke 5 points to a new low for the year while losses ranging to 2 points were prominent among other carriers. Industrial issues followed the decline showing fractional losses. Trading volume was 700,000 shares.

The one development on the railroad situation was the fact that —based on reports of 90 roads—the class 1 gross income in July showed only about 2.6 per cent increase over July, 1936, the smallest gain this year. Coupled with this is the fact that railroad executives are negotiating with five transportation brotherhoods over the demand for a 20 per cent wage increase. Most observers expect the increase to be about 8 per cent or around the same level as given the non-operating workers a few weeks ago.

Private estimates were that if the operating brotherhoods are given the same advance, the total increase would be around $145,000,000 annually. On this basis a traffic gain of around 8 per cent will be necessary to offset such a boost.

Private observers believed that industrial operations in the last half will be about 5 per cent ahead of the 1936 period—barring unforeseen labor difficulties or some other industrial upset—and that grain and other agricultural shipments will be heavy. Forecasts are for carloadings of around 900,000 to 950,000 cars weekly at the peak and this would mean total traffic for the second half about 10 to 15 per cent ahead of 1936.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A thin stock market idled downhill fractions to a point or more today.

At the start prices were marked up. Later steels rallied with the aid of cheerful news from the industry and coppers took strength from cable reports the fall in copper prices abroad had halted for the time being.

During the afternoon moderately consistent selling dribbled into the rails. It was prompted, analysts said, by the emphasis given in Wall Street to the way in which increased costs have pared earnings of some roads.

Financial circles took heart from the report of Iron Age, which cited indications of new business. The review said moderate improvement covered all territories and that principal stimulus came from motor makers and miscellaneous sources.

Stock losers of fractions to a point or more were Anaconda at 60, Republic 38 1-4, American Smelting 95 1-2, Bethlehem 100 3-8, Chrysler 115 3-4, du Pont 162, General Electric 56 5-8, General Motors 58 1-4, International Harvester 117 1-4, Sears-Roebuck 97 1-4, Standard Oil of New Jersey 68 1-4, Santa Fe 77 1-4, Baltimore & Ohio 27 3-8, Delaware Hudson 36, Northern Pacific 29 1-4, American Telephone 169 3-4, Pennsylvania 36 5-8, Consolidated Edison 36 3-8 and Western Union 48 3-4. Lower earnings for Union Pacific brought a drop of 5 to 120 1-2. United States Steel was unchanged at 118.

CURB PRICES LOWER AS TRADE QUICKENS

Losses of From Fractions to Around 2 Points Are Recorded.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The curb market tended to slightly lower levels in quickened trading today. Losses of from fractions to around 2 points were recorded on the downside while gains, which were scattered were confined to minor fractions.

A definite group trend was lacking in spite of the fact many stocks slid down. Aluminum Co. dropped 2 points to 154 and Teck-Hughes gave up 1 3-8 to 30. American Cyanamid "B" and Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. were losers.

The oils were hardest hit in spite of recent reports of record crude oil output and gasoline demand. Creole Petrole

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 46

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan fixed his level gaze upon the repulsive figure of the old magician and the weird setting in which he wrought his villainies—all bathed in the unholy green light of the mystic emerald. His jungle-trained brain was exploring all avenues of escape.

With all the power of his mighty muscles he tested the strength of the enveloping rawhide net. It gave, but it did not break. Woora saw him and laughed. "You might as well spare yourself the effort. A bull elephant could not escape from that mesh. Woora is wise."

With his grotesque head cocked to one side, he stared intently at his victim. The laugh died on his lips, giving place to a snarl. He was angry because his strange prisoner showed no fear. Bitterly he turned to inspect the iron, muttering and mumbling to himself.

The devilish instrument had grown hot; the point glowed. "Take a last look, my guest," Woora cackled; "for after a moment you will never see again! I am ready to burn out your eyes!" From the coals he drew the red-hot iron, and stepped toward the captive!

So Says
Mr. McCollum—
"All The Good Sense In The World Runs Into Proverbs"

THAT must be true that all men say. And I believe most any one of the thousands I have helped out of financial difficulties will tell you it's a fine thing to have only one place to pay each month instead of a dozen or more. Now, under my plan of personal financing you can spread $60 to $1,000 over ONE OR TWO YEARS at low interest. You incur no obligation when you come in to talk things over at the Seaboard Loan & Savings Assn., 12 Pryor St., S. W.

LINDSEY HOPKINS FUNERAL TRIBUTE TO BE PAID TODAY

Rickenbacker Flying Here To Act as Pallbearer at Capitalist's Rites.

Final tribute to Lindsey Hopkins, pioneer Atlanta aviation enthusiast, capitalist and philanthropist, will be paid at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Peachtree Christian church.

Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, Dr. L. O. Bricker and Dr. Robert Burns will conduct the services, with burial in West View cemetery.

Mr. Hopkins' interest in aviation led to Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, famed flyer, being chosen as one of the pallbearers. Captain Rickenbacker will fly from New York to be in the funeral this afternoon.

Other pallbearers will be Floyd Y. Keeler, of New York; Richard W. Courts, J. D. Robinson, Roy W. Collier, Ivan E. Allen, Dr. Leroy W. Childs, Harold Hirsch, Thornton M. Fincher, Lane Young, Frank Hawkins and J. N. Goddard.

Honorary Escort.

An honorary escort will be formed by the following: Arthur Acklin, of Wilmington, Del.; Emory Flynn, of Miami; Edward W. Woodruff, Thomas A. Morgan, of New York; Thomas H. Daniel, Osgood E. Dooly, R. W. Woodruff and R. S. Reynolds, of New York.

Mr. Hopkins died at his home on West Pace's Ferry road Tuesday night at 6:10 o'clock. Although ill ten days, his condition was not considered critical until shortly before his death. He was 58 years old.

One of the first to see the possibilities of the airplane, he early became interested in the Sperry Corporation, manufacturer of stabilizing gear. He owned the first plane in Atlanta, and staged the first air meet here. He was a lifelong director of North American Aviation.

Known as a giver as well as a maker of money, he had made gifts of approximately $100,000 to Atlanta institutions in the past year, including $50,000 to Emory University medical school, $15,000 to the Good Samaritan clinic, which he helped found, and his home on Peachtree street to the Peachtree Presbyterian church for use as a parsonage.

Born in North Carolina.

Born in Reedsburg, N. C., he was educated at the University of North Carolina. He married Miss Lenira Balesley, of Greensboro, N. C., in 1906, and moved to Atlanta in 1910.

Starting business here as an automobile distributor, he soon expanded his interests to include dealings in stocks, bonds and real estate. A great part of his fortune was derived from his holdings in the Coca-Cola Company, of which he was a director at the time of his death.

He was also a director of American Hides & Leather, Reynolds Metal Company and other national corporations.

Several years ago he transferred his permanent residence to Miami Beach, where he had extensive hotel and other properties. He also had real estate holdings in Atlanta and Long Island.

In recent years he had been engaged in the reorganization of the Carl G. Fisher Corporation which developed Miami Beach.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR—Notice is hereby given that the United States Government proposes to advertise specifications for a contract for the construction of a public building of the United States, namely the Agriculture and Post Office Building, at Conyers, State of Georgia; and that in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act as amended (Act of Aug. 30, 1935; Pub. No. 403, 74th Cong.) such specifications will contain the minimum wages to be paid the various classes of laborers and mechanics employed, and that the Secretary of Labor has been requested to determine such wage rates pursuant to the provisions of said Act and the regulations of the Department of Labor. Opportunity for hearing on this matter will be given at 11:00 o'clock a. m. August 26, 1937, in room 416, Old Post Office Building, at Atlanta, at which time and place all interested persons may appear and present testimony with respect to the prevailing local wages for laborers and mechanics on building construction.

By direction of the Secretary. Gerard D. Reilly, Solicitor of Labor.

Boy on Scooter Hurt As He Runs Into Auto

A little boy was critically injured yesterday afternoon when he ran his scooter into the side of a moving automobile on Piedmont road near East Pace's Ferry road.

William Daves, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Daves, of 23 East Shadowlawn avenue, was chasing his dog on a scooter when he ran into the side of a car driven by W. B. Lyle, of Roxboro road, county police said.

William was taken to Crawford W. Long hospital suffering a fractured skull. He has not regained consciousness.

No charges were made against Lyle.

GUN WOUNDS FATAL TO WINDER WOMAN

Mate Already Dead of Self-Inflicted Shot; Third Victim Improves.

WINDER, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—A young couple's quarrel had ended today in the death of both from gunshot.

Mrs. Earl Whitworth died in an Atlanta hospital today of wounds Police Chief Earl McElroy, of Winder, said were inflicted by her husband yesterday.

Whitworth also shot and wounded her employer, W. H. Jennings, president of the Barrow County Manufacturing Company, and then sent a fatal bullet through his own brain.

Jennings received "flesh wounds," McElroy said, and "was getting along all right today."

The chief said "Whitworth insisted his wife quit work and when she refused, he asked Mr. Jennings to fire her. He said he wouldn't fire her because she was a good employe, but if she wanted to quit she could."

The shooting occurred in downtown Winder yesterday as Mrs. Whitworth was returning to work after lunch. He said the couple "parted once before and later remarried, and they separated again last Sunday."

The chief declared an inquest would be "useless," and that none would be held.

Whitworth, who is survived by his mother, a sister, Miss Annie Whitworth, and a brother, W. M. Whitworth, all of Lawrenceville, was buried at Martin's chapel, near Lawrenceville, this afternoon. The Rev. Horace Cochran officiated.

Rites will be held at Winder for Mrs. Whitworth.

MIMOSA HALL SOLD TO GUS I. TOLSON

Historic Colonial Home in Roswell Brings $22,500.

Mimosa Hall, one of three historic old homes built in Roswell, Ga., nearly 100 years ago, was sold yesterday by Mrs. John M. Reid to Gus I. Tolson, well known in Atlanta business circles. Tolson has made his home in the old colonial place for more than a year under lease.

The sale was negotiated and announced by Boyd F. White, sales manager of the Draper-Owens Company, realtors, and while no definite amount was stated, it is understood the price paid was around $22,500.

Mimosa Hall, along with Barrington Hall and Bulloch Hall, have historical histories, all of them built around a century ago in Roswell. Mimosa Hall is a large two-story solid brick house of the colonial type, and is surrounded by beautiful gardens and landscape effect, covering about 10 acres.

MRS. HAHN SEEKS CHANGE OF VENUE

Asks Expert Analysis of Alleged Poisons.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, 31, asked today for a change of venue for her trial on a first-degree murder charge in one of 11 deaths under police scrutiny.

She pleaded innocent to indictments charging she killed two elderly Cincinnatians. Mrs. Hahn through her attorneys also asked Judge Samuel Bell to name an expert to analyze substances found in the viscera of persons she is accused of poisoning.

During the day Lieutenant George Schattle, of the homicide squad, obtained numerous notes purportedly written by Mrs. Hahn to various friends, many concerning money.

FATHER OFFERS DENIAL IN DEATH OF BOY, 11

BELZONI, Miss., Aug. 18.—(AP) J. D. Barnett, 45-year-old tenant farmer, pleaded innocence today to a charge of murdering his 11-year-old son, Jordon Barnett.

Barnett also denied guilt on charges that he assaulted his 15-year-old daughter, Elvoid, and was living illegally with a woman he claims is his wife.

GEORGIAN PROPOSES TO STOP IMMIGRATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—(AP)—All immigration to the United States would stop by December 31, 1939, under a bill introduced in congress here by Representative Stephen Pace, of Americus, Ga.

He also proposed deportation of all aliens in this country on that date.

WELLS ENCOURAGED OVER FUND OUTLOOK

School Superintendent Back From Capital; Thinks PWA Cash Will Be Granted.

Back in his office yesterday from a three-day stay in Washington, Jere A. Wells, Fulton county school superintendent, said that he felt "greatly encouraged" over prospect of obtaining PWA funds sought for construction of additional school buildings in the county.

Wells had been in Washington since Saturday seeking approval of an application asking the federal agency to appropriate 45 per cent of the $280,000 deemed necessary to meet demands created by a much enlarged school attendance.

The county last June authorized a bond issue to take care of 55 per cent of the cost of the new buildings. The overcrowded condition in county schools makes construction of the additional buildings absolutely imperative, Wells said yesterday.

He said that he was being aided in securing approval of the application by Washington PWA heads by Congressman Robert Ramspeck, Governor Rivers, and other state officials. Washington authorities informed him that his application was on the eligible file and would be given close attention, Wells said.

BANDITS GET 40 RADIOS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Four men trussed up two garagemen, dug a hole through a brick wall separating the garage from an adjoining radio store and stole 40 automobile radios valued at $2,500 and $360 in cash early today.

HOLD RITES TODAY FOR TRAIN VICTIM

W. O. Johnson Funeral To Be at Capitol View Church.

Funeral rites for W. O. Johnson, 31, of 648 Hugh street, S. W., who was killed late Tuesday when he was hit by a train, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Capitol View Baptist church.

The Rev. W. Lee Cutts will perform the services with burial under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

His station wagon struck as he was crossing railroad tracks in Terminal station, Mr. Johnson was thrown under the wheels of the train and killed almost instantly. He was an express company employe.

Surviving are his wife; a son, W. O. Johnson Jr.; parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johnson, and two brothers, J. O. and R. H. Johnson.

1,738 GIVEN JOBS BY STATE BUREAU

765 Placed in Private Industry, 973 on Public Works Projects.

The state employment service placed 1,738 persons at work last week, Governor Rivers told a press conference yesterday.

He cited figures compiled by Marion A. O'Connor, director of the state employment service, showing that of these placements, 765 were in private industry and 973 were in public works projects.

Placements in private industry last week were 39.9 per cent, as compared with 27.6 per cent the week before.

The Governor said that all offices maintained by the state employment service were now housed in satisfactory quarters and that personnel requirements had been raised.
